Experts Fear Props Mean New Controls On Farmers

High-Level Supports Are Seen Leading To Strictest Curbs On Crop Acreage

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The new farm bill promising continuation for another year of high wartime price supports for products may lead to an early demand for the most stringent farm controls in American history.

The new law requires that certain farm products must be supported at high price levels when they are subjected to acreage controls and marketing quotas.

But Government economists say such rules automatically call for regimentation of the farmer beyond any program yet suggested.

It will not be enough, they say, just to limit the acreage a farmer can plant to corn. It will be necessary also to give the Government power to tell him what he may raise on the acres he is taking out of corn.

A clear demonstration of how the present law is working at cross purposes is seen in Aroostook County, Me. This year, because of the huge potato surplus, the acreage for potatoes was cut drastically—at the suggestion of Maine potato growers themselves.

But many of those potato farmers turned to growing oats and other grains on the land taken out of potato production. The Government now is supporting the price of oats and barley in Maine being raised on land that last year raised potatoes.

The same reports are coming into the Agriculture Department from other States.

In some cases farmers are growing supplies they used to buy elsewhere on such land. For instance, a Virginia county agent reported last week that farmers were buying much less feed grains than formerly. They are raising their own feed on small parcels of land recently taken out of tobacco through acreage restrictions.

In some Northeastern States these grains have been used as livestock and poultry feeds. This reduces the market for those grains grown in other States and thus increases the surplus the Government is taking over.

Last spring Agriculture Department policy makers recommended that controls specify that farmers will not be eligible for price supports unless they divert acreage taken out of wheat, for instance, to pasture, hay or other soil-conserving crops.

However, some Government experts see a danger in this. A great deal of hay, for instance, goes into the Nation's trade. If hay production is increased without an increase in livestock production, the result may break hay prices. They then can picture the commercial hay raiser yelling for Government aid.

Reds Blast Allied Parley

Berlin, Nov. 6 (NYHT).—The official Soviet newspaper in Berlin, the Taeglische Rundschau, today took an editorial blast at the forthcoming Paris conference of the American, British, and French foreign ministers, as a sign of "desperation that has overcome the imperialist warmongers."

2 Big Firms Ready to Sign Steel Peace

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6. (U.P.)—Two big independent companies, employing 83,000 workers, were on the verge of peace with the CIO Steelworkers tonight. Break up of the great 37-day steel strike may come this week.

Republic Steel Corp., third largest company in the industry, and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., the fourth, prepared proposals to submit to the union. At least two smaller firms were ready to talk terms.

Adding to the growing optimism was a report from a high Government labor expert that U. S. Steel Corp., giant of the industry, was preparing a move to end the strike of its 170,000 employes. He said it might come Monday or Tuesday.

CIO President Philip Murray, who conferred with Republic officials for four hours last night at Cleveland, was returning to his office here. He was reported "elated" over developments.

Republic officials said their lawyers were reducing its proposal to writing to permit union study.

Republic President C. M. White said yesterday he believed settlement with his company is close.

"We have given the union an offer—not the Bethlehem plan—which the union negotiators seemed to think satisfactory and fair to all concerned," he said.

Murray will meet with Jones & Laughlin here Monday. J. & L. concealed details of its proposals, but its offer and that of Republic reportedly were worked-over versions of the settlement that sent Bethlehem's 80,000 employes back to work last week.

The settlement established $100-a-month pensions for fully qualified workers and set up an in-

Senate Action To Cost Chest $63,000 Gift

Sometime in the next two or three weeks, probably just before the drive is over—the Washington Community Chest will get a donation of $30,000 to $35,000 from last January's inauguration celebration.

It would have got $63,000 more if the Senate hadn't refused at the last minute to waive amusement taxes on tickets to the parade and the Inaugural Gala and Inaugural Ball.

In addition to the $63,000 taxes it already has paid, the Inaugural Committee is holding several thousand dollars as taxes for free tickets furnished the White House and the Democratic National Committee. Some free tickets went to Senators who voted against waiving taxes.

Inaugural Committee officials argue it is unfair to use receipts

Rival Factions Of UE Workers In Bitter Fights

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Clashes between left and right wing factions of the United Electrical Workers broke out today as an aftermath of the union's expulsion from the CIO.

A meeting of Westinghouse local 627 at Fairmont, W. Va., broke up in disorder. Local President John Eberhardt was reported seized by a mob and severely beaten. A similar disorder occurred in Sharon, Pa., at a meeting of the Westinghouse local 617. Two hundred left wing adherents walked out. More than 1200 remaining passed a resolution to disaffiliate from the expelled United Electrical Workers.

100 Babies Devoured

Child-Eating Hyenas Strike Terror Into Town in India

New Delhi, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Special watchmen armed with rifles and spears are maintaining a nightly vigil around the town of Barbanki, where packs of hyenas have terrorized the area and have eaten nearly 100 human babies in the last five months.

The animals, which in past years were never a serious menace to humans, have now become so bold they have torn babies from the arms of their mothers. Deputy Provincial Commissioner M. G. Kaul said it was "like looking for a needle in a haystack" to find them.

"We have gone out in jeeps and cars and on elephants, and we have hunted on foot, but we never come close enough on a hyena to draw a bead," he said.

Kaul said that search parties often had found human skulls and bone fragments stripped clean of flesh, where they had been dropped by the animals within a 12-mile radius of his headquarters.

The hyenas strike between midnight and dawn. They pick the smallest members of a sleeping family, and they move so silently the family rarely knows what has happened until it is too late.

Villagers have begun sleeping on their roofs. Even there they have not found complete safety.

In one instance, a hyena was said to have leaped or climbed to a roof where a woman was asleep with her baby. Awakened by the child's cries, the mother fought a gruesome tug of war before the animal wrenched the child from her arms and disappeared into the darkness.

The area was stricken with a epidemic of plague and cholera last year and many people believe the hyenas developed a taste for human flesh when they dug up carelessly buried corpses.

Others think the animals are descendants of a pair that killed several persons in an adjoining locality two years ago, and were thus nurtured on human flesh by their parents.

Crashed P-38 Pilot Implies Power Failed

Bolivian in Collision Which Cost 55 Lives May Have Attempted Emergency Landing

By Sy Fishbein
Post Reporter

The Bolivian P-38, which apparently disregarded tower instructions and plowed into an Eastern Airliner Tuesday, may have been limping in for an emergency landing, it was learned yesterday.

In a preliminary statement to the CAB, the P-38 pilot, Erick Rios Bridoux, the only survivor of the crash which killed all 55 aboard the airliner, said his aircraft had suffered a power loss.

While tower control authorities pointed out that they heard no request from Bridoux for emergency clearance, it was pointed out that there was noise in the tower when he first called in and there was some hesitation before he was cleared for a normal traffic approach.

In Air About 10 Minutes

The possibility that Bridoux was making an emergency approach is indicated by the fact that he was in the air only about 10 minutes, and that he continued to disregard tower directions, according to the tower control man, to make a 360-degree turn despite the fact that he said he had good radio reception all the way.

Sources close to the investigation said last night that it was not certain whether Bridoux's statement meant that his power loss was in his engine or in his radio, but experienced fliers said the term "power loss" almost always denotes engine trouble.

Last Wednesday Maj. German Pol, a Bolivian Air Force officer, said Bridoux had run two ground tests on the plane and had had repairs made on the radio and on the left engine, which had been leaking oil.

Reported Much Better

Doctors at Alexandria Hospital, where Bridoux is recuperating from a broken back and pneumonia, yesterday said the Bolivian was much better and may be in condition to make a more comprehensive statement today.

The time element with regard to the presence over the field of a Bolling Air Force Base B-25 which may have confused Bridoux, was clarified yesterday by Stanley Seltzer, chief airport traffic controller, who said he was "pretty certain" that the B-25 made a simulated instrument approach at 11:43 a. m.

Bridoux told investigators he saw a twin-engine, twin-tail plane over the field but made no mention of seeing the Eastern Airlines plane. Although not officially determined, time of the crash is believed to have been about 11:46 a. m.

Earlier reports said the B-25 was over National Airport between 11:30 and 11:35. With Seltzer's clarification, the B-25 cleared the field just a few minutes before the crash, and may still have been in its simulated approach when Bridoux first decided to come in for a landing.

This fact, it was noted, may have led Bridoux to believe that the B-25 was the plane he was to follow in. An experienced pilot

Red Conquest Of All China Seen in Year

Chungking Admits Failure to Unify; Capital Gloomy As Reds Advance

Chungking, Nov. 6 (AP).—Grave foreboding hangs over this Chinese Nationalist refugee capital today.

The general feeling is that the Communists probably will complete their conquest of China before the next year runs its course.

Some of the more pessimistic Nationalists doubt Chungking still will be provisional capital by the end of 1949.

Although Premier Yen Hsi-shan and other Nationalist leaders have just expressed anew their confidence in ultimate victory, this is not shared by their sympathizers.

Red Losses Reported High

The war news is scanty, but Chungking is in deepening gloom. The Defense Ministry had little to add to its Saturday acknowledgements the Reds were threatening Chungking's home province of Szechwan and had invaded adjoining Kweichow Province.

Official reports said the Reds had suffered heavy casualties in their thrust towards Enshih, 185 miles northeast of Chungking, but there were no details.

It is conceded, however, that the unity the Nationalists so desperately need to protract the struggle has not been achieved. There is also the feeling that, even if attained, it will be too late.

Many to Leave Capital

Although Chungking has been the capital for nearly three weeks, the United States, France and Italy are the only countries that have sent diplomatic representatives. Britain's affairs are handled by Consul General Michael Gillette, who does not have diplomatic status.

Tibet Leader Gets Red Promise of Escort

Chungking, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists have promised the Panchen Lama, second spiritual leader of Tibet, that they will escort him back to that mountainous state, Chinese newspapers reported today.

The Panchen Lama has been reported living in a monastery in Tsinghai Province, north of this province of Szechuan, an area recently overrun by the Red armies.

The Panchen Lama, a youth of 14, succeeded the former Panchen Lama who died in 1937 in China where he fled after an agreement with the then Dalai Lama.

The present 15-year-old Dalai Lama has been reported increasingly anti-Communist.

London dispatches reported the Communists, in overrunning Tsinghai Province, were feared to have captured the Panchen Lama and that they would use him to try to win over Tibet.

Reports from Chengtu place the Communists within 250 miles of the Tibetan border. Reports today said they had driven into Sikang Province, between here and Tibet.

Other reports said Nationalist troops were putting up a desperate fight to halt the Red advance on Kweiyang, capital of Kweichow, 200 miles below Chungking.

Britain's Postwar Troubles Just Starting, Writer Finds

(J. A. Livingston, author of the syndicated column, Business Outlook, has just completed an on-the-spot check of British economic, social and political developments. This is the first of a series of six articles in which he discusses America's stake in the British crisis.)

By J. A. Livingston

You can put this down in your future book. Britain no longer is a great power. Britain's postwar difficulties are just beginning. The Marshall Plan has cushioned the shock, but it hasn't solved the basic problem of making British dollar income meet dollar outgo. That's understandable. Two years of United States aid can't correct the economic ravishment of two wars and the industrial decadence of half a century. Only time and extra exertion, for a nation already tired, can do that.

So, it's no wonder that many Americans, including many Senators and Representatives, think we're pouring money down a sinkhole—about a billion dollars a year to Britain alone. They wonder if it isn't damn foolishness to support a Labor government given to socialistic measures, like national health service, and government ownership of the railroads, electric power plants, and the Bank of England.

They can make a good case, too, for writing off Britain. It's only a tiny kingdom, 2½ percent of the world's population, crowded on a group of islands which could fit into the area of Oregon. And its railroads, telephone systems, factories, and industrial organizations are pretty much nineteenth century by American standards.

Now that Britain no longer rules the waves and the world, the world needs some other policeman, some other nation to keep law, order, peace, and quiet. If Theodore Roosevelt were alive, he'd probably say that was America's "manifest destiny."

For us, a nation which thinks in terms of 1000 miles and 100 years in contrast to Britain's 100 miles and 1000 years, the problem is a new and weighty one. We must decide how and what to do with new, world-encompassing responsibilities.

To that end, the immediate and continuing annual cost in dollars of aiding Britain and the rest of Europe must be measured against long-run self-interest. The question is as simple as this: Will Marshall aid pay off? Will a solvent and economically strong Britain and Europe aid America in its new role? If so, at what price? And is it worth it?

America has already had a foretaste of what keeping the peace means. We intervened in Greece

World War II Hero

Reassignment of Marshal Made at Satellite's Request

London (Monday), Nov. 7 (AP).—Russia has assigned one of her top army marshals to serve in the Polish army, the Moscow radio announced today.

The announcement said Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, chief of the Soviet western armies and a World War II hero, has been released from service in the Soviet army and placed at disposal of the Polish government for duty with Poland's armed forces.

The assignment was made at the request of President Boleslaw Bierut of Poland, the radio said. Since the end of the war, Soviet army officers have helped train the Polish army, which has much Soviet equipment.

Bierut was quoted as having said he was "taking into consideration the Polish national origin of Marshal Rokossovsky and his popularity among the Polish people."

The broadcast said Bierut's request was granted because of the "friendly relations" between Poland and Russia.

After World War II Russia maintained considerable armed forces in Poland. As recently as February, 1947, reliable sources in Warsaw reported the number of these forces had been

Orders Out to Arrest 50,000 For Czech Mines, Vienna Told

Vienna, Austria, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Western diplomatic sources reported today that the Czech Interior Ministry had ordered the arrest of 50,000 Czech citizens to work in forced labor camps to boost industrial production.

The source said the order bore the number 2016-1049 and requested the arrest of "50,000 unreliable and hostile elements for work in labor camps."

The diplomats said the Czech wave of arrests was prompted by the complaints from Moscow that heavy industry and uranium mine output was lagging.

Western officials estimated that 10,000 persons, about 25 percent of them women, had been rounded up to date. They believed that 8000 of these, including many women, were now working in uranium mines.

Businessmen Sent To Mines, London Told

London, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Thousands of Czechoslovak businessmen seized in the Communist drive against the Czech middle class are being condemned without trial to work in uranium mines, authoritative reports from Prague said today.

Four forced labor camps have been built at Jachymov, heart of the Czech uranium district, in recent months. One of them is known to hold about 4000 prisoners and the others are believed to be of like size.

Blarney Stone Turns Up Missing In San Francisco

San Francisco, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—San Francisco's Irish were up in arms today and every Gaelic cop in town was working overtime.

Some one had stolen the Blarney Stone. And right from under the noses of half a thousand good Irishmen in St. Mary's Cathedral, too.

The stone, a 15-pound chunk of the Blarney Stone from Ireland's Blarney Castle, was lifted from the hall of the Cathedral last night at the height of St. Mary's gala pre-Thanksgiving festival.

The owner, Jim Cummins, said it had been on display—for kissing purposes—throughout the evening under guard.

Fund's Dollar Aid Tightened By U. S. Fears

By The Associated Press

Under pressure from the United States, the multibillion-dollar International Monetary Fund is tightening up its dollar aid to member countries, it was disclosed yesterday.

The American move was prompted by fears that, when Marshall Plan assistance ends in 1952, the fund will have gone through its dollar resources. This would wipe out the world's last major source of quick dollar help.

This Government, it was learned in diplomatic quarters, has advanced the proposal that the 49-nation fund henceforth obtain from any country applying for dollars, a specific date for repayment.

The fund was set up as a revolving pool of currencies. Instead, in its three-year life, it has become largely an exit funnel for dollars. Of $737,300,000 so far drawn, less than $2,500,000 has been repaid.

The United States also is emphasizing the need for repayment as promptly as possible of funds already drawn. The aim is twofold:

First, to make the fund truly a "revolving" one, so that collections from one country become available for use by another.

Second, to insure that the fund will have the resources in mid-1952 to step into its intended role as a ready source of the currencies needed in foreign trade.

The new policy came to light as the Fund announced its approval of dollar drawings by three countries in October. They were:

Twenty million dollars to Australia, the Dominion's first call upon the Fund.

Six million dollars to Yugoslavia, in addition to 3 million dollars sent to Marshal Tito's government in September.

$300,000 to Ethiopia, that country's second drawing.

While these actions might have

Board to Consider Crommelin

3 Captains in Navy Squabble Reported Up for Promotion

By David McConnell
NYHT News Service

Capt. John Crommelin and two other Navy captains involved in the recent Army-Navy-Air Force row over defense planning may receive serious consideration for promotion to rear admirals when a selection board meets November 14, it was learned yesterday.

The futures of the three officers are being closely watched by Navy men to see whether their blunt attacks on the Army and Air Force have injured their careers.

Captain Crommelin, who touched off a House Armed Services Committee investigation by releasing official Navy Department letters critical of the Defense Department, and Capts. Frederick M. Trapnell and Arleigh A. Burke, who both testified at the hearings, are eligible for promotion.

Although they are not on the 1949 promotion list, all three officers have been classified by their superiors as outstanding. Such a rating puts them in line to bypass others with seniority in line of service.

According to Armed Force, unofficial service publication, 27 of the 43 line captains advanced to flag rank in the last two years were in the same category as Crommelin, Trapnell and Burke.

The publication said that Admiral Richard Connolly, who also participated in the recent hearings, is scheduled to be senior member of the selections board. There are 39 officers on the 1949 promotion list, but the selections board is said to be almost certain to consider men even below the three captains on the seniority scale.

Of the three captains eligible for promotion, Crommelin is in the tightest spot. He is under suspension for his part in the Defense Department dispute over whether the Army and Air Force are attempting to throttle the Navy. It was learned yesterday that a state-

Red Version Of Peaceful Globe Given By Malenkov

Politiburo Member Says Soviet Doesn't Fear Competition of Capitalistic World

By Henry Shapiro

Moscow, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Russia does not want war, will do all it can to prevent it and intends to use its atomic energy for peaceful, productive purposes, Vice Premier Georgi M. Malenkov said tonight in the chief speech at an anniversary celebration of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution.

Malenkov outlined a Soviet foreign policy which includes world disarmament, outlawing atomic warfare, big power collaboration on Germany and Japan under the Potsdam agreement and free world trade.

He said Russia's borders are safer than ever before and that, conscious of its strength, it is fully confident. Russia does not fear peaceful competition with capitalist powers, he declared.

In denouncing American "atom diplomacy," Malenkov referred to foreign skepticism shown when Russia first announced, in 1947, that it had mastered the secret of nuclear energy.

"Let nobody think we fear bristling arms," Malenkov said. "Let not us but the imperialist aggressors and warmongers fear war."

He reminded his hearers that the

Lleras to Resign Inter-American Position Today

Alberto Lleras announced last night he will resign as secretary-general of the Organization of American States simultaneously with a Colombian protest expected today on a political statement he made last Monday.

At the time, Lleras called for a patriot's party in Colombia to calm political passions now causing pre-election violence.

A presidential election is scheduled for November 27. Lleras is a Liberal Party member and a former President of Colombia.

On instructions from the Conservative-dominated government, Colombian Ambassador Eduardo Zuleta Angel is scheduled to present a protest note to Haitian Ambassador Joseph Charles today. Charles is acting chairman of the OAS council.

"When Ambassador Charles receives Ambassador Zuleta's note of protest," Lleras said, "he will at the same time have my resignation as secretary-general of the Organization of American States."

Off-Year Election Chips Are Down

By the United Press

The chips are down for off-year elections which both major parties are watching to measure trends for the 1950 congressional campaign.

Attention on Tuesday's balloting centers on New York's senatorial race and the gubernatorial election in New Jersey.

Others under scrutiny include California's Fifth (San Francisco) District and New York's Tenth (Brooklyn), and municipal elections in a host of cities, among them New York, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia.

The results may show in some degree whether the Democrats have lost or gained ground since President Truman swept to a surprise victory a year ago.

Lehman for "Fair Deal"

New York's Senate contest is between Senator John Foster Dulles, Republican and former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, Democrat.

Lehman has indorsed Mr. Truman's "Fair Deal" program, lock, stock and barrel. Dulles has denounced it as the road to "statism."

The President went down the line for Lehman in a radio broadcast Saturday night to New York voters.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has stumped his State for Dulles, whom he appointed last summer when Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, resigned. The contest is for the rest of Wagner's term, which expires January 3, 1951.

In New Jersey, the race is between Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, Republican, running for reelection, and Elmer H. Wene, Democrat. The Republicans claim an advantage because New Jersey Democrats are split over the old Democratic organization headed by Frank Hague which is backing Wene.

Other Major Contests

Other major races include:

New York Representative—Mrs. Edna Kelly, Democrat-Liberal, is an odds-on favorite to beat George H. Fankuchen, Republican, and Max Torcin, American Labor, for the Brooklyn seat formerly held by the late Andrew L. Somers, Democrat.

California Representatives — Democrats expect to capture the San Francisco seat held for 25 years by the late Richard J. Welch, Republican. The Democratic candidate is John F. Shelley, president of the California State Federation of Labor. His opponents are Lloyd B. Cosgrove, Republican attorney, and Charles R. Garry, an attorney who supported Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party in 1945. The Fifth District is a labor stronghold and Welch was a strong union supporter who usually got the nominations of both the major parties under California's unique cross-filing system.

Boykin on Spot

Bear Story Told Truman Stretched

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Nobody can get a good bear story started like President Truman, Representative Frank Boykin (D., Ala.), said today. And if the President comes South this winter loaded for bear, he will just have to compromise on potting away at deer, turkey, quail and assorted lesser critters.

Not long ago the jovial Alabama Congressman talked to the President for an hour. As he left, Boykin asked the President: "What shall I tell them we talked about?" He meant the newspapermen.

"Just tell them you asked me to go on a bear hunt," Mr. Truman replied.

Boykin took the opportunity to invite the President seriously to go hunting with him in December on his 100,000-acre south Alabama fish and game preserve. But when Boykin dutifully told the reporters that he had asked Mr. Truman to go on a bear hunt the story was on its way.

It grew in the telling to the effect that Boykin, a timber and turpentine king, had a deep freeze full of bear steaks sliced off a big bruin he felled recently.

At that point the telephone started ringing in Alabama conservation director Bert Thomas' office because its against the law to kill bears in this state.

"If Boykin killed a bear, why can't we?" Nimrods wanted to know.

Thomas quickly assured each caller that it must be a mistake—that Boykin is too good a conservationist himself to shoot a bear in Alabama.

Thomas made a quick check and found that Boykin's freezer was full of Georgia bear steaks, the Okefenokee Swamp kind. The only other kind of bear on his place are live ones—and they must remain in that state.

Kaiser Divulges Plan to Produce Low-Priced Car

New York, Nov. 6. (AP)—Henry J. Kaiser disclosed today Kaiser-Frazer intends to produce a low-priced automobile.

Kaiser, chairman of the Kaiser-Frazer board announced a Nation-wide contest with cash awards of $200,000 for naming the car.

The announcement said the standard sized five-passenger car "will be the low-priced car in the low price field retailing within the income of millions who have never before been able to own a new automobile."

Kaiser didn't give the price. Other details were not specific. The car, the statement said, "is engineered to give its owner the lowest maintenance and operating costs of any standard automobile on the road and will be powered by an engine that will deliver remarkable gasoline mileage."

"Delivery in quanity in 1950" was promised.

Truman Population Forecast Questioned

By the United Press

President Truman's hired experts beg his pardon, but they think he is off the beam in predicting the Nation will have a population of 300 million in the next 100 to 150 years—or thereabouts.

Russia now has a big lead with a population estimated at 211,384,000 in 1947, against this country's 150 million. China still tops the list with 462,798,000 people (1948 census) and India is next with 388,977,000 (1941 figures).

But officials in a certain Government bureau—they said please don't even mention their bureau's name—frowned darkly on the President's forecast.

"Highly unlikely," said one whose job it is to know about such things. He added quickly that "experts" consider it "highly hazardous" to make population forecasts 100 years in advance—thus tacitly admitting that he could be wrong and Mr. Truman right.

This "expert" said the President appears to be assuming a declining mortality, continuing high birth rate, and a small amount of immigration.

He said the mortality and immigration factors look all right on the basis of present trends, but Mr. Truman's birth-rate estimate—assuming the President made one—"seems to be too high."

Mr. Truman, who sprang his 300 million figure on the American Society of Civil Engineers last Wednesday, pointed out that the Nation's population has doubled once since 1900, when it was about 75 million.

"Next year's census will show over 150 million people," he said. ". . . and now it is our business to anticipate at least a population of 300 million, maybe in the next 100 or 150 years. Maybe it won't take that long."

French A-Chief in Moscow

London, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Prof. Jean Frederic Joliot-Curie, head of France's Atomic Engergy Commission, arrived in Moscow today, according to a Moscow radio broadcast heard here. No reason was given for the visit.

Fund's Dollar Aid Tightened

been taken for a sign of greater liberality, resulting from the September devaluation of a score of currencies to more "realistic" values, officials said the reverse is true.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder tipped off this Government's concern in a letter to Representative Javits (R.-L., N. Y.) on October 4.

He noted that the Fund's holdings of dollars had been reduced until they now constitute 49 percent of the total quota deposited by the United States in the currency pool. A more rapid exhaustion, he said, "would clearly have been inadvisable."

(The United States originally deposited $2,700,000,000, of which about 75 percent was dollars and 25 percent gold. Actually about 35 percent of the dollars have been drawn.)

It now is apparent to countries seeking dollars that their chance of getting them will be improved by making a flat commitment on repayment.

The Monetary Fund has no hard and fast rules for repayment. Its rules say a country shall make repayment as its reserves of gold and dollars increase; but this is an uncertain yardstick because the reserves of many countries, ike Britain, are encumbered by huge external debts.

Noted Throat Specialists Report on 30-Day Test of Camel smokers...
NOT ONE SINGLE CASE OF THROAT IRRITATION due to smoking CAMELS!

Yes, these were the findings of noted throat specialists after a total of 2,470 weekly examinations of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.

"Camels agree with my throat!"

"The 30-Day Test was the first time I'd ever given Camels a real trial. Now I know how mild a cigarette can be! Camels for me!" H. Southwell, Jr., lawyer.

"The 30-Day Test changed my ideas about cigarette mildness. I'm smoking the brand that agrees with my throat—Camel!" Rita Tennant, secretary.

"The day I started was the day I began to get more fun out of smoking. That good-tasting flavor won me to Camels completely!" Mrs. Edna Wright, housewife.

College student Anne Hogan: "My doctor's report came as no surprise to me. My throat kept telling me: 'Camels are so mild—so cool and mild!'"

"Yes, I tested Camels for 30 days. I have real smoking proof that Camels agree with my throat!" William S. Davis, Jr., travel representative.

Meet Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cole of Fresh Meadows, New York, who made the test. Both found Camels the mildest cigarette they ever smoked.

Start your own 30-Day Camel MILDNESS Test Today!

ELAINE BASSETT, television stylist of New York City, reports on her 30-Day Test—

LONG BEFORE I GOT THE DOCTOR'S REPORT, I KNEW CAMELS AGREED WITH MY THROAT. THEY'RE THE MILDEST CIGARETTE I EVER SMOKED! BEST-TASTING, TOO!

MISS BASSETT is one of hundreds, coast to coast, who made the 30-Day Test of Camel Mildness under the observation of noted throat specialists. She smoked Camels for 30 days. Her throat specialist's report, after careful weekly examinations—NO SIGN OF IRRITATION due to smoking CAMELS!

Yes, make the test yourself. Smoke Camels, and only Camels, for the next 30 days. See if it doesn't add up to more smoking enjoyment than you've ever known before. Compare Camels in your "T-Zone" (T for taste, T for throat). See if you don't find Camels the mildest, best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked.

Mother Admits Fall Killed 'Kidnaped' Boy

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MRS. STELLA KOMOREK
. . . admits dropping baby

Clayville, N. Y., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Mrs. Stella Komorek tonight admitted her 6-week-old baby, Stephen, was killed when she accidentally dropped him on the kitchen floor. She told State police she made up a story the baby had been kidnaped to conceal the death from her husband.

Coroner Preston Clark, who conducted an inquest into the death, ruled it accidental and Mrs. Komorek was released.

Mrs. Komorek said she dropped Stephen while she was feeding him and on picking him up, discovered he was dead.

She said she went to the cellar and got a bag, placed the infant in it and then went to Fauqoit Creek, near the Komorek home, and threw the body into it.

"I don't know why I did it," she sobbed.

Mrs. Komorek's husband, Henry, stood beside his wife, with his arm around her, patting her compassionately as she told her story after long questionin; by State police.

Mrs. Komorek had touched of a wide search for a kidnaper after she told police a hysterical tale a strange man wearing a felt hat and a dark overcoat had entered the Komorek's modest home Friday night and snatched little Stephen from his crib.

Shortly after noon today the baby's body was discovered in shallow water of the creek near his home.

Mother Accused Of Cutting Throats Of Four Children

Sterling, Ill., Nov. 6 (AP).—A 35-year-old mother who bore four children in four years was arrested tonight and accused of slashing the throats of all four children.

The children are all in Sterling Hospital. Two of them were not expected to live, and the other two were in serious condition.

Police Chief Edward E. Ohda of Sterling identified the woman as Mrs. James Moughan, 35, wife of a steelworker. She was held without charge, but Ohda said she had made an oral statement that she had slashed the children's throats. She declined to sign a statement, Ohda said.

Wife Who Sleeps Better in Jail Spurns Twin Beds

Port Orchard, Wash., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Mrs. Margaret Piatt, who admits hiring two youths to kill her "too ardent husband," today rejected his third desperate reconciliation offer—twin beds.

She prefers a "restful night" in jail away from Wilford Piatt's ever-loving attentions.

The lanky Navy veteran and their two children visited Mrs. Piatt in jail today.

"Definitely not," Mrs. Piatt answered.

"Why?"

Irish's Frank Leahy Subs for Victor Hugo

Orono, Me., Nov. 6 (AP).—Victor Hugo never played football for Frank Leahy but apparently some people think he did.

Dr. Wilmarth H. Starr, head of the University of Maine's romance languages department, ordered 20 copies of Hugo's "Notre Dame de Paris" for a French class.

The order came through recently. Neatly boxed were 20 volumes of "Notre Dame: the T Formation."

Burglar Scared Off by Minister's Blanks

The Washington Post

A militant minister, who turned the other cheek by firing two blank cartridges ahead of real bullets, frightened off a burglar early yesterday morning.

He is the Rev. Clarence Dawson, 49, of 3130 O st. nw. His residence adjoins the Dumbarton Avenue Methodist Church, of which he is pastor.

He told police that near midnight, when his daughter, Olivia, 22, was dressing to go on duty as a nurse at George Washington University Hospital, she heard a noise on the ground floor of their residence, and roused him.

He took a target pistol, he said, turned on lights, and went to a stairway. A man emerged from his study on the floor below.

"What do you want, buddy?" Mr. Dawson inquired.

For answer, the man took a look at the gun and fled out the front door, Mr. Dawson told police. The minister went downstairs and outside, where he said he spotted the man across the street. He then fired the two blank cartridges in the air, and the intruder fled again.

Mr. Dawson said the man apparently entered his study through a window, but took nothing. Yesterday morning the minister found that the church also had been entered, by jimmying a door.

"The gun is one I have had since I served in World War I," he said. "I don't want to hurt anybody. I keep two blank cartridges in the cylinder ahead of real bullets so I can frighten a person without having to shoot him."

Rita in Hotel Awaiting Baby

Lausanne, Switzerland, Nov. 6 (AP).—Prince Aly Khan and Rita Hayworth, his screen star princess, have taken a hotel suite here and a Lausanne information service says they plan to stay until the birth of their baby three weeks hence.

A hotel official disclosed the couple arrived here by train from Paris yesterday and went into seclusion. The hotel refused to put any calls through to their suite and said all announcements would have to come from the information service.

The prince and the Hollywood actress were married May 27 on the Riviera.

Miss Hayworth has visited Lausanne several times recently to consult physicians at the Mont Choisi Clinique (hospital).

Miss Hayworth had her maternity wardrobe prepared by Jacques Fath, the Parisian designer who prepared her wedding gown.

Firemen Free Boy in Vault

An 11-year-old boy spent a frantic hour yesterday trapped inside an abandoned vault where he sought refuge from ear-pulling buddies.

The boy, Johnnie Arnold, 207 E st. nw., finally was rescued by members of Fire Rescue Squad No. 1, who were forced to carve through the vault's half-inch steel door with acetylene torches.

After dodging into the vault and swinging the steel dyoors shut, he said he heard the metallic click as the lock slipped into place.

His playmates, realizing his predicament, took the hinges off the vault door in a vain effort to free him, but the doors wouldn't budge. Then, frightened, they sent for aid.

While waiting, they sang songs to keep up Johnnie's courage.

Members of Rescue Squad No. 1 cut a small hole in the top of one door with torches to provide ventilation and then began in earnest on the door's bottom.

As later recounted by the boy, he half choked with smoke. Sparks set his clothes on fire briefly.

Finally the plate pealed back, the firemen tossed water to cool the steel and Johnnie emerged, his face tear-stained but smiling.

The whole thing happened, Johnnie said, while playing with members of the Stagecrafter's football team, a teen-age entry in the Boys Club League, and Johnnie's special heroes. He's their water boy, in fact.

Yesterday, the team returned from practice to their locker room in the cellar of the Stagecrafter's Club, 433 3d st. nw., with Johnnie tagging along.

The vault at one time held records of a Masonic lodge once located in the building.

Johnnie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Arnold.

British Labor Urged To Stress Job Merit

London, Nov. 6 (NYHT).—Herbert Morrison, Prime Minister Attlee's chief deputy, delivered a sharp lecture to British workers today on the eve of a showdown on wage policy between the Labor government and British Trades Union Congress, repreesnting eight million trade unionists.

Morrison said a man who "does a better day's work" should receive greater reward and indicated that these workers alone were entitled to press wage increase claims today.

Morrison, speaking at Preston, Lancashire, told Britons they were spending too much money on "fun and games." He said that nearly one quarter of the $22,400,000,000 spent on personal consumption last year went on alcoholic drinks, tobacco, movies, racing and "other private fun and games, without counting the very large stake in gambling."

The special economic committee of the TUC meets Monday to adopt a final policy on wages.

It is generally reported the committee last week rejected proposals for an absolute wage freeze. If the policy agreed upon Monday merely renews the TUC's 18-month-old plea for "restraint," then the government's wage stabilization program will become useless. "Restraint" so far has meant submission of wage increase claims by about four million workers.

British Woes Just Starting

and Turkey when the burden of empire, of keeping intact military outposts, became too great for a war-torn, impoverished Britain. And that's only a beginning. The Atlantic Pact was a logical and necessary next step.

Where Britain once faced and held back the Russian Czars, the United States now confronts and restrains the Russian commissars. But unlike Britain, which had far-flung military and naval outposts—Hongkong, India, Australia—the United States is not a colonial power. So the United States must depend on other nations for bases. Britain, for instance, as in the last war, is a mobilization point in case of war on the Continent.

Nor can it be said that Britain is inescapably insolvent. In the first six months of 1949, British exports plus income received from what's left of her investments and from shipping and so on, were only 40 million dollars less than her imports. That out of a total trade of nearly 10 billion dollars. So, Britain was virtually paying her own way. But in dealing with the United States—and the dollar area—Britain ran a 500-million-dollar deficit which had to be met by Marshall aid.

U. S. Exports Sure to Drop

Britain has already started to cut down dollar imports by 25 percent. In the process the British standard of living will drop. That's unavoidable. But for Americans, there's an unpleasant corollary. United States exports are also certain to drop—to the discomfiture of the agricultural South and the industrial North and Midwest.

In this respect, Britain's plight typifies the world's plight—and, in reverse, America's plight. The United States is too rich, too successful, industrially. During the last 35 years, we sold abroad about 104 billion dollars of goods and services in excess of purchases. The deficiency was met by: (1) 10 billion dollars of remittances abroad by Americans, (2) 10 billion dollars in United States investments, (3) gold shipments to the United States of 16 billion dollars, (4) American loans of 19 billion dollars, and (5) 49 billion dollars in American grants. Inference: The United States is in the position of the expert card player who has too much skill, all the chips, and holds the I. O. U.s of the other players. They wonder: Why continue?

If we're to have the military protection we seek against Russia, if we're to continue to export our surpluses, then we've got to arrange for the other players to get more chips. In the nineteenth century, when Britain was the world's great creditor nation, British investors and bankers made investments throughout the world—in the United States, in Brazil, Canada, the Argentine, Australia, India, Africa and so on. British investors made British pounds available so that others could buy British goods. And British manufacturers flourished on foreign sales. The United States, and this is envisioned by President Truman in his Point 4 program, must undertake a similar operation to aid undeveloped countries.

Cling to Trading Bloc

The British, recognizing the difficulties of doing business with the United States—scaling high tariffs, wangling goods through customs and competing in the toughest market in the world—cling desperately to the commonwealth countries as a trading bloc—with the pound sterling and trade preferences as the economic link. That's one reason, perhaps, why the British have been reluctant to commit themselves to a European economic union, so enthusiastically advocated by Paul G. Hoffman and others in the ECA.

Were Britain to form a separate bloc, the world would be split three ways economically and politically. The Iron Curtain countries; the sterling area; the dollar area. Such a division would increase the dangers of friction and the prospect of war.

In America's postwar role as the keeper of the peace, Britain can serve not only as a military outpost, but also as an inportant trading adjunct. British ships, as usual, can be expected to ply the seas, carrying goods of all kinds, including American. And British traders and bankers, with their historical knowledge of world political and economic conditions, can assist American traders and bankers in making investments abroad—in putting the dollars where they'll do most good to promote trade and keep the other players in the game.

U. S. Strength and War Plans Made Available To Any Power by Inter-Service Squabbling

By the United Press

If Russian intelligence agents made notes during the recent service unification uproar, the Kremlin now has first-class details on American military might, an analysis showed yesterday.

A warning that this probably had occurred was voiced by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, when he testified at the end of the inquiry.

Piecing together testimony to the House Armed Services Committee, official utterances growing out of the unification inquiry and other items of information, this general picture emerges:

1. The United States now has 1,594,000 men in its three armed services. The figure will be reduced by 87,000 during this fiscal year.

2. The Air Force and Navy together have 17,833 combat planes in a total of 32,306 aircraft of all types, both in and out of storage. The Navy has more combat planes than the Air Force but will drop below the Air Force in this fiscal year.

3. The Army has 10 divisions, five overseas, and one armored, two airborne and two infantry at home.

4. The Navy operates 268 warships and auxiliaries of which well above half are destroyers and 18 aircraft carriers. The total is being cut to 237 during this fiscal year.

It was further made clear to friends and enemies alike that strategic bombing is not just something whose effectiveness the Air Force and Navy argue interminably. It is a vital part of the national war plan, envisaging the B-36 and atomic bomb combination as first, a war deterrent and second, a means of quick retaliation if war comes.

'Voice of America' Compels Russians to Print More News

New York, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The Voice of America is talking the Russians into printing a little news in their newspapers, along with bales of cold war propaganda, Foy D. Kohler said today.

Kohler, new chief of the State Department's international broadcasting division, said the short-wave programs beamed at Russia and her satellites had forced the hand of the Soviets on a number of occasions.

As a result, he said, the Soviet press carries an estimated 100 percent more foreign news than it did before the "Voice" started calling Moscow in February, 1947. On at least one occasion, Moscow newspapers even printed a complete and accurate text of an international agreement, the North Atlantic Pact, because the "Voice" had announced it to Russian listeners first.

The Russians have greatly hampered the around-the-clock "Voice" broadcasts to the USSR with a jamming offensive which began April 24, Kohler said, but some programs of news and comment still are getting through.

Most programs aimed at the Iron Curtain satellites are being received without interference and have vast audiences, Kohler said.

"The effect of our broadcasts can be seen in terms of what is published in the Russian newspapers," Kohler said. "The case of Mme. Kasenkina, the Russian school teacher who jumped out of the window in New York, was broken by the Voice of America first.

"The Russians never would have mentioned it if we hadn't got it through to the people. The news spread like wildfire. The Russian version was different from ours when it finally was printed, and the Russian people didn't believe it."

Reds Strive to Erase Friendship With West

(Fifth in a Series)

By Joseph Newman

Paris, Nov. 6 (NYHT).—For the past four years the vast lands of the Soviet Union have been shaken by successive waves of nationalism and purges.

The entire country has been subjected to a nationalistic bath. Shrieks of "traitor," "antipatriot," "bourgeois cosmopolitan" sweep up an down the country, like the nationalistic leitmotif for the purges.

They were hurled at so many people during the time this correspondent was in Moscow that one could have received the wrong impression the Soviet Union was filled with traitors.

The latest trouble could be traced to the years of war. At that time the Soviet people were told that they had strong allies in the West who were helping them in the death struggle against the Nazi invader.

The Americans, British and French were allied with the Russians by the blood of the battlefield. And in addition American trucks and equipment could be seen everywhere. Thousands of Russians will never forget the food in American-labeled cans that saved them when they were starving.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt became a national hero. It seemed that the strugle between Communist Russia and its capitalist allies of the West was over. Premier Stalin said they could get together notwithstanding ideological difference, and this time it seemed that he meant what he said.

The Russians became interested in Niagara Falls and the natural wonders of their allied countries. Economist Eugen Varga gathered material showing that the war had brought changes in the economy of the western powers which were able to evolve peacefully, toward a planned economy.

Friendship and admiration for the West had penetrated every corner of the Soviet Union. This had to be uprooted, "realistically, ruthlessly and totally, immediately speech at a meeting of Soviet writers: "They saw in their dreams that the military collaboration with certain capitalist countries, generated by circumstances of the war against a common foe, would turn into a postwar peace idyll."

These dreams had to be wiped out. Those who entertained them were branded spies, traitors, gangsters, bourgeois bastards and homeless cosmopolitans who had conspired against the Communist Party, the government and the state.

Trials, held behind closed doors, were staged in every field to stamp out the dream and those who had been visited by it. Economists assembled to condemn Professor Varga for his conciliatory economic ideas. Philosophers met to exposed ideological heresies.

Georgi Fyodorovich Alexandrov wrote a book for which he received a 100,000-ruble Stalin prize in 1946. After the line changed, he was purged for writing the same book and in 1947 he was ousted as propaganda chief of the Communist Party. The book said Marxism had evolutionary antecedents in the West.

Books were purged for giving the names of foreigners as inventors of the electric light, radio and all other scientific developments, past and present. The proper Russian names were substituted.

In place of the foreigner the Russian was given other idols to worship: the Soviet Man and Mother Russia.

The campaign, though draped in ideological terms, had nothing whatever to do with communism.

Prof. S. Kovalev revealed its purpose at a public lecture. Patriotism, he said, was necessary to arouse the Soviet citizen to perform self-sacrificing work and to contribute to the solution of present and future problems.

The aim, then, was to maintain wartime patriotism and nationalism during the postwar period as an instrument to mobilize the So-

AP in Error On Red Deputy

Moscow, Nov. 6 (AP).—Portraits of all 12 members of the Politburo are on display for the thirty-second anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution, including that of L. M. Kaganovich, a deputy president of the Council of Ministers.

An Associated Press dispatch Saturday night, reporting omission of Kaganovich's portrait and listing but 11 members, was in error.

(On the basis of the list, the AP's New York foreign desk inserted bracketed comment that the absence of Kaganovich's portrait indicated he had been dropped from the Politburo. The fact his picture is up shows, instead, that he remains in good standing.

(The last man to be dropped was Nikolai Voznesensky, who was replaced in March as chairman of the state planning commission and relieved of his duties as a deputy prime minister. His picture did not appear for the May Day celebration May 1.)

niversary speech in the presence of about 2000 persons, including Admiral Alan G. Kirk, American Ambassdor, and other members of the foreign Diplomatic Corps.

"Soviet science is directed to the cause of peace and the flourishing of our motherland," Malenkov said.

"Atomic energy in the hands of the imperialists is the source of the production of death-dealing weapons, whereas in the hands of the Soviet people it must and will serve as a mighty weapon of unprecedented technical progress and to further the speedy growth of the productive forces of our country. . . .

"The American empire exceeds all earlier empires. The American plan is borrowed from the mad plans of Hitler and Tanaka but is different in that it exceeds the the plans of both together.

(Baron Giichi Tanaka, 1927 Japanese Premier, was supposed to have outlined a program for Japanese domination of the Far East and eventually of the world.)

"Their atom diplomacy is fully exposed. The United States of America thought they had a monopoly. But in fact the Soviet Union possesses the atomic weapon."

Malenkov was given tumultuous applause when he continued:

"The Soviet Union does not want war and will do everything to prevent war."

The very principles of Russia's social'sm oppose war, Malenkov said, and Russia does not need foreign expansion or colonial exploitation.

On the contrary, he said, the imperialist powers, fearing peaceful competition, hope for war. The Soviet Union, he said, does not fear peaceful competition with capitalistic powers.

Malenkov defined Soviet foreign policy as consisting of:

Collaboration among the great powers, fulfillment of the decisions of the Potsdam conference on Germany, disarmament, the outlawing of atomic warfare, peaceful regulation of the Japanese problem in aecordance with the Potsdam agreement, and trade with all countries.

Emphasizing the present safety of Russia's borders, Malenkov pointed to the friendly "People's Democracies" now on the western side, the fact that the defense of Leningrad is now strong, the presence in East Asia of the Mongolian Republic, the new Korean "People's Republic" — "A friendly neighbor" — and Russia's possession of the Kurile islands and Sakhalin in the Pacific.

Discussing the internal situation, Malenkov said:

1. Production now exceeds the prewar level and the first postwar five year plan will be fulfilled ahead of schedule. In 10 months of this year there has been a 20 percent increase in production as compared with last year.

2. Labor productivity is up 14 percent over last year.

3. The harvest this year will exceed the prewar level. Some 150,000 tractors and 29,000 combines will be delivered to Soviet farmers this year.

Explosives Found at U. S. Men's Club

Berlin, Nov. 6 (AP).—Five sticks of dynamite were found today lying against a wall of the American enlisted men's club near the headquarters of the United States high commission in Berlin.

American authorities said the dynamite lacked a fuse, so the danger of an explosion was virtually nil.

A cleaning woman found the sticks early in the morning. United States authorities speculated that the explosive was placed near the club by a jilted German man as a protest against the appearance of German girls in the American club.

70 Uranium Miners Die—Berlin

Berlin, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The anti-Russian newspaper Social Democrat said today that 70 men had been killed in a uranium mine explosion in the Erz Mountains near the Czechoslovakian border.

The newspaper, which gave no source for its information, said the accident occurred several days ago. It blamed carelessness on the part of a Russian guard for explosion of a powder magazine.

The newspaper reported yesterday that pamphlets had been distributed among German workers in the uranium mines urging them to sabotage the mines and flee to friendly refugee camps in Western Germany.

The British-licensed Telegraf printed two more anti-Soviet pamphlets in Russian and in German today which it said were written by a Russian underground organization.

Friendship and admiration for the West had penetrated every corner of the Soviet Union. This had to be uprooted, "realistically, ruthlessly and totally, immediately after the war, when Soviet rulers decided to part company with the Western Allies and make a bid for domination not only of Eastern Europe but of the entire continent.

Foreigners who had been friends had to be considered enemies and not just ordinary enemies but the worst Russia ever had. The honeymoon with the western powers was over.

Alexander Fadeyev and Konstantin Simonov led the Communist Party's faithful literary team in conducting the war against Soviet writers who had been stained with friendly spots.

The latter exposed the sin they had committed in a bombastic speech at a meeting of Soviet writers: "They saw in their dreams that the military collaboration with certain capitalist countries, generated by circumstances of the war against a common foe, would turn into a postwar peace idyll."

These dreams had to be wiped out. Those who entertained them were branded spies, traitors, gangsters, bourgeois bastards and homeless cosmopolitans who had conspired against the Communist Party, the government and the state.

The aim, then, was to maintain wartime patriotism and nationalism during the postwar period as an instrument to mobilize the Soviet masses for new battles—the internal one of production and the international one of extending the cause of Russia, carefully identified with the cause of communism. Patriotism helped the poor worker to divert his mind from personal problems and to concentrate on the bigger, impersonal ones.

Dodd will join Vincent Sauchelli, agricultural research director for the Davison Chemical Corp. of Baltimore, and Frank K. Lawler, editor of Food Industries, in a symposium before the Chemical Engineers' Club of Washington at 8 p. m., in the Jefferson Memorial Auditorium of the Department of Agriculture, 14th st. and Independence ave. sw.

Anderson Moderator

Moderator will be Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N. Mex.), former Secretary of Agriculture.

Dodd will outline trends in food supply and demand throughout the world, while Sauchelli will discuss the future possibilities of agronomy, the science of crop production and soil management. Lawler's subject will be technological aids in processing, storage and distribution of foods to prevent waste.

Senator Anderson will discuss the role of the Federal Government in food production policies.

Factors in Safe Driving

Factors involved in the safe driving of automobiles will be discussed at a dinner meeting of the Washington Chapter, American Society of Safety Engineers, scheduled for 6:30 p. m. on Tuesday.

The meeting, to be held in the officers' mess at the Naval Gun Factory, will open with a talk on vision and safe driving by Dr. Edwin H. Silver, member of the night vision committee of the National Research Council.

A panel discussion will follow, participated in by Dr. Vern K. Harvey, medical director of the Civil Service Commission, and Dr. J. V. Waits, personnel psychologist of the Capital Transit Co. Donald Buck, assistant to the safety director of the Army Department, will speak on applied driver training.

Other meetings of scientific societies scheduled for this week are listed below. The public is invited to all these sessions:

TODAY

Engineers Club of Washington, 8 p. m., club headquarters, National Theater Bldg. "Local Television Networks," by William C. Warman, C. & P. Telephone Co.

WEDNESDAY

Washington Chapter, American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, 7 p. m., dinner, Hotel 2400. "About Gas," by Leon Ourusoff, Washington Gas Light Co.

Geological Society of Washington, 8 p. m., Cosmos Club. "Structural History of the Michigan Basin," G. H. Cohee, fuels section, United States Geological Survey; "Geology of the Ethiopia-Somaliland Region, East Africa," Prof. M. H. Taylor, Columbia University.

THURSDAY

Washington Section, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, 8 p. m., Pepco auditorium, 10th and E sts. nw. "The New Cadillac Engine," H. F. Barr, Cadillac Motor Car Division, General Motors Corp.

Potomac Chapter No. 48, American Society of Tool Engineers, 8 p. m., 1625 Prince st., Alexandria. "Glass as a Tool," R. H. Miller, technical sales engineer.

Georgetown Body Aroused About Trees

An alleged breach of faith by the District government with Georgetown citizens over shelving removal of trees will be discussed by the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown today at 8 p. m. in the Georgetown Library.

Several members urged the District to postpone a project for the widening of Wisconsin ave. in the vicinity of Volta pl., P and Q sts. nw. until the effects of the new Whitehurst Freeway in reducing traffic are checked in the area.

Mrs. Frank A. West, 3406 R st. nw., wrote to Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), urging him to intercede. On October 11, she received a letter from A. L. Wheeler, Senate District Committee staff member, saying the matter had been referred to him.

He said that he had been informed by the Engineer's Department of the District government that the Engineer Commissioner had issued an order that "no trees are to be cut at this time," and that alternate plans were under study in the hope that "it will not be necessary to remove the trees at any time."

Harold B. Stanton, association president, said yesterday that shortly after this trees were removed on the east side of Wisconsin ave. near Q st., at P and Wisconsin and at Volta pl. and Wisconsin.

The Highway Department said work on Q st. east of Wisconsin has been deferred, but the project west of Wisconsin and on Wisconsin is going ahead. Department spokesmen knew of no commitment to delay the remainder of the program aimed at clearing traffic congestion in the area.

Firestone Sees U. S. Secure in Rubber

San Francisco, Nov. 6 (AP).—This country has become self-sufficient in rubber, says Leonard K. Firestone, president of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. of California.

He told a section of the American Chemical Society convention last night that "with our synthetic plants and a good stockpile of natural rubber, our position is secure.

"Never again will we be in the desperate plight into which we were thrown after Pearl Harbor."

Citizen Overturn

The surprise election of Herbert P. Leeman to be head of the Federation of Citizens Associations is the culmination of unrest that has been growing within the federation for several years. Apparently a small group within the federation had come to believe that they owned it. Many delegates are said to have felt that the officials have been intolerant of opposition and criticism and somewhat highhanded in the conduct of the federation's meetings. There seemed to be a disposition also to keep control within a small, well intrenched faction. Mr. Leeman's election came as the climax of a revolt against this tendency to make the federation serve the interests of a clique rather than the whole community.

We doubt that any basic change in the federation's policies is likely to result from the overturn. In his statement to reporters Mr. Leeman proposed nothing more radical than plans to improve the federation's newspaper and to aid member bodies to increase their membership and interest in community affairs. One must remember also that several members of the so-called "old guard" were elected to the federation's executive board in accord with the tradition of giving such posts to past presidents and the defeated candidate for the presidency. There is ground for hope, however, that Mr. Leeman, a lawyer, a former president of a union, and the representative of the Society of Natives, will bring the federation new vigor and a more tolerant spirit. If he succeeds in restoring the feeling that federation speaks in the interests of the community as a whole, his achievement will be substantial.

Anniversary

Today, we need hardly remind you, is the thirty-second anniversary of what was beyond all doubt the most important historical event of the twentieth century. In Petrograd on November 7, 1917, Trotsky's Red Guards, aided by the sailors of the Kronstadt fleet, decisively defeated the last remaining defenders of the post-revolutionary provisional government of Russia, thereby making possible the seizure of power by the Bolshevik Party.

Most of the figures of the November revolution have perished, the Kronstadt sailors for some half-forgotten mutiny against the regime they helped to establish, Trotsky at the hands of an assassin who is generally believed to have been an agent of the GPU. Others have perished in the cellars of the GPU prisons and still others in the camps of the GULAG, or slave trust. But it will be decades and perhaps centuries before the forces unleashed upon the world by the November Revolution have expended themselves.

The ultimate consequences of the Bolshevist revolution cannot be foreseen by any member of our generation. But it is now possible to determine their general direction. We have observed enough to realize that their direction is contrary to the tendency of historical evolution in western society from the sixteenth century and perhaps from the beginnings of classical antiquity. It is also contrary to the direction anticipated by the prerevolutionary prophets such as Marx and Engels. On this thirty-second anniversary of the triumph of Marxism in Russia, the ideas of the "classless society" and the "withering away of the state" seem even more preposterous than they might have seemed in the heyday of Louis XIV or of Augustus Caesar, and even more remote from contemporary realities in Russia and the countries that have come under its domination than from life in the rest of the world.

This is made plain in a series of articles in the New York Herald Tribune by Mr. Joseph Newman, formerly the Moscow correspondent of that newspaper. Mr. Newman describes the new class structure of the classless society, how the whole power has been absorbed into the hands of a tight oligarchy, living in barbaric luxury, which gives every sign of attempting to perpetuate itself on hereditary principles. He shows how the workers of the workers' republic are being exploited with a ruthlessness that would have shocked the inhabitants of a sixteenth century Spanish-American encomienda. He shows how in the Socialist fatherland all the worst evils of the capitalist system have been adopted, such as piecework and sweated labor, evil working conditions and slum existence, while the liberties permitted even to workers in bourgeois societies, such as the right to change one's employment, have been abolished. He describes the ruthless penal system under which a hungry woman can be sentenced to eight years in a slave camp for stealing a few vegetables. And the principle of "production for use and not for profit" has been reconciled to a system whereby the Soviet citizen must pay to enter a municipal park, and for tuition in state schools.

Big Government

One thing is clear in the present controversy over the so-called welfare state: it is no longer a contest between Government regulation and laissez faire. The plea for complete freedom from Government regulations in the public interest is heard today from only a few extremists, of whom John L. Lewis is probably the most notable. To be sure, there is still much concern about the bigness of the Government, but the sharpest protest seems to arise not so much from the size of the Government as from the nature of some of the activities which the Administration proposes to undertake.

Senator Taft is sometimes represented as a typical reactionary who wishes to go back to the good old days, but in a recent article in Collier's the Senator from Ohio places himself definitely on the side of the regulators. Indeed, he did that in the Taft-Hartley Act, for which he is so often denounced by the welfare statists. In our present state of social and economic development we do not see how any unbiased person can avoid the conclusion that the Government must intervene to maintain some semblance of balance between the gigantic economic forces that are struggling for dominance. Complete victory for finance capitalism would probably drive us into some form of cartelism. Complete victory for labor would probably carry us into syndicalism. In either instance the danger of loss of liberty for the individual would be great.

Senator Taft specifies four reasons why we must have governmental regulations. (1) To protect liberty. (2) To maintain equality of opportunity so far as that is feasible without destroying freedom. (3) To minimize hardships and poverty through various forms of aid to the sick, the aged, the young and the unfortunate. (4) To prevent or alleviate depressions through credit control, reasonable farm price supports, and so forth. There will be much disagreement as to how far some of these controls should go and as to what areas of our economic life should be subject to regulation. But there is an overpowering argument for continuing adequate governmental regulation of many aspects of our economy, and at the same time for preventing this regulation from going so far as to strangle free enterprise.

Much confusion over the evolution of our national economy might be eliminated if there were agreement on the proper role for the Government to play. In our opinion, the Government's role should continue to be in general that of the regulator. The real danger arises when the Government branches out into direct competition with private enterprise and when it attempts to put an industry or profession into a strait jacket, as in the proposal for compulsory health insurance. Big government will have its hands full if it corrects the abuses in our free-enterprise system, prevents any faction from paralyzing our highly integrated economy, regulates every natural monopoly, protects the rights of individuals, and keeps the door of opportunity open. Only a strong and stable Government can perform this essential task effectively. Those who would prevent the Government from rendering this essential service are not hindering the advancement of the welfare state but are contributing to the destruction of free enterprise through neglect of its excesses.

Cost-Of-Living Changes

Economists use the consumers' price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, in conjunction with data on earnings, to estimate changes in the real income or purchasing power of workers, as distinguished from purely monetary changes. Employers and employes increasingly rely on the index to determine whether wage increases are required to offset a rise in living costs. Businessmen also find it useful as a guide to marketing policy. It is a tribute to the integrity and competence of BLS statisticians that this index is so widely accepted by the public as a measure of changes in living costs.

The public appears to be less conscious of the defects and limitations of the index than are the statisticians who assemble and compile the information on which it is based. The BLS, for instance, has repeatedly pointed out that its consumers' price index measures only average changes in retail prices of goods, rents, and services purchased by moderate income families living in large cities. Moreover, changes in retail prices are weighted by 1934-36 average expenditures of families whose annual incomes averaged $1524 in 1934-36. Today the earnings of this moderate income group are much higher and family spending patterns have changed. Consequently, a comprehensive revision of the index is urgently needed to bring it up to date and make it a more accurate indicator of changes in living costs. Data on rentals are also inadequate, and the BLS believes that its rent index is too low.

The long overdue revision of the index will be launched this month. It is a formidable undertaking. Detailed information will be obtained about the expenditures of more than 20,000 typical families, hundreds of thousands of retail price quotations will be assembled, and a housing survey will be made. A committee of experts has been appointed by the American Statistical Association to give advice to the Commissioner of Labor Statistics and his assistants in charge of the work. The cost of the undertaking will approximate four million dollars, and three years will be required to complete it.

Adjustments in the index resulting from the survey will, of course, necessitate revision of earlier living cost indices to make continuous comparisons possible. These adjustments will, in turn, lead to modifications of some wage agreements that call for changes in rates of pay in accord with changes in living costs. However, the troublesome incidental adjustments that may be required after revision will be a small price to pay for the benefits resulting from an improved consumers' price index that will encourage the public to make even greater use of it as a regulator of wage agreements and other contracts.

Tennessee Millstone

The people of Tennessee are living under a rigid constitution adopted 79 years ago and not since amended. The dangers inherent in such ironclad legalism have often been demonstrated through the State's unsuccessful efforts to get rid of the poll tax, which is embedded in its basic law. So difficult is the amending process under this post-Civil War constitution that an effort is at last being made to assemble a limited constitutional convention. Voters will have an opportunity to decide at the polls tomorrow whether they wish to free themselves from the strait jacket that a generation long since departed imposed upon them.

If the calling of a State constitutional convention is approved, as recommended by a commission headed by William L. Frierson, former Mayor of Chattanooga, the voters will then have an opportunity to choose their own delegates to that convention. And after completion of its work, the voters will again have a chance to pass judgment on the proposed changes, item by item. The convention itself will be limited to the consideration of nine specific changes in the constitution broadening the tax power, permitting representation according to population instead of the number of qualified voters, increasing the salaries of legislators, extending the Governor's term from two to four years and broadening his veto powers, facilitating home rule for towns and cities, and making it possible for the Legislature to repeal the poll tax.

Reports from Tennessee indicate that the proposal has won widespread support. This is not surprising, for many residents of that State have come to feel that the obsolete provisions in their constitution are a millstone around the neck of progress. It is a lesson that numerous other States have already learned. The denial of power to make government operate efficiently in the limited sphere to which its activities are confined is one of the greatest mistakes liberty-loving people are likely to make. Constitutions that nail down essential rights of the people and prescribe the general form of government are a bulwark of freedom. But constitutions that merely impose the dead hand of the past upon the present in respect of such details as legislative salaries and the collection of poll taxes invite a breakdown in government. Under the American theory, revolution is intolerable only so long as the people can effect changes peacefully at the polls. For that reason the decision in Tennessee will be of interest far beyond the boundaries of the State.

Royal Moralizing

The full text of the speech in which Princess Elizabeth admonished Britons on the high divorce rate and the lax morals in Britain makes the princess less a platitudinous scold than her remarks out of context indicated. True, her statement, "we live in an age of growing self-indulgence, of hardening materialism and of falling moral standards," has been the lament of the ages, but at least she prefaced it with "for even if we make allowance for the rosy hue in which the passage of years colours the past, we can hardly help admitting . . ." Also in her remarks on marriage to the Mothers' Union, she admitted that "in time of war and housing shortages it is difficult for people to live normal married lives." She went on to emphasize the fine service "women could perform by helping make marriages permanent." And in her appeal for "sound Christian teaching" in homes, she joined the psychologists as well as the moralists of the day in emphasizing that example is more important than precept.

Probably the part of the princess' speech that has caused the loudest "Amen!" everywhere from parents of adolescents was that about the "great fear in our generation of being labeled priggish." That might seem to be a fairly recent fear since copybook maxims and Alger-boy rectitude have not been gone long from the scene. But no doubt someone will come up showing that Peter the Hermit said the same thing in the twelfth century. At least the princess or her ghost writer did not try to dress up old truisms in modern scientific or ethical garb. They were said plainly, directly in the traditional way, as befits royal moralizing.

The Navy's War

The war between the Navy and the United States is currently going against us.

The Navy's admirals are chaining themselves to their battleships, chanting all the while that a great wrong has been done them, and to their man Louis Denfeld. "All he did," they argue, "was to exercise his right of free speech."

This barbaric persecution of the Navy, like the persecution of the Sudeten Germans, makes exciting reading. Especially for those who would rather be excited than thoughtful.

But I bring you a message of cheer and hope in these dark days, and bid you stand fast against the time when men will again gather their senses and resume a proper course. When that day comes, the Navy will lose its holy war.

Then men will realize that, in the American tradition, military policies are determined by civilians; a civilian Secretary, a civilian President, and a civilian Congress. Selected, if you please, by civilian voters.

It is the will of the people, the Congress and the President that our armed forces be unified. Admiral Denfeld was duty bound to carry out that assignment. He gave his word that he would.

When he found himself unable to keep his pledge, he should have resigned from his post and continued an honorable fight for his principles, as a civilian.

Instead, he made it necessary for his superiors to replace him with another man. Real "reprisal" would have stripped him of his rank and thrown him out of the Navy in disgrace. But Mr. Truman was more concerned with unification than reprisal, and acted with admirable restraint.

Nevertheless, Navy egocentrics have chosen to go to war over the issue. To hear them tell the story, the Navy's brass hasn't betrayed the Nation; the Nation has betrayed the Navy's brass.

I submit that in a controversy between the Navy and the will of the people, we can look to the outcome with complete serenity. And I fully expect that, when the war is over, the Navy will again be one of this country's stanchest allies. W. G.
Washington.

Arizona Parkway

The Whitehurst Freeway, through swelling K st. traffic, has resulted in serious jams at Washington Circle. Yet the District and the National Park Service have agreed to construct, as soon as funds are available, four-lane Arizona pkwy. down Foundry Branch from Wisconsin ave. near Tenley Circle to Canal rd., primarily designed to divert to the Freeway traffic from Wisconsin and Massachusetts aves. This would greatly increase the strain on Washington Circle.

Arizona pkwy. would cost many hundred thousand dollars, for it would be carved right out of the woods and would involve building various overpasses. It would bisect Glover-Archbold Park, a woods presented to the District in the expectation it would be kept highwayless. It would destroy certain recreational and wildlife values unusual for a large city.

Presumably the new Park and Planning Commission plan will tackle Washington's traffic problem in an over-all manner, including such angles as the possible effects of individual highway projects on adjacent communities and methods for preserving recreational and wildlife values. Meanwhile it would seem only common sense to defer expensive Arizona pkwy. with its destruction of natural values and dubious effect on adjacent neighborhoods, until we know more definitely that any easing of traffic it may bring to certain streets will not be at the expense of traffic jams for others.
CONSTANT SOUTHWORTH,
Washington.

Atom Immorality

I find that even among informed and intelligent people the most important issue concerning the controversy over the use of the B-36 is overlooked. It means that the decision is being made whether or not we are to commit ourselves to the use of atomic bombs in warfare.

A vast number of people, I feel sure, who willingly served either in the services or (due to age or sex) in war production factories will in the next war be pacificists rather than be accountable for repetitions of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Patriotism will then be limited to "our gang against their gang," and have no relation to honor, humanity, international law—all that makes for an enlightened civilization. Fear will then precipitate the most frightened nation into the first step of aggression—"Let us do unto others what we fear they will do unto us—and do it first."

I feel that the policy of those who do not feel such measures to be "morally reprehensible" is sweeping us to moral ruin. The feeling in the hearts of a people that their country is worth loving is the greatest of all military potentials. Things have been invented which are too terrible to inflict upon others. Up to a certain point we risk—and are proud to do so—our lives. Beyond that point we lose our very souls. RUTH THOMAS.
Newport, R. I.

Central High School

Can Dr. Corning be holding out against the transfer of Central High School to the use of Negro students mainly because of sentiment? It has been suggested to me by persons close to the school situation that this is true—that many white alumni of Central, including Dr. Corning, oppose its transfer chiefly for this reason.

Many of Dr. Corning's own teachers and principals feel that this is an indefensible position, from the point of view of the racial make-up of the community around Central, and because of the few white students now "rattling" around in this large building.

How much of our juvenile delinquency might come from high school students who are forced to go to school for one of three shifts a day? INTERESTED.
Washington.

Wage-Price Balance

In Ysabel and Robert Rennie's able article of November 1, it is stated that "a full employment policy with teeth in it entails a national wage policy and that there is no avoiding it." This is the truth but is only half the truth. This alone could never work, would be unfair and would be in effect economic slavery. Had they given the whole truth they would have added prices. When we get wages geared to prices, so that a man's wages reflect a certain standard of living, instead of more dollars, with less bread for the same dollars, or perhaps more dollars, then we will have no more strikes J. C. BELLMAN.
Washington.

Musical Insanity

The current hullabaloo over the installation of radios in streetcars fails to stress the affinity between Americans and noise. Opponents of transit radios, in a dither over the issue, cannot see the distinguished public service being performed by the Capital Transit Co. Of course, if the company makes a few bucks out of this service so much the better for them and the public who will eventually realize greater benefits from this additional income.

After all buses and streetcars have been equipped with radios, the company doubtless will add pin-ball and popcorn machines. The dulcet sounds of popcorn crunching will blend beautifully with the honey-like tones of radio announcers and add immeasurably to the early morning happiness of the streetcar riders, many of whom start the day grouchy and in low spirits.

Only an American can chew bubble gum, talk, read and listen to the radio simultaneously. No other civilized nation in all history has achieved these intellectual heights. The fact that we have more people in more insane asylums than any other country is only added proof that we do things on a big scale.

It would be a shame, then, to deprive Washington streetcar riders of this cacophony to which, as American citizens, they are entitled. Popcorn brigades should be organized now to guarantee the streetcar sale of this monstrous item. Perhaps the transit company can see a buck in this venture, too!
EUGENE KELLY.

Berea College

The article in your issue of October 30 on the Donnell Youngs and their weaving was very interesting. However, one paragraph had such a glaring mistake that it cast its reflection of error on the rest of the story.

Berea College in Kentucky teaches weaving, to be sure; but it also teaches regular academic subjects to students who come from normal rural homes and who would no more think of carrying "firearms" to school than would Virginia students of fox-hunting parents. There may have been a time in the distant past when occasionally a student was asked to check his firearm with the dean's office, but not in the day when Mrs. Donnell Young went to Berea to study weaving.

As for "beans served with every meal," I am sure Mrs. Young could not have told that story. Although the meals at Berea are simple, they are as well-balanced as those served in the best of college dining rooms. The medical staff of Berea College Hospital and the dietitians of the boarding halls have made almost a fetish of good nutrition.

I speak of these things from a knowledge gained in 13 years of living in Berea when my husband was on the history and political staff there.

More Fire Hazards

After the fire in the Postoffice, I wonder if that same thing might happen to some of the old Government buildings.

If the fire marshal ever got into the City Postoffice at Massachusetts ave. and North Capitol he really would blow his top at the crude wiring, dirt and trash. Why endanger the lives of men who have children and wives, when a few inspections would help? LETTER CARRIER.

Sheehy's Defense

I should like to register a vigorous protest against the ill-advised and emotional outburst of William A. Hayes (letter published November 2) in saying he is sure that he speaks for many other Roman Catholics in believing that Msgr. Maurice Sheehy spoke out of turn in defending Admiral Denfeld.

I am in full accord with the monsignor's view.

6 And 25 Make 31

LEST EVERYONE forget the changed world we are living in, it might be wise to begin each day by repeating, "6 and 25 make 31, and 25 makes 56." The incantation will have meaning, for these figures are the best available estimates of the annual Soviet production of atomic weapons.

In other words, if the intelligence experts have calculated correctly, the Kremlin will possess a stockpile of six atomic bombs by September, 1950; of 31 by September, 1951; and of 56 by September, 1952. Twenty-five atomic bombs per annum is considered the maximum Russian output. Production is therefore expected to continue at this rate until the Soviet empire's exploitable stocks of fissionable raw stuff have finally been exhausted.

Forecasts like this must of course be taken with a grain of salt, even when they emanate from authoritative sources. There is no way of telling whether the analysts have now over-rated Soviet capabilities, or are still erring on the low side as in the past. All that can be said for these figures is that they represent the best guess available, concerning the most critical single factor in the grim timetable of world events. As such, however, these figures must be taken very seriously indeed, until more dependable data have been secured.

THE MEANING of the figures is simple and obvious. Within two, three or four years, depending on the caution of their military planners, the masters of the Kremlin will have a sufficient stockpile of atomic weapons to begin bullying the nations of Western Europe. Not long thereafter, if the Soviet war planners can meanwhile solve the problem of an attack at such long range, their stockpile will also become a threat to the United States.

On the brighter side, the analysts have only one contribution to make. In the late thirties, the Soviet government superintended and published a detailed, highly professional geological survey of the U. S. S. R. as then constituted. By a strange chance, this official geological survey appears to show that the vast Russian land mass suffers from the same lack of satisfactory sources of fissionable raw stuff as the land mass of the United States. At the time when the survey was taken, at any rate, no formations likely to contain uranium or thorium had yet been located.

The evidence of the geological survey is thought to be reinforced by the brutal intensity with which the Soviets are working the Jachymov and Erzgebirge uranium deposits in Czechoslovakia and the East zone of Germany. For these reasons, the majority of the experts strongly suspect that the Czech and East German mines are the sole Soviet ore sources. If this is so, it is predicted that ore shortage will halt Soviet manufacture of atomic weapons at the end of about six years. The Kremlin's stockpile will then consist of approximately 130 bombs.

UNFORTUNATELY, this hopeful theory is strongly disputed by the same realistic minority of analysts who insisted that the Soviets would produce the Beria bomb at a relatively early date. These realists say first that the Soviet geological survey cannot be regarded as absolutely reliable, having been taken before the Geiger-counter era. They point out further that the Soviets are perfectly capable, if need be, of exploiting such inferior uranium deposits as we also have, here in the United States.

They add, in conclusion, that there are many reasons to believe uranium is present in important quantities in the newly conquered Soviet province of Sinkiang, or Chinese Turkestan, in central Asia. It must be said that on this vital point, the arguments of the realist minority seem convincing. For who can suppose, for example, that Lavrenti Beria would lose five minutes' sleep because thousands of political prisoners are dying every month at Jachymov, even if the entire Soviet uranium requirement is meanwhile being met from central Asian mines?

In any case, it will be as foolish now to rest our hopes on a supposed limitation of Soviet raw material sources, as it has proved foolish already, to say that "Russia will never get the bomb because the Russians haven't got the know-how."

The grim truth is that a situation can easily be imagined, in which the Kremlin will gain the mastery of Eurasia without expending a single atomic bomb. For if our allies overseas feel that we in the United States are too feeble to succor them, they will not stop to count whether the Soviet stockpile is 50 bombs, or a 100, or 200. The weaker among them will come to terms. The stronger will find themselves outflanked. Such are the risks involved in policy of weakness, which is excused on the ground that the richest nation in the world is too poor to afford an adequate national defense.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Tito And Italy

ROME. — Of the principal Western nations, Italy alone has an important common frontier with the Soviet orbit. And so for good or evil it must be greatly concerned in the outcome of the conflict between Marshal Tito and the Soviet Union. If Yugoslavia is able to maintain its independence, the security of Italy internally and externally will no longer seriously be in question. But if, on the other hand, the Soviet Union decides or feels compelled to take military action to liquidate Tito, Italy will become quickly and deeply involved.

Lippmann

One can see here in Italy, perhaps more clearly than anywhere else, how much is immediately at stake—how much there is to be gained if Tito can survive peaceably, how much there is to be lost if either in Moscow or in Washington the hand is overplayed and the issue is made insoluble except by force.

AN INDEPENDENT Yugoslavia—that is to say a Yugoslavia which is no longer a military satellite of the Soviet Union or an armed branch of the Cominform—would be a buffer state on the only frontier across which Italy needs fear intervention or invasion. From the point of view of the Atlantic Pact and of the effort to rearm western Europe defensively, Tito's rebellion is a windfall for Italy and for the Western powers. It promises to give Italy a more effective guaranty than could possibly be had from any military establishment that the Italian economy can now support or that the popular morale would now justify. If Tito's rebellion is successful in making Yugoslavia a military neutral, Italy will be defensible because there will be no hostile army within striking distance.

Moreover, insofar as there is no army on the frontier of Italy which could intervene, the Communist Party in Italy can no longer contemplate the seizure of power by insurrection. For an insurrection, to which the Soviets could not give immediate and decisive support, would be crushed by the power of the Italian state and aid from the West.

From inquiries I have made I think there is ground for saying that the Italian Communist leaders, or at least the better part of them, know this and have drawn the logical and necessary conclusions. They know quite well that an action like that in Czechoslovakia is not feasible as long as the Cominform has no army near enough to intervene.

ON THE other hand there is a great risk in the present situation. It is that the Soviet Union might come to believe that unless Tito is liquidated, the rebellion will spread so far and so fast that it will menace the internal security of the Soviet Union itself. Things have not gone that far as yet. But they might. And it would be most unwise for us not to realize that we have the most to gain by a policy which does not make it impossible for the Russians to accept their diplomatic losses in Yugoslavia.

This is one of the moments in diplomacy where the temptation to overplay one's hand is strong. It had better be resisted. Tito should be helped, indeed he should be guaranteed against military attack. But no sophomoric illusions should be entertained about converting him into a military satellite of the West. We should be satisfied with a neutral Yugoslavia—with its detachment from the cold war—and we should not be gamblers who double the stakes when they think they are winning. We should not aim to make Tito change sides. We should aim to have him stand aside. It would be absurd to dress up Tito, as it is absurd to dress up Franco, in the clothes of a champion of the democratic way of life. Tito, like Franco, should be encouraged to mind his own business, and to be nobody's satellite.

FOR THAT reason and for many other reasons as well, our action in getting him elected to the Security Council should be followed by a conciliatory action in the United Nations. The most promising at this time would be a move to admit all the excluded states—both those which the Soviet Union is excluding by its veto and those which we are excluding by ours.

Such a compromise could, it seems to me, have only beneficial results. It may make it easier, and we should wish to make it easier, for Moscow to accept the loss of Yugoslavia. It would not change the balance of power inside the United Nations. And it would bring Italy into the United Nations, which is most desirable. For it is an ugly anomaly that we have been able to promote Yugoslavia onto the Security Council but are unable to have Italy admitted into the United Nations.

Atom Experts Allay Fear of Poisoned Air

By the United Press

American atomic officials yesterday politely pooh-poohed the warning of Prof. Frederick E. Soddy, famous British scientist, that radioactive gases belched from atomic plants may poison the atmosphere.

Soddy, who holds a Nobel prize for work in nuclear physics, said in an interview last week that world weather conditions may be disturbed by atomic gases. He pointed out that such gases can ionize the air and cause unnatural rainfall.

Officials of the United States Atomic Energy Commission said they did not want to get into a public controversy with the noted Briton—but:

Gases emitted from the two big United States atomic plants, at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash., have so little effect on the radioactivity of the surrounding air that it takes higher mathematics to detect it.

AEC Problem

Scientists Balk at Steps For Security

By Robert S. Allen

The Atomic Energy Commission has run into a serious problem at the University of Chicago's Argonne Latoratory.

Top atomic scientists on the laboratory's staff are balking at certain stringent security restrictions imposed by the commission.

The impasse is critical for two reasons. The laboratory is engaged in highly important research for AEC, and the university is seeking several million dollars from the commission for three new basic reasearch institutes. Until the security issue is settled, no funds can be advanced for these projects.

In an effort to work out a solotion, AEC Chairman David Lilienthal personally went to Chicago to confer with University Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins and Financial Vice President James A. Cunningham.

Hutchins declared the scientists did not object to "reasonable" security measures, such as the protection of documents and materials. But they strenuously objected to restrictions on their right to exchange information among themselves and to criticize policies. Hutchins also warned that "extremist" restraints on scientists gravely endangered atomic development. He stated many scientists would refuse to work for the Government under such conditions.

The Argonne Laboratory situation stems out of Senator Bourke Hickenlooper's attacks on the commission for lax security control. The commission has drastically tightened up its regulations, and is now encountering serious difficulty getting scientists to work under them.

Debate on Atom Opens Today; New Russian Moves Expected

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 6 (U.P.). The United Nations General Assembly will open debate on atomic control Monday, with delegates anticipating new sallies in Russia's stepped-up atomic peace offensive.

The Assembly's special political committee will convene in the afternoon to take up the report of the U. N.'s deadlocked atomic energy commission.

On the eve of the debate, U. S. S. R. Vice Premier George M. Malenkov proclaimed Russia's intention of using its atom production strictly for peaceful ends.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Russia's top U. N. delegate, will not be on hand for the debate. Vishinsky will be in Washington for festivities connected with the October Revolution anniversary, and is scheduled to call on Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

U. N. observers suspected the visit might be much more than a "courtesy call."

The consensus among key delegates and officials here was that nothing will budge the atomic stalemate unless Russia edges closer to the majority view.

The suggestion of Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo that the big powers call a temporary halt in production of atom bombs is reported to have received an exceedingly cool reception.

Porter McKeever, spokesman for the American delegation, said:

"The United States appreciates the spirit which motivates Gen. Romulo's suggestions on the question of atomic energy. In the consultations now under way among the six permanent members of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, the United States will give them serious and objective consideration. In that forum, we shall explore every avenue in our continuing effort to find a basis for agreement on an effective enforceable system of international control of atomic energy and prohibition of atomic weapons."

Cruiser Used by Russians Put Up for Sale

Before you give up and start buying neckties for those problems on your Christmas list, why not give something different this year, a 6500-ton light cruiser, for instance?

The Navy has one for sale in Philadelphia.

She is the U.S.S. Milwaukee, which sailed for almost five mysterious years under the flag of Soviet Russia as the Murmansk, and for 21 years under the Stars and Stripes.

Can Be Inspected Now

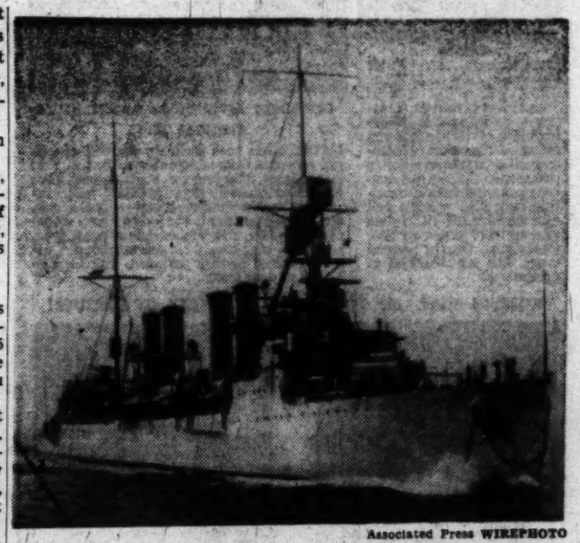
One of 10 "four-stack" cruisers built in the early 1920s, the Milwaukee may be a little big—555 feet by 55 feet—to fit under the Christmas tree, but how can you beat it for historic significance?

The ship can be inspected now at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard. Bids must be submitted to the Supply Office, Disposal Section, New York Naval Shipyard, Brooklyn, before November 22. You haven't a minute to lose.

Terms of the sale: "As is, where is," 25 percent cash, removal within 30 days, and you can't use it as a floating night club or sell it to a foreign government.

In addition to the steel hull, the ship is equipped with such useful "factory-installed extras" as four 12-foot propellers, some high-speed turbines, 12 boilers, 15 large pumps, a 3-ton capacity refrigerator, and air-conditioning units with a capacity of 9 tons.

The Milwaukee was launched in 1921 at Tacoma, Wash. From 1923 to 1939 she dropped her giant anchor in almost every port in the world.



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Light cruiser U. S. S. Milwaukee goes on the market

In February, 1939, the crew of the Milwaukee discovered the deepest part of the Atlantic Ocean, just north of the eastern tip of Haiti in the Puerto Rico Trough.

On December 7, 1941, the Milwaukee was undergoing repairs at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. She was a significent part of one of the first wartime convoys to the South Pacific, and later was assigned to the South Patrol searching for German blockade runners. Two such runners scuttled themselves when the Milwaukee hove over the horizon in November, 1942.

In March 1944, the Milwaukee started on the most dangerous of all wartime convoys, to Murmansk, and arrived undamaged, the first United States warship to enter that port in World War II. And there she stayed. In April, the ship was turned over to the Soviet navy. After five weeks of orientation by American instructors, the Russian crew took over.

Five years later, years for which the Russians have not provided details, the Murmansk anchored at Lewes, Del. Last March, the Milwaukee made her last journey to Philadelphia.

Three Campaigning for Quirino Slain

Manila, P. I., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Three campaign workers for President Elidio Quirino were slain last night when their jeep was ambushed and riddled with gunfire from an automatic weapon.

Three others were wounded and two escaped unhurt. The incident occurred in Bucal village in Cavite Province just south of Manila after the men were said to have made a house-to-house campaign in connection with next Tuesday's election.

The assailant escaped. A constabulary force was organized in Cavite to prevent any retaliatory violence. The victims were Lino Castor, 37; Reynaldo Rillo, 19, and Ignacio Deguia, 27.

The incident was the worst outbreak of violence thus far in the campaign.

Brig. Gen. Alberto Ramos had alerted the constabulary "to see that no disorder occurs during the elections."

Quirino addressed two big rallies in Manila today and planned a nationwide broadcast Monday. His opponents, Jose P. Laurel, Nacionalistia Party candidate, and Jose Avelino, leader of a wing of the Liberal Party, were to broadcast today.

The country went on a dry basis as of today, until after the voting. Private citizens were ordered to shelve firearms.

Pan-American Cruiser Sets New Speed Mark

London, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The Pan-American World Airways stratocruiser Westward Ho, flying eastward, today shaved nine minutes off the transatlantic commercial airliner speed record set yesterday by a sister plane.

Capt. Robert Dordyce of Jackson Heights, N. Y., set the Westward Ho down here 9 hours and 12 minutes after leaving New York. The plane, which averaged 385 miles an hour, was making the inaugural stratocruiser flight to Frankfurt, Germany, with 21 passengers.

Pan-American's Mayflower had knocked 20 minutes off the old record yesterday with a 9-hour, 22-minute crossing.

Dixie Survey Hits Segregation

By The Associated Press

Seven out of 10 who replied in a poll of Southern college teachers favor immediate admission of Negroes to graduate and professional schools without segregation, Aubrey Williams of the Southern Conference Educational Fund said yesterday.

He added that 3375 replies were received in the poll of 15,000 teachers.

He said the survey reached 181 schools in 14 Southern and border States and the District of Columbia.

Williams is president of the fund, which conducted the poll. It has offices in New Orleans.

In only two of the States polled, he said, was the vote less than 50 percent for the immediate end of such segregation—39 percent in Mississippi and 49 percent in Alabama.

Williams said the four choices given voters, and the number of votes for each, were:

1. Open exisiting graduate and professional schools to Negroes without segregation—2358 (70 percent of the votes cast).
2. Open existing graduate schools with segregation—85 (3 percent).
3. Build new graduate schools for Negroes—79 (2 percent).
4. Establish regional graduate schools on a segregated basis "as outlined by the Southern Governors' Conference"—853 (25 percent).

Williams said ballots were mailed to staff and faculty of accredited colleges and universities.

Chest Seeks 70,000 Rise in Donor List

A drive to enroll 70,000 more donors than last year will feature the Community Chest Federation campaign as it goes into its second week today.

Such an increase would assure reaching the goal of $3,991,719 for 1950 Red Feather services, hospitalization fund and the USO, according to Frank J. Luchs, campaign chairman.

Campaign workers last week reported 185,759 pledges and donations totalling $2,003,187, or 50.18 percent of the goal.

Four luncheon meetings will be the main Chest Federation campaign events this week.

Duffield to Preside

Today, Business No. 2 unit will meet at 12:20 p. m. at the Washington Hotel to hear reports from workers, with Hugh K. Duffield, vice chairman, presiding.

Guest speaker will be Arch McDonald, WTOP sports commentator. Musical entertainment will be provided by Betty Moore, singer; Justin Lawrie, singer and choir director of the Foundry Methodist Church; Sam Holland, pianist, and the 356th Army Band from Fort Belvoir, Va.

Eldred C. Wolzien, physicist at the National Bureau of Standards, will tell of his experiences with the Children's Protective Agency, which helped him to become a foster parent.

Combined reports from all nine soliciting units in the District, Alexandria and the four adjoining counties of Virginia and Maryland, will be made at the general report luncheon at 12:20 p. m. Tuesday at the Washington Hotel.

Speaker will be Josh Lee, Civil Aeronautics Board member and former Senator from Oklahoma. Evalyn Tyner, pianist, will entertain, and Rudy Vallee, who will be a special guest with Mrs. Vallee, will tell briefly about his hometown Community Chest in Maine.

Navy Band Orchestra

Chairman Luchs will preside and music will be furnished by the United States Navy Band Orchestra.

On Wednesday, Business No. 2 and advance gifts general units will have luncheon meetings at the Washington Hotel. Business No. 1 and residential units will report at a Thursday luncheon at the Washington Hotel.

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, chairman of the Government unit, has announced that two more groups in the unit have gone over the top. They are the National Security Resources Board, with 103.4 percent of quota, and the American National Red Cross, with 100 percent.

Thus far, the Government unit leads the campaign with 136,547 pledges for $1,000,101, or 63.08 percent of its quota.

Navy men said yesterday that Secretary Matthews may take any of three general courses in Captain Crommelin's case. He may reinstate the officer after finding there were no grounds for suspension. He may reinstate him with a reprimand, or order a general court-martial. A general court-martial, Navy officers said, would reopen the whole dispute for another public airing.

Captain Crommelin, still confined to the District of Columbia under orders of Secretary Matthews, remains eligible for promotion although under technical arrest. Naval officers explained that any charges against him could not be considered by the selection board unless he was found guilty.

Several smaller companies agreed to similar settlements during the weekend. Lukens Steel Co.'s 3000 workers approved an agreement boosting benefits of a previous insurance and pension plan.

An agreement similar to the Bethlehem plan also was accepted by Northwestern Steel and Wire Co., which employs 1700 at Sterling, Ill.; Pittsburgh Bridge & Iron Works, with 150 employes at Rochester, Pa., also settled.

Correction

In a story yesterday, The Washington Post named the Arlington League of Women Voters as one of the sponsors of a Town Meeting which nominated Robert W. Cox, nonpartisan candidate for election to the Arlington County Board. The league did not participate in the conference. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Senate Action Costly to Chest

from paying guests to pay taxes on "Annie Oakleys" furnished Senators who voted the taxes.

Profits would have been much larger, except for losses sustained by the Gala at the Armory the night before inauguration.

The inaugural ball, the next night, which was directed by Mrs. Perle Mesta, now Minister of Luxembourg, turned in a profit of about $75,000. However, in spite of Mrs. Mesta's objections, this profit was virtually all used to bail out the gala losses.

Additional sums are being held up pending settlement of two other disputes.

1. The District Armory Commission is asking $5000 rent. The Inaugural Committee has tendered a check for $1000. This disagreement is said to be due to "fuzzy arrangements" over use of the Armory for the Gala and Ball.

2. A disagreement involving several thousand dollars over insurance premiums paid to the late Tom Morgan.

Another report yesterday was that the committee was stuck with the loss of several truckloads of chairs that disappeared from the line of march during the rainy, stormy days just after Inauguration Day.

It is planned to make the donation to the Chest in the closing days of the campaign—probably at a time to put the drive over the top.

'49 Yule Seals For Overseas On Sale Today

Sale of 1949 Christmas Seals will begin here today for those who wish to use them on holiday mail to foreign countries, the D. C. Tuberculosis Association has announced.

Sale for domestic mail will begin November 21, opening date of the Nation-wide campaign. Purchases for overseas mailing may be made at the local association's headquarters, 1601 18th st. nw.

This year's seal design, featuring a dove in flight and traditional Christmas holly, was designed by 27-year-old Herbert Meyers, German-born artist of Leonia, N. J., who came to America nine years ago and served with the Allied air forces in the last war.

The 1949 campaign will be the forty-third annual Christmas Seal sale in this country to raise funds to fight TB. Andrew Parker is chairman.

Archbishop Confirms 100 at Forest Glen, Md.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington yesterday confirmed more than 100 children at St. John the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church, Forest Glen, Md.

The Rev. Joseph T. Kennedy, pastor of the church, presented the children to the archbishop for confirmation.

In a sermon at the services, the Rev. Thomas Lyons, of St. Matthew's Cathedral, said the sacrament of confirmation was instituted by the Catholic church to give "new spiritual strength to fight against the devil and temptation." Archbishop O'Boyle announced during the service that construction of an eighth-grade school for the Forest Glen parish will begin in the near future.

Baptist Group to Hear Mrs. H. G. Colwell

Trunk Owned by Washington Donated to Mount Vernon

A leather trunk containing clothing and other possessions of General and Mrs. Washington has been added to the collection at Mount Vernon. The trunk bears a metal plate engraved "Genl Washington No. 4."

The trunk and its contents will be displayed among other Washington memorabilia at the shrine. It was donated to the Mount Vernon Ladies Association by Edmund Lee Rogers Smith and sister, descendants of John Parke Custis, stepson of Washington. The relics were obtained through the efforts of Mrs. Francis Beirne, vice regent from Maryland.

Mrs. Beirne also gave a teacup and saucer, part of Mrs. Washington's china, which has been placed in the west parlor with other cups of the same design.

Wage Increase Accepted by Safeway Union

Truck drivers, loaders and helpers employed by the Safeway Stores yesterday accepted an offer from the company providing for an increase in wages of 15 and 26 cents an hour, a union spokesman announced.

Linwood Trainham, business agent of Teamsters' Local 639 (AFL), said a contract would be signed today with Safeway raising the wages of 252 employes retroactively to October 30, when the old contract expired.

The 15-cent increase will go to drivers and helpers, while loaders will receive 26 cents more an hour. In addition, the agreement will provide for 5 cents an hour differential for all drivers and helpers working between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m.

New pay scales will range from about $50 a week for helpers, to $64 a week for meat drivers, with a 44-hour work week.

Improved vacation benefits are also provided for in the offer, which was accepted by the local members at a meeting held at the teamsters' local headquarters, 1500 13th st. nw.

A company spokesman said the agreement was reached after several weeks of negotiations.

Remembering Jail, Drunk Takes Flit Gun

Philadelphia, Nov. 5 (U.P.).—Joseph O'Neill, 40, asked an arresting patrolman to grant him a few minutes grace before carting him off to the lock-up on intoxication charges.

O'Neill, arrested near his home, entered his residence and returned with a flit gun which he carried with him through the routine of being booked.

Asked what he wanted with the device, O'Neill began spraying his cell and said, "I've been here before."

Du Pont Gives Olin Industries License to Make Cellophane

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 6 (AP).—E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., in a move to distribute ownership of cellophane production, announced today it has licensed Olin Industries, Inc., to make cellophane on terms involving a 20-million-dollar minimum investment.

Olin, with headquarters in East Alton, Ill., operates plants in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Connecticut and Washington making firearms and ammunition, electrical, chemical and a variety of other products.

Arlington Kunsman, head of the cellophane division of duPont's rayon department, said the deal "promises the easing of a situation that has bothered all concerned for several years."

"During the war, and since, except for a short period," he said, "there has been a shortage of cellophane. Under normal circumstances duPont would have built additional capacity.

"However, the Department of Justice filed suit against the company, alleging that it already controlled so large a percentage of the market as to be guilty of monopoly.

"This being the case, we did not feel warranted in spending the stockholders' money in expansion in this field.

The contract with Olin, he said, was the outcome of efforts for more than a year to find a company willing and able to invest at least the 20 million dollars considered necessary for a company to in this field.

DuPont agrees to license Olin under all its cellophane patents, help pick plant site, design and build an eight-machine factory with an estimated capacity of some 33 million pounds of cellophane a year.

Olin pays a fixed fee for plant design and construction and for licenses and know-how.

C. U. Players Offer 'Romeo and Juliet'

By Richard L. Coe

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S drama department, which in recent years has been commendably faithful to Shakespeare, is now playing "Romeo and Juliet." The group is performing smoothly and carefully as always, but it can't keep you from realizing that this love story is all but impossible to lick.

It took, for instance, the magic of Katharine Cornell to make one ignore the shattering imbecility of Friar Laurence. The good friar (Charles Waldron in her production, with Maurice Evans as her Romeo), you recall, marries the Montagu-Capulet offspring and makes no efforts to inform either family of this event which might patch up their warring. He later evolves that complex plot of potions and family-tomb meetings in which the outcome is planned for Juliet to escape to Mantua, there to live with Romeo. Why the friar evolves his intricate plot instead of simply shipping Juliet off secretly is one of those mysteries Miss Cornell and Director Guthrie McClintic skillfully kept from your attention.

It is this veil of excitement that is missing from the university's performance. It is not the fault of the well-spoken young actor playing the brown-hooded brother, for Stan Telchin is one of the better members of the cast. It is the cold fact that the two lovers are so bitterly elusive to act and that the play requires almost genius in its performance. For collegians this is a good performance, but the university has accustomed us to virtually professional standards. We gain thereby; their valuations cost them higher standards of criticism.

If the players are young, as they are here, they require a genius for speaking, the ability to almost sing, without self-consciousness, the rhetorical lyrics that the Elizabethans took as the air they breathed. Almost as if to illustrate full knowledge of the difficulty, the production occasionally introduces off-stage music which, for this highly musical word drama, is like piling Pelion on Ossa.

There are, however, several fine virtues to this production: its smooth-flowing quality and its intelligent use of basic settings and props.

Inadequate Speech

This leads to a clear story line which moves surely along to its finish. Had the elusive excitement been in the playing, full acceptance of such devices as Friar Laurence's addle-pated advice would have been possible. By the use of two imaginatively contrived arches as background for full-stage action, you are not diverted from the play by needless fol-de-rol. These two qualities alone make the university's "Romeo and Juliet" a worthy try.

The speaking I found exceptionally flat or shrill; exceptionally, for the department's usual long-suit is its better-than-average speech. These are all young players and represent, I fear, the culmination of voice culture that radio and the movies have been deluding us with for a full generation. The vowels have a wretchedly flat quality and small wonder, for such passes for speaking among too many people. The consonants, though sometimes hard hit, lack brilliance, have only marked shrillness downright unpleasant to the ear. Above all, in Shapespeare, speech is everything and I'm rather sorry the department didn't put off its Bard until its players could have had a full year with Dr. Josephine McGarry Callan, a lady who knows how to teach speech.

Juliet Young and Lovely

Both Jan Geister and William W. Smithers, in the title roles, have a deal to recommend them. They are young and in some scenes moving. Miss Geister, in fact, is utterly lovely to look at and for a 17-year-old moves well. But while her voice sometimes has control, too often it is shrill. Smithers, if anything, is over prepared, too anxious to make every word count, too careful; his flaw is an older mind in a 22-year-old frame.

Jill Leahy, as the prattling, ignorant nurse, makes the character live and John Burns' Capulet is good. Herbert Boland is a Mercutio who'll be better as he relaxes.

Director Arthur Bardos has given us a smooth-running, clear and intelligent "Romeo and Juliet." But intelligence is not the key to this difficult drama.

"ROMEO AND JULIET." The Speech and Drama Department of Catholic University presents the tragedy by William Shakespeare, directed by Arthur Bardos. Setting and lighting by James D. Waring. Presented nightly, except Sunday, through November 13 in the University Theater on the campus.

Redskins Beat Steelers, 27-14; Eagles Rout Rams

THINK A FOOTBALL COACH'S JOB IS A SNAP? LOOK AT BUSY BILLICK WHELCHEL "PLAYING" AS HARD AS ANY REDSKIN AT YESTERDAY'S GAME

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, Nov. 6.—The Pittsburgh Steelers, coached by John Michelosen, are first on the field for their game with the Redskins, coached by the joint chiefs of staff, Admiral Billick Whelchel, Communications Chief George Marshall and Chief Gunners Mate Leo De Orsey.

All of the Redskins' fans didn't show up on this cold, raw day but 26,038 did report. There were wide open spaces in the bleachers, the left-field stands and the Redskins line on the first punt of the game by Dick Poillon. Davis of the Steelers rushed through to partly block it.

POVICH

Bob Gage of the Steelers had the ball with him and also the wind, on an 18-yard reverse around the Redskins' left end. It carried the Steelers only 8 yards from a touchdown.

That last yard was the toughest, and the Redskins took over the ball. On last down, through right tackle, Jerry Nuzum of the Steelers failed to gain the distance of this season's plunging necklines, and the Redskins call a halt to the Steelers' strike.

SAMMY BAUGH is directing the Redskins' attack, such as it is. He sends Rob Goode into the line on a play that is literaly Goode for nothing, and retires temporarily to let Poillon punt out of trouble.

Pittsburgh has changed pitchers, with Jim Finks replacing Gage as the Steelers' passer. He gets off a 30-yard pitch to Nuzum to the Redskins' 18, but Referee Glascock outlaws that Steeler strike by invoking the Taft-Hartley law against men in motion.

After being tethered in their own territory for 21 minutes, the Redskins reached midfield on Saenz's runback of a Steeler punt. To this point the Redskins' offensive had been merely offensive.

Touchdown, Redskin Harry Gilmer to Bones Taylor to the embarrassment of Gage, Hartley and Hanlon, who had Taylor covered on the 10-yard line. While reaching for the sky, Taylor dragged in Gilmer's perfect pitch and tramped across on a 51-yard play.

FINKS, THE ROOKIE from Tulsa, is taking the Steelers places, specifically to a first down on the Redskins' 7-yard line. He flipped a 35-yard pass to Jansante, and then personally whacked away at the Redskins' line from that point.

Touchdown, Steelers. Finks gets the last 4 yards on a sprint around the Redskins' left end, where he left Dan Sandifer asking "Wha' happen?" When Sandifer zigged, Finks zagged and scored untouched.

The Steelers take the second half kickoff, and Nuzum goes 15 yards around end to the Redskins 29, on the slickest reverse since Serutan. Clyde Goodnight gets him from behind, or it would have been good-night.

14-7, Steelers' Jerry Shipkey takes the ball and three Redskins through from the 1-inch line to climax a 66-yard march of the old-fashioned kind, without a single pass by the Steelers.

Baugh moves back into the game for the Redskins and sees plenty of action. He hands off to Pete Stout and then winds up recovering Stout's fumble. He completes two passes in a row, the second, unfortunately, to Hogan of the Steelers.

TOUCHDOWN, Redskins, and it's 14-14. Pete Stout takes a hand-off from Gilmer and is sprung loose through right tackle. Hit at midfield, he keeps his balance to tight rope down the sidelines and scores at the end of a 74-yard sprint.

It has been a pretty good ball game to this point, but the stadium maintenance men are making light of the whole thing. They've just turned on all the park lights in the final quarter.

20-14, Redskins. Sammy Baugh makes two fakes and three balks before getting off a long lob to Goode to the Steelers' 1-yard line. Stout lugs it over and with only two minutes of the game left, the Redskins ought to do all right.

27-14, Redskins. Finks found a receiver for one of his pases—Dan Sandifer, who lugged it back 59 yards to the Steelers' 17. Stout, a fast guy with a buck, picked up 16 yards at center and Dowda took it over.

The Steelers finally get their hands on the ball with the clock showing only 41 seconds to play. Unless they whip up some kind of a trick play worth 13 points, they're a gone gang. Going, going,

Stout Stars In 20-Point 4th Period Comeback

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

There was nothing monotonous about the Redskins' 27-14 triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers yesterday, although it was the exact score by which Washington won its first engagement with the Smoky City crew earlier this year.

Twenty points in the last quarter did it. Seven of them tied the count, 14-14, after 53 seconds of the period. The two winning touchdowns were jammed into the game's last couple of thrill-packed minutes.

It was the kind of windup which had 26,038 paying customers falling in love with the Redskins all over again. The youthful Redskins themselves, after a disappointing tie and thorough beating in their last two outings, were so elated that they broke a professional precedent and carried Head Coach Billick Whelchel from the field on their shoulders.

STATISTICS

| Washington | | Pittsburgh |
|---|---|---|
| 16 | First downs | 19 |
| 175 | Net yards gains drushing | 230 |
| 27 | Forward passes attempted | 22 |
| 12 | Forward passes completed | 6 |
| 208 | Yards forward passing | 89 |
| 2 | Forwards intercepted by | 3 |
| 59 | Yards gained runback intercep. | 6 |
| 41.9 | Punting average | 42.6 |
| 94 | Total yds., all kicks returned | 108 |
| 0 | Opponent fumbles recovered | 0 |
| 75 | Yards lost by penalties | 30 |

The victory didn't win the Eastern National Football League title for the Redskins, by a long shot, but it at least kept their mathematical chances alive. They remained in fourth place, a half-game below a tie for second between the Steelers and New York Giants, while Philadelphia's devastating Eagles improved their grip on the lead.

Stout Sprints 74 Yards

That amazing fourth period started innocuously for the favored but trailing Redskins. Tommy Mont missed his block, and Eddie Saenz was pinned back on the Redskins 26 as he tried to run back Joe Geri's punt. You had to be a violent hometown rooter to hope for as much as a tie at that point.

But Harry Gilmer, the Tribe's rookie quarterback, sent rookie Fullback Pete Stout into the line on what looked like a routine off-tackle smash and the fireworks were just starting.

Stout, a 200-pounder, was running like a 140-pound scatback when he broke toward the left sideline at his own 40. At midfield the Steelers' Bobby Gage made a foolish attempt to push him out of bounds, missed, and that was all.

Nobody was near big Pete as he roared just inches inside bounds, the last 35 yards of the 74 yard sprint. Dick Poillon converted and it was suddenly 14-14.

Stout Goes Over

Neither club made much of a threat to break the deadlock in the next 17 minutes, although Poillon tried a field goal from 40 yards out midway of the period. It was just short, and to the right, giving Pittsburgh the ball at a crucial time.

But the Redskins were suddenly tough. They were fighting right back as the desperate invaders moved up to their own 31, from which point their Jimmy Finks tried to pass to veteran Val Jansante. The ball was slapped into the air by Al Demao Redskin

Champs Pour It On By 38 to 14

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 6.—The best in the West proved a feast for the East today.

Showing utter contempt for the unbeaten record of the National Football League's Western Division leaders, the Eastern Division's pace-setting Philadelphia Eagles plastered the Los Angeles Rams with a 38-14 lacing before a record Shibe Park football assembly of 38,230.

It was supposed to have been a preview of the league's championship playoff in December, but it turned out to be a cakewalk for the artful Eagles.

The first defeat in seven league starts for the Rams was the sixth victory in seven outings for Coach Greasy Neale's slick performers.

Rams Take Early Lead

The Rams, 7-point underdogs, went into the game with a record of not having beaten the Eagles in 7 years. That they were to keep their mark unsullied was obvious early in the second quarter when Tommy Thompson, Bosh Pritchard and Pete Pihos and Co. began levelling.

They overcame a 7-3 Rams' lead with two touchdowns in the second quarter, two more in the third and tacked on a final tally in the last period to complete the rout of the scourge of the West.

STATISTICS

| Los Angeles | | Philadelphia |
|---|---|---|
| 11 | First downs | 20 |
| 27 | Net yards gained rushing | 254 |
| 237 | Yards Gained passing | 308 |
| 36 | Forward passes attempted | 16 |
| 20 | Forwards completed | 11 |
| 0 | Passes intercepted by | 1 |
| 0 | Yards interceptions returned by | 1 |
| 43.7 | Average distance punts | 42.3 |
| 158 | Yards all kicks returned | 51 |
| 1 | Opponents fumbles recovered | 3 |
| 56 | Yards penalized | 60 |

They did it with such ridiculous ease that many of the spectators were left to wonder how the Rams ever won a game, much less lead the Western Division.

Six of the Eagles had a hand in the scoring with Cliff Patton, who didn't tally a touchdown, outscoring 'em all. He booted a 16-yard field goal and then added five extra points to run his string of conversions to 82 without a miss.

Thompson Tosses Two Scores

As usual, Tulsa's Tommy Thompson was the Eagles' offensive ring leader. He quarterbacked an almost flawless game, completed 11 of his 15 passes—2 for touchdowns, and moved the Eagles 208 yards with his precision passing.

Pritchard, the day's running star, Fullback Jack Myers, Halfback Russ Craft, End Pete Pihos and Halfback Jimmy Parmer chipped in a touchdown apiece.

What hurt the Rams most, however, was the savage defense the Eagles threw against them. Early in the game it became apparent to Bob Waterfield and company that they weren't going to get anywhere trying to run against Al Wistert, Mike Jarmoluk and their likes, so they abandoned their ground attack for an air game, which didn't prove too successful either.

Even with such vaunted running stars as Crazy Legs Hirsch and Dick Hoerner in their cast, the Rams tried only 10 running plays,

Bears Humble Packers, 24 to 3

Lujack Hurls 2 Touchdowns, Scores One

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—After three periods of erratic play, the Chicago Bears were fanned to life by Johnny Lujack's passes for a pair of final-quarter touchdowns today to take a 24-3 National Football League win over the Green Bay Packers.

The victory, accomplished before 47,218 fans in Wrigley Field, was the Bears' fifth in a row over their ancient rivals. In 63 meetings with Green Bay, the Chicagoans now have a record of 36 wins against 22 defeats. Five games were tied.

It was the Bears' fourth league win in seven starts and kept alive their hopes for at least a share of the western division title. The Philadelphia Eagles knocked off the Los Angeles Rams today to make the league race a little rosier for the Bears.

The Packers, led by Tony Canadeo's 5.3 rushing average and the passing of Jug Girard, pierced to the 2, 9 and 5-yard lines, but failed to get across. The best they could do was a 22-yard field goal by Joe Ethridge in the third period.

STATISTICS

| Green Bay | | Chicago |
|---|---|---|
| 15 | First downs | 17 |
| 185 | Net yards gained rushing | 161 |

| 111 | Total yards all kicks returned | 103 |
| 2 | Opponents' fumbles recovered | 2 |
| 22 | Yards lost by penalties | 72 |

George Blanda's 28-yard field goal gave the Bears a 3-0 margin. Then Ray Bray recovered Walt Schlinkman's fumble on the Packer 32 to touch off the Bears' first touchdown.

The Bears completed a 68-yard march in 11 plays in the first 45 seconds of the second period with Jules Rykovich bulling over from the 1. Lujack added the point.

Rex Mays Dies In Race Crash

Del Mar, Calif., Nov. 6 (AP).—A thirteenth-lap crash killed Rex Mays, 34, one of the world's leading automobile racers, here today.

The speeding car threw Mays, national champion in 1940-41, onto the middle of the track as it hurtled over the south turn.

Another car hit and flung his body into the air. Some reports said he was struck by still another flying racer.

The 17-car field had started on a 100-mile National Automobile Association race when the tragedy came.

There were several versions of what happened.

One was that Mays' car—running second to that of Jim Davies of Los Angeles—collided with a car driven by Johnny Parsons.

Mays' racer was hurtled over, throwing him onto the track, and then crashed through the rail into the track's infield.

Other reports were that Mays somehow lost control, passibly because of a rough spot.

Bulldogs Top Giants, 31-24, For First Win

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—The New York Bulldogs, behind 24-7 at halftime, came back to defeat the New York Giants, 31-24, today for their first victory in the National Football League as Bobby Layne outpitched Charley Conerly.

A 15-yard penalty, called against the Giants for unsportsmanlike conduct when Jim White kicked an official's cap, helped the Bulldogs march 80 yards for the touchdown that put them ahead in the final period.

Layne, who pitched two touchdown passes and set the stage for two other touchdowns by Joe Osmanski, had moved the Bulldogs 50 yards with short passes when a pass-itnerference play was called against the Giants.

The 15-yard penalty took the Bulldogs to the Giants' 12 and after Layne passed 9 yards to Joe Abbey, Osmanski rammed over from the 3.

STATISTICS

| Bulldogs | | Giants |

| 3 | Yds. gained runback interceptions | 18 |
| 36.6 | Punting average | 36 |

An 18-yard pass from Layne to Harold Prescott brought the first Bulldog marker midway in the second period. But Ben Agajanian, who kicked all the Giant extra points, added a 36-yard field goal to put the Giants in front, 24-7, at half time.

The Bulldogs scored at 2:13 of the third period when Layne passed 13 yards to Bill Chipley after Joe Domnanovich had stolen the ball from Scott on the Giant 20. Layne and Chipley also hooked up on a long aerial covering 70 yards to set up the third Bulldog marker, scored by Osmanski from 5 yards out in the third quarter.

Gonzaga Boys Lose, 27 to 6

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Gonzaga scored first but West Catholic scored more often to down the invading Eagles, 27-6, today.

Nick Wilkinson plunged over from the one for the Gonzaga touchdown after Mike Nolan recovered a West fumble in the opening minutes of play.

West Catholic scored a first-period touchdown on a 19-yard pass from Franny Leonard to Charles McHenry in the end zone. West tallied again in the second quarter as Johnnie Jones went 20 yards over center.

The final two touchdowns came on a 20-yard pass play from Leonard to Bob Sherry and a 33-yard runback of an intercepted pass by tackle Ted Toben in the fourth quarter.

Wilson 'Sissies' Acting Tough, Point for Title Game Nov. 25

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

AT WOODROW WILSON HIGH, where most of the students belong to country clubs and consider football a sport for ruffins, Joe Carlo is performing the coaching miracle of the year.

A year ago, he was calling his team "the most lackadaisical bunch of sissies I've ever coached."

Now, he has the same group of boys acting tough, and playing like the first interhigh football championship team in Wilson's 13-year history.

Standing in Carlo's path toward the Southern Division pennant are Western Friday and Chamberlain November 19. Western's record is 2-2, Chamberlain's is 1-4.

If Wilson wins both games, it plays the Northern Division flag winner for the Interhigh championship on the night of November 25 at Griffith Stadium.

The Washington Post and Board of Education are sponsoring the championship classic with the Almas Temple Shriners providing the championship cup.

Western, whom Wilson meets at Central Stadium, is the team Carlo fears most. Western is Wilson's closest neighbor and the student bodies have whipped up an enthusiastic rivalry. Western would like nothing better than to smear Wilson's title hopes.

Carlo's 1948 "sissy" team finished seventh in an eight-team league. What a difference this year through! The Tigers have won six out of seven.

CARLO, A THIN, studious-looking chap, who was wartime assistant principal at Wilson, can't quite figure out the change, but he's not complaining.

"When fall practice began, the boys started rooting for each other," says Carlo. "There were no jealousies. The boys who applied the key blocks in practice got as much cheering as the boys who run for touchdowns.

"The spirit carried over into the season, as the Tigers racked up Eastern, Anacostia, Roosevelt, Georgetown Prep and St. John's.

"Some people have tried to make Leo Speros the big star of this team, and he is terrific says Carlo. "But Leo's success is partly due to the devastating blocking of boys like Tom Sandoz, Lee Brinson, backs, and Don Meany, tackle.

"When Speros scored on a 50-yard run against Roosevelt, Sandoz got as big a pat on the back as Speros from their teammates."

Area Horses Triumph in N. Y. Show

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Washington area entries performed notably in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden here today.

Watch Me, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry, Cobham, Va., rolled up 10 points in winning the pony championship, a scant half point better than the reserve champion, Surprise, owned by Martha Sterbak, Fallston, Md.

Surprise earned a first, however, winning the event for pony working hunters, small (to be ridden by juniors), Miss Sterbak's victor beat out a Washington pony, Baby, owned by Claire Taylor.

Watch Me, in winning the championship, also placed first in the pony hunters event (ridden by juniors), again defeating Surprise.

In the three-day international low-score competition, the Chilean Army jumping team won the final event, but the Mexican Army team took the big prize on a total low-time basis.

It was the second time during the eight-day show that Chile had broken into the string of Mexican victories.

The horsemen from below the Rio Grande had captured seven of eight international events prior to this afternoon.

International low score competition challenge trophy (third event)—1, Chilean Army team (Condor, Maj. Pelayo Izurieta up); 2, Mexican Army team; 3, Irish Army team; 4, Canadian Army team.

International low score competition challenge trophy (aggregate low score for three-day event and championship)—1, Mexican Army team; 2, Irish Army team; 3, Chilean Army team; 4, Canadian Army team.

American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals horsemanship trophy (for amateur riders who have not reached their seventeenth birthday)—1, Miss Myrna Felver, Richmond, Va.; 2, Miss Nancy Jane Imboden, Scarsdale, N. Y.

Working hunter, any height (to be ridden by juniors not over 18)—1, Heredite, owned by Miss Perry Augustus, Willoughby, Ohio; 2, Chado, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Chapot, Westfield, N. J.

Pony hunters (to be ridden by juniors)—1, Watch Me, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry, Cobham, Va.; 2, Surprise, owned by Miss Martha Sterbak, Fallston, Md.; 3, David, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry; 4, Red Wing, owned by Miss Roxanne R. Wagner, Annapolis, Md.

Pony working hunter, small (to be ridden by juniors)—1, Surprise, owned by Miss Martha Sterbak; 2, Baby, owned by Miss Claire Taylor, Washington, D. C.; 3, Thane of Wales, owned by Miss Cynthia Graffam, Lutherville, Md.; 4, Spice, owned by Billy Boyce 3d and Elise Kelsey Boyce, Glencoe, Md.

Pony working hunter, large (to be ridden by juniors)—1, Honey Bee, owned by Miss Elise and Laurence Boyce, Glencoe, Md.; 2, Craven's Raven, owned by Miss Mary Stuart Gadd, Towson, Md.

Pony championship—Champion, Watch Me, owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Haggin Perry, Cobham, Va., 10 points; reserve, Surprise, owned by Miss Martha Sterbak, Fallston, Md., 9½ points.

The Margaret Tate Challenge Trophy (three-gaited saddle horse to be ridden by amateur)—1, Noble Lady, owned by Miss Jeanne Doyle, Kenilworth, Ill.; 2, Robin Hill Mafanelle, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred M. Link, Westwood, N. J.; 3, Mighty Atom, owned by Mrs. Jean McLean Davis, Portsmouth, Va.

Eastern A. C. Wins, 12 to 7

Eastern A. C., defending champions in the Metropolitan Amateur Football league, scored a 12-7 win over the Riverside Rollers yesterfor the Western Division lead.

The loss dropped Riverside into a tie with Southwest Merchants for the Western division lead.

Eastern scored twice in the final quarter, with Adrian Kidwell climaxing a 60-yard drive with a 5-yard plunge over left tackle, and Jim Sterling passing 30 yards to Gil Ballantine for the winning touchdown.

The Langdon Lions retained their Eastern Division lead by edging Arrow Linen, 6-0, at Taft Playground. Lou Schap took a handoff from Sonny Long and went 8 yards for the lone tally to end a 70-yard drive.

Southwest Merchants battled Brookland-Woodridge to a 6-6 tie at Turkey Thicket. Johnny Mare, B-W tackle, fell on Eddie Tawney's fumble in the end zone for the Brookland score while Jerry Osborne raced 60 yards with an intercepted pass for the Merchants score.

Great Falls and Wasco Bullets played to a 6-6 tie at Alexandria Municipal Stadium. Both scores came on intercepted passes.

Kelliher Wins DiMaggio's Area Boys Club Award

Cornelius Kelliher, 12-year-old Washington Boys Club member has been selected by Yankee Outfielder Joe DiMaggio as the outstanding club member of the year in this area.

The youngster will receive a $50 savings bond, a wrist watch and will appear on DiMaggio's radio program heard over WTOP Saturday December 3, at 10 a. m.

Santa Clara Wins Over SanFrancisco

San Francisco, Nov. 6 (AP).—Two spectacular touchdowns today heightened Santa Clara Bronco hopes for a postseason bowl game and gave them a 13-7 victory over the University of San Francisco.

The winners scored on a 52-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and an 86-yard run in the fourth. The USF Dons counted in the fourth quarter on a 68-yard pass and a 3-yard line buck.

Pat Harder Stars With Two Scores

Detroit, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Chicago Cardinals shoved the Detroit Lions deeper into the National Football League cellar as they whipped the Detroiters 42 to 19 before 22,479 fans today.

Fullback Pat Harder was the big man in the Chicago attack. He scored two touchdowns and kicked six extra points.

The Cardinals got rolling after a scoreless first period, marching 45-yards early in the second period. Harder went over from the 5.

Detroit made it 7-6 late in the second period. The Lions went 58-yards with Bob Mann catching three passes, including a 35-yard touchdown heave from Freddie Enke. Bill Dudley's kick for the point was wide.

It took just 50 seconds to score again as Jim Hardy threw a 44-yard touchdown pass to Charlie Trippi to give Chicago its 14-6 halftime lead.

The Cardinals took charge of the game in the second half, pushing over four touchdowns.

The first came on a 50-yard sweep, with Trippi going over from the 4. Jerry Davis added another when he picked up a fumble by Detroit's Johnny Panelli on the Lions' 38 and went all the way for the score.

Detroit took the next kickoff and went all the way for its second touchdown, Don Doll ending the drive with a 10-yard sprint around left end.

The Cardinals struck again early in the fourth period as John Cochrane ran back a Detroit punt 50 yards for a touchdown.

Browns Beat Hornets, 35-2; Graham Stars

Cleveland, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Cleveland Browns moved into first place in the All-America Pro Football Conference today with a 35-2 victory over the completely outclassed Chicago Hornets as the New York Yankees were dropping a 17-14 game to the Buffalo Bills.

Otto Graham sparked the Browns' attack with a brilliant aerial offense, enabling the conference champions to replace New York in first place in the standings. He completed 13 of 19 attempts. The official attendance was 16,511.

A beautiful screen pass from Graham to Marion Motley carried the ball to the Hornets' 15 early in the game.

Bill Boedeker and Motley made a first down on the 4 and Dub Jones went off tackle on the next play for the game's first score. Lou Groza converted to make it 7-0 for Cleveland.

The Browns tallied again late in the second period after an exchange of punts. They took possession on their own 23 and advanced 10 yards on a pass by Otto Graham to Dub Jones. Then Graham fired three straight passes to Horace Gilliom and the ball roosted on the Chicago 15.

Motley brought it to the 2 on a dash through center and Les Horvath battered through for the touchdown. Groza booted the extra point and the Browns led, 14-0, at half-time.

Manning, La Salle Teams in Finals

Tom Manning and Tom Baldwin defeated Jerry Hart and Wayne McGee, 1 up, and Joe LaSalle and Ben Whiting downed Ed Williams and Fran Donaldson, 1 up in 19, to advance to the finals of the Bethesda Country Club four-ball tournament yesterday. LaSalle birdied the nineteenth hole for their margin of victory.

Chet Wiggin got a hole-in-one on the 160-yard seventeenth hole with a No. 4 iron shot. He was playing with Sue Baughen and Mr. and Mrs. W. Hodges.

Bills Topple Yanks, 17-14

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Chet Adams' 12-yard field goal just two and a half minutes before the final gun gave Buffalo a 17-to-14 victory that knocked the New York Yankees from the top of the All-America Football Conference standings today.

Combined with Cleveland's victory over the Chicago Hornets, the defeat dropped the New Yorkers into second place.

This was the fourth time this year Buffalo has been involved in a 17-to-14 game. The Bills lost the first meeting with the Yankees by that tally.

All of New York's scoring came in the first three minutes. Buddy Young brought the opening kickoff back 33 yards to the New York 43 and on the first play from scrimmage streaked 57 yards for a marker.

When Mutryn fumbled on the first Buffalo play, Duke Iverson recovered. On the second play Dan Panciera passed to Bruce Alford for 28 yards and a second touchdown. Harvey Johnson kicked both extra points and that ended the Yankee scoring before many of the 16,758 customers found their seats.

Voight's 73 Wins Low Gross

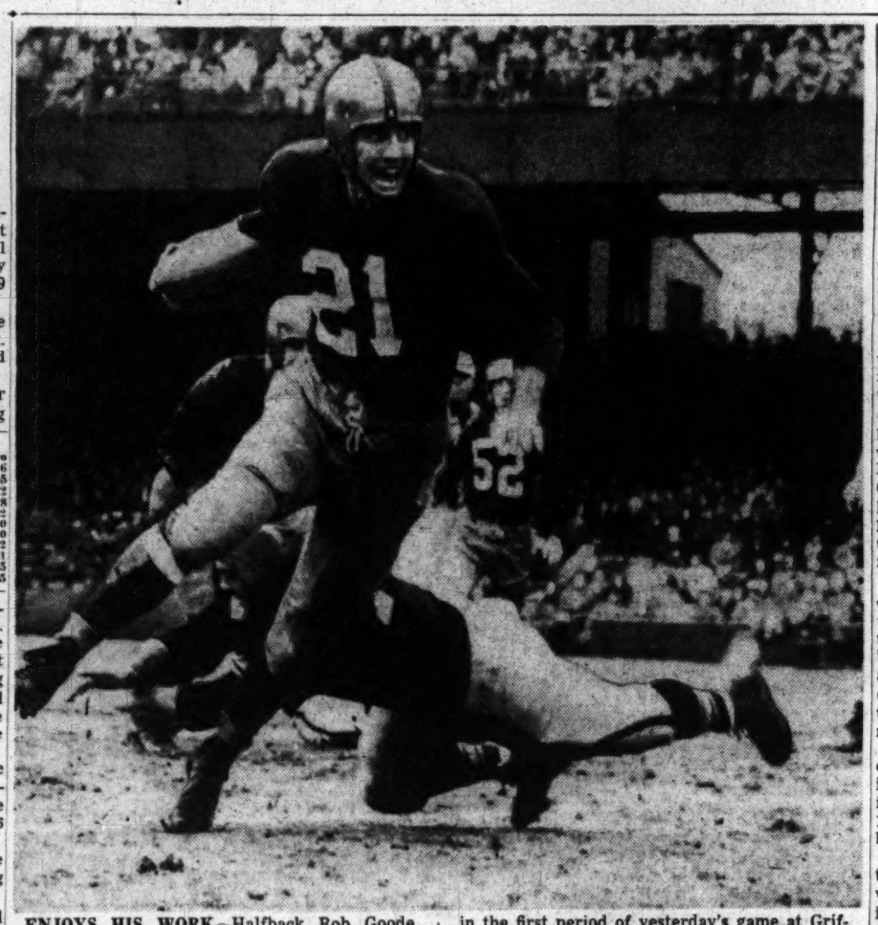
George Voight had a 73 to win low gross in Prince Georges Country Club's turkey tournament yesterday. Low net prizes were awarded to C. Ingles, 94—26—68; E. Tarrant, 78—9—69; Lou Heath, 88—18—70; Nick King, 78—8—70, and C. Condon, 76—6—70.

The last regularly scheduled tournament, for the Prince Georges Bank trophy, will be held next Sunday.



ENJOYS HIS WORK—Halfback Rob Goode (21) seems to get a huge kick out of the whole thing as he eludes a Pittsburgh tackler, Darrell Hogan, and picks up 8 yards for the Redskins in the first period of yesterday's game at Griffith Stadium. The Redskins wound up with their second 27-14 victory of the season over the Steelers

Navy's Lightweights Had What It Takes To Hold Burly Tulane to 21-All Deadlock

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

NAVY'S BACKS certainly threw what little weight they have around in their electrifying 21-21 tie with burly Tulane in New Orleans Saturday.

Vic Vine, 160 pounds made two of Navy's six-pointers. Duff Arnold, also 160 soaking wet, bulled 6 yards for the other.

Roger Drew isn't exactly light at 185, but he's little enough—only 5-foot-8. Drew provided the three vita extra points with place kicks as true as those he inflicted on Army last year.

He might have added three more winning points if Referee L. L. McMaster hadn't thrown himself across his leg as he attempted a field goal from the 23. The savvy official ruled that the game was over and his prompt action certainly forestalled an argument that would still be raging if Drew had made the goal after time ran out.

Even a Tulane homecoming crowd had to applaud the exploits of these lightweights and a few more. The latter included Arlington's injured Billy Earl who insisted on putting his 160 pounds into the conflict; Elvis Purvis, also 160, and Frankie Scolpino.

Scolpino is a 5-foot-7, 155 pounder who constantly has trouble convincing gatekeepers he's a bona fide member of the Navy squad. He is, though, and understudy for underrated Dave Bannerman at fullback.

The story of Vine typifies the story of plucky Navy. Last year as a plebe, he played only intramural football. Vic, a 21-year-old former Marine, certainly doesn't look like a football player. His coaches don't think he plays like an orthodox one, either.

He doesn't. But that little matter didn't prevent him from taking a 5-yard pass for one goal and plunging over like a rugged fullback on the other against the Southeastern Conference hotshot.

Tangle-footed Vine, who slips and skids all over the field, is an excellent pass receiver, too. Navy figures he hasn't missed one near him all season.

Yes, sir, the lightweights had it Saturday. All they needed—and got—was stellar performances by 210-pound Bob Zastrow and 225-pound Paul Tetreault. The former threw the passes; Tetreault supplied a great line game at both tackle and guard.

Redskins' 4th Period Rally Beats Steelers

center, and came down in the willing arms of Redskin Halfback Howie Livingston who bulled up to the Steeler 42.

Nearly everybody in the stands was happy about a 9-yard pass from Sammy Baugh to Hugh the air by Al Demao, Redskin (Bones) Taylor on the first play, but not half as happy as they were when Sam whipped a fast one to Bob Goode on the next play. Goode was going all the way when he ran into deefnder Howard Hartley, a former Redskin, just short of the goal line. He rolled over ride.

But Back Judge Carl Rebele, who was booed for three speedy whistles on touchdown plays during the afternoon, ruled Goode had been stopped on the 1-yard line and it remained for Stout to grind over left guard for his second touchdown on the following scrimmage.

Poillon was charged with one of his rare misses of a placement immediately afterward, but Washington had a 20-14 lead and only 1:57 of play remained on the scoreboard clock.

Pittsburgh handled the ball just three more times before the score was 27-14. Once was Frank Minini's return of the kickoff to the Steeler 31. The second was Fink's 30-yard pass to Elbie Nickel, and the third was a mistake.

Finks was trying to reach Jerry Nuzum with another toss when Dan Sandifer, the Redskins' ace interceptor of 1948, got in the way and lugged the ball 59 lightning-like yards before he was knocked out of bounds by George Papach on the Steeler 17.

Stout almost got his third touchdown on the Redskins' first line play, but again the ball was brought back to the 1 after Pete had it in the end zone.

The payoff punch was turned over to Rookie Harry Dowda, who was pulled out of a pileup just over the goal with the ball hugged to his chest. This time Poillon didn't miss on the conversion as scoring was completed for the day.

Stout wound up with the day's rush honors on 107 yards in seven trips.

Baugh completed eight of his 15 pitches, Gilmer four out of 12. But Alabama Harry took credit for the only touchdown pass of the day. It came midway of the second period, giving Washington a 7-0 lead after the Steelers had been denied a touchdown in the first frame.

A blocked kicked had given Pittsburgh possession only 27 yards out and Art Rooney's lads plowed to a first down on the Redskin 8. Nuzum slanted through tackle, was downed briefly by Mont but got up to cross the double white line.

The play was ruled dead at the Redskin 3, and Washington proceeded to stage the only goal line stand of the day, finally taking over a yard away from trouble.

It was second down and 11 to go when Gilmer started the scoring parade in the second frame. He was pinned back but jumped high into the air to hurl from back of his own 49 before being roughed up thoroughly. Taylor was in a cozy group consisting of Hartley, Gage and Bob Hanlon when he caught the 50-pound lob at the Steelers' 6 and pushed backward across the goal. Poillon kicked the first of his three extra points.

That apparently irked the Steelers. They came right back with an 80-yard march, using up 12 plays and capped by Fink's 5-yard end run around Sandifer and Herb Shoener to score standing up. Joe Glamp's placement tied the score at 11:39 of the second quarter.

The Steelers were threatening to break the 7-7 stalemate as the half ended, but they didn't get around to it until the first time they had the ball in the third quarter. From their own 34 they romped in 10 ground plays and a single pass to an inch away from the last white stripe.

Fullback Jerry Shipkey covered the most important inch on his third trip with he ball from five yards back. Glamp converted, making it 14-7 in the Steelers' favor and setting up the fnacy last act.

Glamp, who beat the Redskins last year with a last-minute field goal, had a chance to boost Pittsburgh's lead to 17-7 late in the third period. He missed his field goal shot, however, from the 25.

The Redskins took charge shortly thereafter and made up for a lot of things.

Cooper Faces Titone Tonight In 3d Match

The little Brooklyn Italian who branded the only knockout on Jimmy Cooper's splendid record is going to try for two straight tonight at Turner's Arena.

Charlie Titone pulled the unexpected a few weeks ago when he flattened Washington's featherweight champion in the sixth round.

Tonight's 10-round headliner will be the rubber match. Cooper won the first time, but because it was a split decision they were rematched, the Titone unwound his Sunday punch in that sixth round.

Actually Cooper was sent on his way to defeat in the fifth when Titone landed a crushing shot to the jaw, a blow Jimmy never shook off when he went out at the sixth round bell.

Cooper remains confident that nothing like that will happen tonight.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez has rounded up an interesting supporting card for tonight. In the principal preliminary Pat Thomas, a champion as an amateur, will be out to make it eight victories in eight pro starts, when he meets Walter Ham.

Other bouts: Kid Saucer vs. Jimmy Ward, Sugar Boy Scott vs. Jimmy O'Brien and Herbert Stowe vs. Jimmy Briscoe.

49'ers Rally To Throttle Colts, 28-10

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP)—San Francisco bounced back after being behind twice today to defeat the battling Baltimore Colts, 28 to 10, in an All-America Conference game before 23,704 in Babe Ruth Stadium.

Quarterback Frankie Albert passes accounted for two TD scores.

The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for San Francisco and brought its season's record to 7 and 3 out of 10. It was the ninth loss in 10 games for the Baltimore Colts.

Rex Grossman place-kicked his fifth field goal of the season in the first period to put Baltimore in front.

Albert unwrapped his pitching arm in the second quarter to complete three passes in a 64-yard drive. The climax was a 10-yard toss to End Paul Salata to give San Francisco a 7-3 half-time lead.

Exchanging the ball on a fumble and intercepted pass, Baltimore punched over an early third-period touchdown to regain a 10-7 lead. The Colts, paced by Y. A. Tittle's three complete passes, traveled 60 yards to the opposition's 78 only to lose the ball on a fumble.

Two plays later, Bob Kelly intercepted an Albert pass on the 33 and returned it to the 13. Tittle threw to Harry Jagade on the 3 and on the next play the Colt quarterback sneaked it over.

Sparked by Joe Perry's 37-yard run, the Forty Niners took the next kickoff back for a score, Norm Standlee going over from the 8. Standlee's 35-yard jaunt highlighted another scoring drive to start the fourth period, Sam Cathcart going over the goal from the 1.

After Perry Cathcart and Jim Cason had lugged the pigskin 58 yards to the 13, Albert lobbed to Alyn Beals in the end zone for the final score.

Touchdowners To Hear Harris

Big George Mikan, towering basketball star of the Minneapolis Lakers, and Bucky Harris, newly appointed manager of the Washington Senators, will be guests of honor at the weekly Touchdown Club's luncheon tomorrow afternoon at 12:30.

Ed MacAvery and Coach Grady Lewis, of the St. Louis Basketball Bombers will also be present.

Harris will turn back the pages to better days when the Nats were winning ennants in 1924 and 1925 and will also discuss Nat plans for the future.

Eagles Hand Rams First Defeat, 38-14

with Hoerner doing half of it. The result was a miserly 27 yards.

Waterfield, who yielded the quarterbacking and passing duties with no reluctance to Norm Van Brocklin in the fourth quarter, tried 28 passes and completed 17, but most of his success came early in the first quarter when he pitched the Eagles to their 7-0 lead.

After that, Waterfield was best remembered today as the husband of Jane Russell and not as one of football's best pitchers.

The Eagles scored in every conceivable way. They had two long marches—88 and 64 yards—a pass interception, a "steal" and a 34-yard pass play for their scores in addition to Patton's field goal.

The Rams scored the first time they got the ball, going 66 yards in nine plays following Joe Muha's opening kickoff. Waterfield, throwing short, buttonhook aerials with great success, completed seven out of his first eight throws and got his Rams down to the 7-yard line. From here he tossed to Tom Fears for the game's first touchdown.

Trailing 7-3 going into the second quarter, the Eagles went to work. Here, briefly, is how they manufactured their success, touchdown by touchdown:

1. With Thompson passing, they went 64 yards in eight plays to the Rams' 4 from where Myers bucked over. Thompson hit Jack Ferrante with two passes, good for 44 yards, to eat up most of the yardage.

2. The Eagles stuck to the ground chiefly for their 88-yard drive, which was climaxed with their second touchdown. Pritchard started it with a 34-yard reverse and climaxed it with a 34-yard run with a screen pass from Thompson.

3. To make it 24-7, defensive Halfback Russ Craft stole the ball from Hirsch on the Rams' 22 and bulled over for a touchdown. Hirsch had just received a 9-yard aerial from Waterfield and ran 5 yards to the 22, where Craft simply took the ball away from him.

4. The Eagles didn't find it necessary to punt even once in the first half. They tried their first punt in the third quarter and it proved a great play—setting up another touchdown. Halfback Tom Kalmanir fumbled Muha's punt on the Eagles' 46 and Ferrante swooped down on it for the Eagles. Two plays later, Thompson passed 45 yards to Pisos to make it 31-7.

5. Defensive Halfback Dick Humbert set up the Eagles fourth quarter touchdown by intercepting Van Brocklin's pass on the Rams 49. Thompson pitched 25 yards to Ferrante and Myers drove down to the 1. On third down, Thompson faked the Rams out of their shoe-tops by deftly pitching out to Parmer for the score.

With less than two minutes to play, Van Brocklin completed two long passes—one to Fears for 43 yards and the second to Currivan for 26 to move the Californians down to the Eagles 3. At this point, Vitamin Smith plowed over, but it was hardly enough to overcome the 31-point deficit.

Pimlico Cup, Longest Stake Race, Tops Turf Program

Manly 'Cap To Be Run Thursday

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 6.—Longest stake race on the American calendar of turf events will be the highlight offered this week by the Maryland Jockey Club. This is the Pimlico Cup, a handicap run over the extended route of 2½ miles.

The Cup is scheduled for Saturday and will be contested for the major portion of a prize of $15,000 added. It will share honors on the week's program with the Manly Steeplechase Handicap, at 2½ miles, on Thursday afternoon. It will be the 29th runing of the Manly and 18th running of the Cup.

Top Flight Competition

The field for the Cup promises to provide a keen contest, for several top flight route runners not only are eligible but are pointing for this particular event.

Among those rated likely to run are A. J. Sackett's Gasparilla, winner of the Sagamore Stakes at Laurel; F. A. Bonsal's Pilaster, one of the distance stars of last fall; E. E. Voynow's Stud Poker, top performer in the Midwest all summer; Edward Lasker's Natural, C. Mahlon Kline's Bayeux, Frank Frankel's Flashco, Miss Margie Fisher's Shivaree, Brookmeade Stable's Blue Hills and H. G. Bedwell's Leamour.

The last two runnings of the Pimlico Cup were taken by Mill River Stable's Miss Grillo, but this famed distance running mare has been retired from competition.

Trough Hill to Run

Trough Hill, winner of the Battleship Steeplechase Handicap last Thursday, is expected to defend his newly won laurels when the Manly is offered.

Among his prominent rivals will be Brookmeade's Fleettown, Graham Grant's Luan Casca, Robert Grant's Sun Bath, Happy Hill Farm's Adaptable, Harry LaMontagne's Larky Day, Kent Miller's Elkridge and Rokeby Stable's American Way.

Bill Bennings Says:

DEAR FOLKS: . .

AT PIMLICO.

The apprentice rider who may be this fall's edition of the 1948 Picou hereabouts is Sam Boulmetis, a little Greek-American boy who starred in New Jersey this summer. Sam boots winners home with all the finesse of a journeyman and is developing a following that is expected to grow before Bowie rolls around. Jockey Doug Dodson left for a Florida vacation before resuming his saddle work at Tropical Park. Last Friday when the crowd booed the disqualifying of Maryland Day, the customers must have forgotten quickly because betting went up more than $10,000 on the next race. Big sale of horses here next Friday, the majority from the estate of the late Crispin Oglebay. BILL.

Millions of Customers Served by 1,400 Independent Jobbers and 45,000 Independent Dealers — ALL BENEFIT!

OFTEN oil must travel thousands of miles before it's refined and trucked to your dealer's pumps.

And that's where pipe lines serve you well—for in many cases, they're the most efficient, cost-cutting oil carrier there is.

That's why Socony-Vacuum laid 3,000 miles of new pipe line last year alone. Their efficiency helps bring you a bigger money's-worth in petroleum.

Pipe lines are part of a carefully integrated operation designed to keep your neighborhood Mobilgas dealer competitive—supplied with the high quality oil products you want—in the quantities you need—and at the right price.

Efficiency, too, is the reason why we bought new tankers, installed new refining equipment, expanded storage and warehouse facilities—improved our operation all the way from oil exploration through drilling, transporting, researching and refining—to final distribution.

Today, 46,400 Mobilgas dealers and jobbers—respected, successful businessmen in your community—are able to serve millions of motorists a day—and are constantly creating bigger and better business opportunities for themselves! . . .

The Federal Diary
by Jerry Kluttz

Shorter Work Day, Vacation Cut Talked For U. S. Workers

Shorter vacations and work days —they're definite possibilities for Federal workers. A proposal along this line has been discussed in Government circles:

A reduction in the work week from 40 to 37½ hours (five days of 7½ hours instead of five days of eight hours), and a reduction in vacations from 26 to 20 days a year. Overtime pay, however, wouldn't start until after an employe had worked more than 40 hours a week, the same as it is now.

Federal employes and officials alike will give more thought to the annual-leave problem as Congress prepares to face it early next year. Congress is committed to take up the issue. Meantime, a search is on for an agreeable solution before Congress returns. The shorter vacation and work week proposal is one of several debated.

Another suggestion would be a graduated system of annual leave based on years of service. It has been proposed, for example, that employes be limited to 20 days during their first five years of Government work; 25 days for the next 10 years, and 30 days for all years of service over 15. Advocates of this plan point out that as people get older they require longer vacations to keep in top working condition.

In agreeing on a compromise bill to raise the salaries of postal employes, the 10 Senate-House conferees postponed action on the House-approved provision to increase vacations for postal employes from 15 to 20 days a year. The conferees decided to wait until early next year and then try to work out a uniform vacation system for all Federal workers.

At the sessions, several of the conferees argued for a provision to fix a maximum of 20 days annual vacations for all employes.

Postal workers get 15 days annual leave. Other Federal workers get 26 days. The discrimination between the two groups would be wiped out if the postal employes were raised to 26 days but Congress is reluctant to do it. The Administration, it's reported, wouldn't object to 20 days vacation for all employes.

It's a cinch that employe groups won't accept shorter vacations without a fight. As one official explained: "Twenty days of vacation wouldn't be such a big step backward if it were accompanied by a shorter work week." He explained that the present work week of 40 hours is an hour longer than it was in prewar years and that a number of States, cities, and private concerns have work weeks of less than 40 hours.

STORY: A friend of mine, a former newspaperman, was anxious to get a Government information job. He's on Civil Service's eligible register and he was pleased momentarily the other day when he received a notice from a Federal agency offering him a job. But he read the following job description and wilted:

"Incumbent will be required to travel constantly. Assignments in the past have included:

"1. Spending a week in January on the ice cap of the Bering Straits and living on emergency rations in an ice house built by the reporter; (2) riding and broadcasting from a TF 60C, the two-seat jet trainer at speed up to 612 miles per hour, and doing 'pull outs' severe enough to cause complete unconsciousness; (3) reporting from a decompression chamber at a forced altitude of 40,000 feet, describing the various stages of anoxis including 'blacking out,' and (4) living in a tropical jungle and eating roots, rattlesnakes, and other foods available."

When my friend finished reading the job description, he sighed: "Gosh, it's great to be unemployed."

GPO: The skilled mechanics at the Government Printing Office—the so-called per diem workers —are seeking pay boosts up to 10 cents an hour. Negotiations will get underway soon with the Public Printer.

Pay rates of the GPO per diems are fixed in line with prevailing salaries paid by private printing concerns here. A 4-cent-an-hour boost recently was approved for many non-Government printers here. As a result, the GPO force seems assured of getting at least a small pay boost as of December 19 when a legal salary adjustment can be made.

The Treasury wage board follows the GPO on wage scales for its 1200 skilled employes in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Car Injures 6-Year-Old D. C. Boy in Silver Spring

Six Adults Hurt In Other Area Accidents Sunday, One Critically

A 6-year-old boy was injured critically and three other persons were injured in automobile accidents in the Washington area yesterday.

Jan Monroe Burch, 6, of 840 Geranium st. nw., was struck by an automobile operated by Carl E. Lee, 23, 4804 Bradley blvd., Chevy Chase, about 1:30 p. m. in front of 7704 Blair rd., Silver Spring.

The child was taken to Washington Sanitarium and Hospital at Takoma Park where he was said to have possible fractures of the skull and shoulder. His condition was reported to be critical.

Montgomery County Police at Silver Spring said Lee told them the child ran in front of his car. A charge of reckless driving was placed against him pending changes in the child's condition.

Three persons were cut and bruised in a three-car collision at 8:45 a. m., yesterday, at 18th and Taylor sts. ne.

Metropolitan Police reported that autos driven by Michael A. Dizebba, 34, of 4813 Homer ave., Suitland, Md., and Oscar H. Heintze, 46, of 406 Ethan Allen ave., Takoma Park, collided at the intersection. A moment later, an auto driven by George B. Watson, 36, of 4534 Eastern ave. ne., struck Dizebba's car, officers said.

Heintze, Dizebba, and a passenger in Dizebba's auto, Anthony Sego, 34, of 3418 Newton st., Mount Rainier, were treated at Casualty Hospital for cuts and bruises and then released. Dizebba forfeited $50 collateral on a charge of passing a stop sign.

One Leesburg youth was injured critically and two others were hurt about 1:30 a. m. yesterday when their car failed to negotiate a curve and crashed into a bank on the Leesburg-Wheatland rd. about 6 miles from Leesburg, Va.

Jack Moriarity, 19, was taken to Loudoun County Hospital in a critical condition with fractured pelvis, internal injuries, broken jaw and head injuries. Roy Apperson, 19, and Tunis Campbell, 21, were treated for less serious injuries.

Wife Killed, Husband Hurt Crossing Road

Hillsville, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Mrs. George L. Dalton was killed instantly and her husband injured when they were struck by an automobile today near their home three miles from here on State Route 52, police reported.

They were crossing the road to visit neighbors when the accident occurred.

James Edison Peters, driver of the car, of Floyd, was charged with manslaughter and held in $1000 bond.

Hayes Sings Tuesday

Roland Hayes, tenor, will give a recital at 8 p. m., Tuesday, at Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R sts. nw.

Transit Music Ballots Begin To Reach Post

Tabulation Awaiting Receipt of Opinions Sent in by Mail

Ballots in the straw vote being conducted by The Washington Post on radio broadcasts in buses and streetcars began to come in yesterday.

Because mailed ballots had not yet been received and counted, no conclusive trend could be established whether the majority favor the radio program in Capital Transit Co. vehicles or not.

The radio issue is being considered by the District Public Utilities Commission. The Washington Post ballot is neither intended nor expected to influence that decision, but merely to provide a means for a wide expression of public sentiment.

"Yes" or "No" ballots, printed on Page 1 of yesterday's editions, may be mailed to The Music Ballot, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C., or dropped in the ballot box in the front lobby of The Washington Post Building, 1337 E st. nw.

The final tabulation will be published shortly in The Washington Post.

Teen-Age Picnics in Mansion Blamed for Spectacular Fire

Teen-age picnics in the unoccupied Clifton mansion at 3041 Whitehaven st. nw. probably were responsible for the spectacular blaze that consumed its interior Saturday night.

This was the opinion yesterday of Roy Warfield, deputy fire marshal, who launched an investigation. He said neighbors reported they never had seen tramps or "smoke bums" in the vicinity, but have seen teen-agers about the place. They could not identify any of the youths.

The mansion is owned by Mrs. Truxtun Beale, Washington socialite who occupies the historic Decatur House, fronting on Lafayette Park, near the White House.

Warfield said the walls were left in such precarious condition by the fire that no sifting of the interior remains could be started yesterday.

He said he is confident no one was inside.

A policeman has been stationed to guard the place until District building inspectors can decide what must be done about the thick but possibly cracked stone walls.

Gareys See Amnesia Victim

Clutching at any possible shred of hope of finding their missing 13-year-old daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Garey yesterday visited an 18-year-old girl who is at Gallinger Hospital as an amnesia victim. She is unidentified.

Lucille Garey, who looks more like 16 than her 13 years and was a student at Alice Deal Junior High School, disappeared from her home last Sunday, ostensibly to visit a friend who lives nearby. Garey, a civilian engineer attached to the Department of the Army in Tokyo, flew home Thursday to search for her. He has offered $1000 reward for information leading to her return.

Several persons telephoned the Police Missing Persons bureau yesterday commenting on the likeness of a picture of Lucille, published yesterday in The Washington Post and a picture of the amnesia victim, printed previously in The Post.

Garey said yesterday he is convinced his daughter is the victim of wanderlust, coupled with an intense interest in the Western part of the United States. He fears for her safety because so far as is known, she had but $15 when she left.

The girl amnesia victim came to police headquarters Tuesday night saying she had walked three hours in the rain and did not know who she is or where she was going. Policewomen are convinced now that she is from out of the city.

Woman, Man Held in Gun, Dope Case

Police Surveillance Nets Two in Toils; Report Heroin Found

A man was charged with carrying a deadly weapon and a woman with violation of the Harrison Narcotics Act as a result of arrests early yesterday through police surveillance of the man.

He was booked as Lloyd Samuel Lyles, 26, of 54 Quincy pl. ne., and she as Mary Doris Day, 26, of 1704 Gales st. ne.

Police said they had been watching Lyles and stopped a cab which he and the Day woman engaged near 7th and T sts. nw., at 3 a. m. A search of the pair, they said, showed 6 capsules of alleged heroin in her possession, and a loaded revolver in his clothing. The Day woman was arrested in a disorderly house and pandering case in May, 1948.

Bill Easing Hatch Act Gets Backing

Alexandria's City Democratic Committee yesterday indorsed legislation to exempt Federal employes from Hatch Act provisions excluding them from taking part in partisan politics.

Chairman Bernard M. Fagelson said the committee had agreed to work "intensively" for passage of a House bill to give blanket exemption from Hatch Act restrictions to communities housing a high percentage of Government employes.

The measure has passed the House and been reported out by a Senate committee. He said the local unit would join forces with supporters of the measure in Arlington and Fairfax to work toward passage of the bill at the next session of Congress.

"Easily Meets the Requirements"

"Alexandria, with its thousands of civilian employes of Government departments, including those at the Naval Ordnance Plant, and its large group of service people, easily meets the percentage requirements set forth in the pending legislation," Fagelson declared.

Indorsement of the legislation came as the committee renewed its attacks on a proposal calling for nonpartisan election of some city officials, slated to be decided in a referendum Tuesday.

The referendum was asked by the City Charter Commission, which proposes to include the nonpartisan election system in a new city charter if the voters approve it.

Supporters of nonpartisan elections have failed to explain why voters are being asked to decide on only one phase of the proposed charter, Fagelson charged. He accused the charter commission of failing to keep a promise to "inform both the City Council and people by November 1 as to the other changes it proposes to recommend."

Denies Promising Date

A. Stanley King, chairman of the commission, denied the unit ever had promised to make public its recommendations by any specific date.

He said his group had asked for a referendum on the nonpartisan elected proposal because it felt the proposed change was of "sufficient importance" to require an advisory vote of the electorate.

King said final recommendations of the commission have not yet been formulated, although a rough draft of the proposed charter has been submitted to a committee of University of Virginia government experts for study.

Suffrage Changes And Local Issues Highlight Election In 4 Communities

An estimated 30,000 voters are expected at the polls in nearby Virginia Tuesday to settle a variety of local issues, vote on a controversial State poll tax amendment, and elect a slate of State officials.

Along with the rest of Virginia, voters in Alexandria, Falls Church, Arlington and Fairfax will ballot from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. in a general election that finds the poll tax proposal sharing top billing with community contests in each place.

Anticipating a Democratic landslide, the campaigners have virtually ignored the State-wide election for Governor and other high posts. The major Democratic candidates are John S. Battle for Governor; L. Preston Collins, for lieutenant governor, and J. Lindsey Almond, jr., for attorney general.

Some of the warmest campaigning across the river has centered on the Campbell amendments, which would eliminate the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting, but would, its opponents say, provide the Legislature with broad powers that might lead to objectionable voting restrictions.

Here are the local issues that have enlivened the usually dull general election campaign in four nearby communities:

In Alexandria, where Assembly Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, a Democrat, is opposed for reelection by Republican Richard W. Buckingham, the legislative fight is overshadowed by a controversial proposal calling for nonpartisan election of city officials.

This measure, proposed by a commission authorized to prepare a new city charter, would abolish party primaries in the selection of the seven-man City Council, City Attorney and City Tax Collector.

Candidates in Arlington

Arlington voters will fill one seat on the five-member county board and elect two members of the House of Delegates, with three candidates in each contest. Seeking the county board seat are Basil M. DeLashmutt, Democratic incumbent; Robert W. Cox, nonpartisan candidate, and Jacob Bechtel, an independent. Candidates for the two House of Delegates seats are George Damm and Maynard Magruder, Democratic incumbents, and I. Lee Potter, Republican.

Fairfax County voters will focus their attention on a single contest for one seat in the House of Delegates. The candidates are Edwin Lynch incumbent Democrat, and Douglas A. Clark, Republican.

In Falls Church, voters will select a commissioner of revenue in the only city-wide contest, and a justice of the peace in a second race confined to the First Ward.

Candidates for commissioner of revenue are LaRue Van Meter, incumbent Democrat, who also holds the appointive post of city attorney, and A. Burke Hertz, also a Democrat. The city does not conduct primaries.

Seeking election as Ward 1 justice of the peace are George T. McNab and Robert C. Fitzgerald.

Eligibility Clarified

As the tempo of campaign activity slowed down yesterday, election officials reminded voters of these eligibility requirements:

1. Veterans claiming service discharge as exemption from payment of capitation taxes for any of the last three years must present discharge certificates when applying for a ballot.

2. Persons who paid the State poll tax in any county or city other than that in which they wish to vote, but who have complied with registration requirements otherwise, just present tax receipt when applying for ballots.

Voters who have paid poll taxes for the past three years in the community in which they are registered need present no evidence of payment, it was pointed out, since the lists are made up of tax-paid registered voters.

Never Underestimate the Power of a Feminist, Judge Proves

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter
(Second of a Series)

As much perhaps as anyone alive, Burnita Shelton Matthews is a measure of the ground covered by the frailer sex in the last 30 years.

Having picketed the White House as a young girl in Wilson's time to get her sex the vote, she has now been appointed by another Democratic President as the first woman U. S. District Court judge.

All this illustrates yet another phase of the tenacity of Southern womanhood.

When Mrs. Matthews, second woman in American history named to any Federal Court of General jurisdiction, was 11 and had just won another oratory contest, a noted Mississippi criminal lawyer told her father, "You ought to make a lawyer out of that little girl."

Language Unrecorded

The exact language of Mr. Shelton's Southern-accented reply is unrecorded. It was monumentally negative. His only daughter had shown a precocity for music as well as oratory. He needed no one to tell him she would be better off in a career of the song rather than the spoken word.

"Father was a rather liberal man," Mrs. Matthews recalls. "He felt it was all right for women to serve on juries. But he thought I'd be happier doing what women did down there in Mississippi."

Mrs. Matthews, who at age 54 has many more black than grey hairs in her head, has the air of a woman who has been quite happy in the more than 20 years she has been doing something other than what most women in Mississippi do. She has also been eminently successful in this practice of law.

She has long since been recognized as one of the Nation's leading women attorneys, whose national organization she once headed. But when a prominent Washington male lawyer, hailing her appointment to the District bench, described her as "way above the average" as a lawyer he used no qualifying adjectives of sex.

Mrs. Matthews, a Democrat and a Methodist, has gained wide fame as a champion of equal rights for women and is responsible for much legislation in this direction. With four brothers and no sisters she learned early that it was a man's world.

"But you know, it was a funny thing, I got the edge. Before I was old enough to plait my hair, Father would take me with him on his political campaigns."

Her father was collector of taxes, then court clerk at Hazelhurst, Miss., an occupation circumstance that was to prove fateful in his daughter's career. Young Burnita found herself spending a lot of time on the courthouse lawn —and liking the atmosphere more than suited her father.

Seven years after the noted criminal lawyer had made his suggestion, her father sent Mrs. Matthews off to the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music to study piano and voice in preparation for teaching and/or concert work.

Dutifully studying music by day, she spent her nights reading legal tomes. Some of them she got by writing away to cousins who were lawyers. Thinking to discourage this flighty 18-year-old girl, they sent back their biggest, dustiest and most technical law books.

"Pure Greek" She Recalls

"They were pure Greek," Mrs. Matthews recalls. "I was fascinated."

Her furtive law reading continued vigorously through a couple of years teaching music in village public schools in Texas, Georgia and Mississippi. She kept praying for an assignment to a town big enough to have a law school instead of to places like Tallapoosa, Ga., pop. 2000, which she got.

Meantime, her impatience to be a barrister was doubly fired by her reading of the law, in which she made out gross discrimination against her sex. That man Blackstone!

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews, photographed at home

Reading him, she came away with vast respect—but also with a sharp desire to overturn some of the ideas propounded by the great authority on the English common-law.

"Sir William Blackstone," Mrs. Matthews remembers, "said that on marriage a woman's identity was merged into that of her husband, that she had no separate existence and he controlled the children and property, including her earnings.

"Finally he wound up with saying the husband could chastise his wife with a stick no thicker than his thumb. He said that all these disabilities were really for her protection and benefit. He said—and this is a direct quote—'So great a favorite is the female with the law.'"

Enough to ignite the blood of any true Southern woman. Without saying anything to her family, Mrs. Matthews left her current teaching job and entrained for Washington, D. C., a town big enough to have a law school.

Working days in the Veterans Administration, she started attending National University Law School nights—and so wrote her father.

Down in Mississippi, Shelton decided maybe that criminal lawyer was right after all. He wrote back he would help get what she wanted, pay for the law education.

Studying Blackstone in law school, Mrs. Matthews began battling him on the outside. Those painted signs on Washington sidewalks, "Come to such-and-such place—suffrage meeting," were talking right straight up to the young girl from Mississippi.

"I worked days, went to school nights and on Sundays went over to the headquarters of the National Woman's Party and sealed envelopes."

From the envelope-sealing—and White House-picketing stage Mrs. Matthews went on to become a leader in the movement in the sun." They are not by any to obtain for women "their places means there, she feels, but they are considerably warmer than when she first came to Washington.

Women Taxed Too

"Women are taxed like everyone else. They do most of the buying. They're said to own most of the wealth of the country. But: if a woman wants to buy an annuity she has to pay more because of greater life expectancy—while if she wants to buy life insurance she pays the same premium as a man.

Good example both of something accomplished and something that in Mrs. Matthews' view remains to be done in the field of women's rights is the 1927 District law allowing women to serve on juries, of which she is the author.

She and her cohorts, after much work, got the law changed so women could serve on juries. But a Texan Congressman, insisting that "if a woman would, she would, and if she wouldn't, she wouldn't," rode through a special exempting clause: "Provided, that such service shall not be compulsory on any woman."

Thus a woman, if she chooses, can get out of jury service without giving a reason, a man can't. Mrs. Matthews hopes to see the day when this remaining discrimination against women in jury service here is removed.

Mrs. Matthews is also author of the 1935 statute revising the D. C. law on descent and distribution so as to eliminate preferences for the male line. She drafted similar inheritance bills for the States of New York and Arkansas which were enacted into law.

Lived By Practicing Law

But she wants it understood that she has "lived by practicing law, doing the things regular lawyers do, not just for women." Example of her general interests is her authorship of the 1944 act providing means whereby a D. C. property owner may free his real estate from an obsolete tax sale.

A leading male attorney here, referring to her career, said: "Anyone who can make that kind of success in the private practice of law is well qualified to be a judge. We need some more like her."

A woman lawyer spoke of her possession of "the judicial temperament, poise, a pleasing manner yet firmness."

The description would seem accurate. "Poise, a pleasing manner—yet firmness." A woman with slightly deep-set eyes, a Southern voice but not the extreme variety. Thus is the first "Her Honor" ever to ascend the bench in District Court.

She lives in an apartment at 1915 Kalorama rd. nw.—her husband, an Air Force major, is now stationed in Georgia.

There's a piano in the apartment and the woman who used to slip off and read Blackstone while a student at the Cincinnati Conservatory sometimes plays it. But with never a regret that she chose Blackstone, instead of that keyboard, for a career.

Dr. Niebuhr Cites World Need of Love

The Rev. Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr yesterday stressed the need for love and forgiveness in human relations in a sermon at the Washington Cathedral.

Dr. Niebuhr, professor of applied Christianity at Union Theological Seminary, New York, pointed out that one of the most pressing problems of human existence is how to get along with one another.

One "tragic aspect" of the world today, he said, is the "sharp contrast" between man's ability to harness and use the forces of nature and his failure to reach "human togetherness."

Not only is the global community broken," he said, by the most intimate of all human relations, the family is "threatened as never in any other age."

Dr. Niebuhr pointed out that the principles used in mastering nature will not be successful when applied to human relationships. Dealing with each other, he said, requires more than mere technical intelligence.

Factors which must be recognized in human relationships, he said, are that individuals are afraid and jealous of each other, that they need one another and are never complete alone, that they are dangerous to each other, and that they hurt each other.

In the global community the need for love and forgiveness of our enemies is as great as in the family unit, he said.

He cited Communist Russia as one of the most dangerous enemies in the world today, and declared that its fanaticism has partly grown from self-righteousness. Russia, he said, cannot love because it is too sure of itself.

The only way the world will achieve togetherness, Dr. Niebuhr declared, is through the wisdom of love and forgiveness.

Dedication Of New Road Set Nov. 26

Dedication ceremonies for the newly completed extension of Queens Chapel rd. in West Hyattsville, including the crowning of Miss Hyattsville, will be held at 2:30 p. m., November 26.

The new extension provides an easier route to the District of Columbia from the populous area along Queens Chapel rd.and Ager rd., both of which formerly stopped at Hamilton st.

The extension was constructed in a large hollow which split the two sections of Queens Chapel rd.

A band concert will precede the November 26 ceremonies. Hyattsville and West Hyattsville stores will be decorated for the occasion.

Selection of Miss Hyattsville is by ballots printed in the weekly newspapers of Hyattsville. Leading candidates of the 11 entries are Miss Thelma Tippett, 4701 Tanglewood dr., Miss Mary Ellen Owens, 5107 42d ave., and Miss Marjorie Allen, 5301 41st ave., the committee announced yesterday.

75 Tons of Straw Destroyed by Fire Near Poolesville

Fire yesterday destroyed a straw rick and 75 tons of straw valued at $1350 on a farm near Poolesville, Md.

Volunteer firemen saved a barn and its contents. The barn was scorched.

The fire was discovered by Raymond Poole, tenant farmer on the farm owned by William H. Thomas of Route 4, Frederick, Md., shortly after noon. The Upper Montgomery County, Gaithersburg-Washington Grove and Rockville Volunteer Fire Departments responded to the alarm, Walter Hershey of the Gaithersburg squad reported.

Fifteen calves and 14 pigs were led to safety from the barn which also contained 40 tons of hay, 500 barrels of corns and valuable farm machinery.

Woman's Death Laid to Burns

Mrs. Virginia Countee, 36, wife of Robert Countee, a District cab driver, died yesterday at Casualty Hospital as result of burns suffered when a heater exploded in their home at 1023 2d st. ne., as she ate breakfast, Friday morning.

The couple had moved to the home the day before, police said. Mrs. Countee suffered first, second and third degree burns over most of her body, hospital authorities said.

GU Professor Elected Head Of Ukrainians

Dr. Lev Dobriansky, assistant professor of economics at Georgetown University, was elected president of the Ukranian Congress Committee of America yesterday as the group concluded its two-day annual congress here.

The congress, held at the Hotel Statler, was attended by some 400 persons of Ukranian descent.

Resolutions passed yesterday pledged support to the President and the Government in all efforts to promote peace and freedom in the world; called on Americans and other freedom-loving people to resist the Soviet Union, communism and totalitarianism; expressed sympathy for the Ukranian people behind the Iron Curtain; and denounced Soviet persecution of religious groups, intellectuals and the people of the Ukraine as a whole.

Other new officers, elected for three-year terms, included Dmitro Halychyn of New York, first vice president; Dr. Longin Cehelsky of Philadelphia, second vice president; Eva Diddubchyshyn, of New York, executive secretary, and Joseph Laswyer of New York, treasurer.

A 12-member political policy board also was elected, with Stephen Jarema, former New York State assemblyman, as chairman.

Group to Discuss Boys Club Plan

Organization of the Boys Club of Silver Spring will be discussed at a meeting of 30 business and civic leaders Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the executive offices of the Little Tavern Shops, Inc., 1007 Ripley st., Silver Spring.

E. K. Morris, president of the Boys Club of Washington, and Daniel Culhane, regional director of the Boys Club of America, Inc., will speak.

The meeting is expected to authorize preparation of articles of incorporation, adopt by-laws and name a committee to nominate officers and members of the board of directors.

Russell H. Leonard

Brookline, Mass., Nov. 6 (AP).—Russell H. Leonard, 61, president of the Pepperell Manufacturing Co., died yesterday of a heart attack at his home.

Fund Drive Launched for Synagogue

A campaign for funds to erect a new $125,000 synagogue was launched yesterday by Congregation Beth Israel at a breakfast meeting at Greenway Town Hall, 3425 A st. se.

The two-story synagogue will be erected at 3408 C st. se. Martin Katzin, president of the congregation, will head the drive for $75,000.

Founded in 1944, the congregation now has a membership of over 250 families and has been meeting in rented quarters at 4008 Minnesota ave. ne. Its spiritual leader is Rabbi Gedaliah Rosenthal.

In outlining the plans for the fund, Katzin declared that "conditions have now reached the point where the very existence of the congregation is threatened by quarters which can no longer accommodate our religious, educational and social activities."

Guest speaker at the meeting was Abraham Waronoff, of the architectural firm of Brandt & Warnonoff, which designed the building. Plans call for a synagogue which will seat over 500 persons, four class rooms, a social hall and kitchen, rabbi's study and offices. Ground will be broken in February, 1950.

Campaign keymen are Irvin Altman, Philip Morris, Mrs. Abraham Krissoff and Harry Goodman.

Trinity Ends Celebration Of 50th Year

Trinity College yesterday concluded a two-day celebration of its fiftieth academic year.

Final event in the celebration was a solem pontifical mass of thanksgiving celebrated by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States. The Rev. Eugene M. Burke of the school of theology of the Catholic University of America, preached the sermon.

The choir from St. Paul's College, which sang at the first mass celebrated on the Trinity campus in 1900, sang at the service yesterday.

Delegates from more than 100 colleges and universities and Trinity alumnae from all over the country attended the anniversary celebration.

At a convocation on Saturday, honorary degrees were conferred on three distinguished American women. They are Dr. Jane M. Hoey, director of the Bureau of Public Assistance of the Federal Security Agency; Mother Mary Joseph Rogers, founder of the missionary order of Maryknoll Sisters, and Dr. Helen Constance White, professor of English at the University of Wisconsin.

W. G. Stuart Rites Today; Ex-House Aide

Funeral services for William G. Stuart, 74, committee reporter for the House of Representatives for more than 25 years, will be held at his home, 3446 Oakwood ter. nw., at 2 p. m. today. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Stuart died at his home Saturday after a lingering illness. His death, his family said, was hastened by a stroke he suffered last Tuesday.

At the time of his retirement in 1948 Mr. Stuart was considered the dean of committee reporters having served in that capacity for more than a quarter of a century. During his tenure he also ran his own reporting school for several years.

He was born in Washington and was a graduate of Central High School where he excelled in track sports. He held the city's high school record for the mile run for several years.

After attending the University of Pennsylvania, where he was a member of the four-mile relay team, Mr. Stuart returned to Washington to work for the Navy Department. He also worked for the Library of Congress and then began his own stenographic business.

Mr. Stuart was the nephew of the late Alexander T. Stuart, former District superintendent of schools.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pearl Goodman Stuart, and two sons, Donald G. and William D. Stuart, of the Oakwood terrace address, and two daughters, Mrs. Fred G. Dietrich, 1713 North Troy st., Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Richard T. Snowman, Rochester, N. Y.

W. B. Gifford Funeral Rites Set Today

Funeral services for William Bond Gifford, jr., retired manager of the Washington Branch of the American Radiator Co., will be held at 1 p. m. today at the S. H. Hines Co., 2901 14th st. nw.

Mr. Gifford

Mr. Gifford, who was 73 and lived at 5208 14 st. nw. died Friday at Emergency Hospital after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage.

Born in Lynn, Mass., he came to Washington from Philadelphia in 1909 as representative of the American Radiator Co. When the company established a branch here a few years later, he became its first manager and continued as manager until his retirement in 1941 after 40 years with the company.

Since 1924 he had been owner of the furniture firm of W. B. Gifford of Lynn, established by his father in 1876.

His wife, the late Cora Renton Gifford, died in 1947.

He was a life member of Golden Fleece Masonic Lodge and Sutton Royal Arch Chapter in Lynn, DeMolay Commandery Knights Templar, and Almas Temple of the Shrine, Washington.

Surviving him are three sons, William Renton Gifford of College Park, Md.; Charles Harwood Gifford of the 14th st. address, and John Fergus Gifford of Lynn; a daughter, Mrs. Hortense Gifford Schultz, of 1353 Jefferson st. nw.; two brothers, Lloyd Oakes Gifford and Ralph Percy Gifford, both of Lynn; a sister Mrs. Bertha Gifford Mailey of Andover, Mass, and six grandchildren.

Burial will be at Fne Grove Cemetery, Lynn, Mass., at 3 p. m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Anna M. Davidson

Paging All Homeless Dolls!

Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

MARTA PROCKIW AND THE REV. WALTER WOZNIAK
Rev. Wozniak holds two Ukrainian dolls—one alive, the other for sale

Ukraine Art Will Transform Discarded Toys

By Sonia Stein

IF YOUR little girl has passed from the age where she plays with dolls to the stage where she just saves the dolls she can't bear to part with, you might have one of them dressed in Ukrainian national costume this Christmas as the start of an internationally minded collection.

A group of Ukrainian displaced persons in Washington, all of them teachers and workers skilled in the handicraft, have opened an exhibit in a room at the Toy Shop, 1607 I st. nw., under the auspices of the Children's Museum.

On display are dolls dressed in minutest detail in costumes of the Poltava and Podillia districts of the Ukraine, as well as a variety of embroideries.

Supply Is Limited

MOST of the embroidered pieces shown are samples and show pieces made originally by Mrs. Caroline Prockiw for the guidance of her pupils in the Ukraine when she taught embroidery and handwork. These samples were preserved with great difficulty through the war years.

She and others among the talented Ukrainian women here also give lessons in handiwork and the making of dolls' clothes.

At present the supply of finished work is limited, since the DPs here are short of funds to buy materials with which to work. Since most of the men in the group, speaking little English, work at jobs which pay them only enough to support their families, their wives haven't the money to invest in the fine quality materials with which they like to work. Therefore, contributions of dolls from little girls burdened with too many, and of materials suitable for dressing them, would be very much appreciated by these emigres.

In addition to embroidered dresses, table mats, curtains, pillows and towels, this exhibit includes an embroidered picture.

The work is being done under the guidance of the Rev. Walter Wozniak, a young priest of the Greek Catholic Church who spent some time in German concentration camps. Later he escaped and hid in the Carpathian Mountains—subsisting on grass for days at a time—to evade the Russians.

Himself a displaced person who came to the United States 19 months ago, Father Wozniak has already served in parishes in North Dakota, Detroit and Spring Valley, N. Y.

His parish here, which includes about 15 families who have arrived from the Ukraine, meets at the Carmelite Fathers Church when the church is not otherwise in use.

Rents Workshop

FATHER WOZNIAK has rented a workshop for the group of craftsmen at 1309 Lawrence st. ne., and will himself take orders for their work at his rectory, 1938 Summit pl. ne., MI. 5170. Or orders may be placed at the exhibit.

Besides finding work for the Ukrainians who come here, and trying to establish a market for their handicraft work, Father Wozniak hopes to form a Ukrainian chorus.

With the chorus and the handiwork of his parishioners, Father Wozniak hopes to acquaint Washingtonians with the culture of the Ukrainian people, a Slavonic people of about 45 million who live in the southern part of eastern Europe near the Black Sea.

Polio Advisers Meeting to Map Drive

TWENTY-FIVE club leaders, state advisers and community heads arrived in Washington yesterday to attend the fifth annual conference of State Advisors on Women's Activities of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Purpose of the four-day conclave, which opens today at the Wardman Park Hotel, is to map out plans for an enlarged March of Dimes campaign in 1950.

Problems created by the 1949 epidemics, when 40,000 adults were stricken with polio, causing crucial depletion of national epidemic funds, will be reviewed.

An informal workshop and orientation session for newly appointed state advisers met yesterday afternoon. Miss Elaine Whitelaw, national director of women's activities, briefed the group.

Officially the conference will get underway at 9 a. m. today, with an Epidemic "Roundup" presented by George P. Voss, epidemic coordinator and director of chapters of the national foundation. Advisers from States hardest hit by this Nation's worst polio epidemic will give reports.

Lunch Talk Is Scheduled Today

"THE Joint Effort of Official and Voluntary Agencies" will be discussed at a 12:15 p. m. luncheon by Miss Mary Switzer, assistant to the Federal Security Administrator.

Problems involved in providing adequate care for polio patients will be discussed at a 9 a. m. session Tuesday. Speakers will include Miss Catherine Worthington, national foundation director of professional education; Dr. Robert Neville, national foundation director of orthopedic services, and Dr. Philip Stimson, associate professor of clinical pediatrics, Cornell University Medical College.

Mrs. Channing S. Walker, District adviser on women's activities, National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, will represent the District at the conference.

Representatives of women's clubs who will attend the conference include: General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president; National Congress of Parents and Teachers, Mrs. Newton P. Leonard, first vice president; American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Oscar Nelson, national child welfare chairman, and Mrs. Willis C. Reed, national community service chairman; Congress of Women's Auxiliaries of the CIO, Mrs. Faye Stephenson, president; National Council of Women of the United States, Mrs. Thomas Evans, president; National Council of Catholic Women, Mrs. A. S. Lucas, president; National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Mrs. Irmagene Holloway, director of health and safety; Women's Supreme Council of B'nai B'rith, Mrs. Hyman C. Weisman, president; National Society DAR, Mrs. Thomas L. Ballard, vice chairman; Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Mamie Landar, right worthy secretary; and YWCA, Mrs. Marian Lerigo McWilliams, health education chairman.

ON TODAY'S CALENDAR . . .

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle will discuss "International Understanding Through Education" at the University Women's Club's tea, 4 to 6 p. m., at the clubhouse, 1515 New Hampshire ave. nw. Mrs. Clyde Hadley will be tea hostess and Miss Mildred Green, chairman of the education committee, will preside. A business meeting will follow at 7 p. m. Other group meetings include the United Nations Study group at 2 p. m. and the French Conversation group at 2 p. m. . . . the University Park Woman's Club, Inc., will meet at 1:30 p. m. at the Riverdale Presbyterian Church. Speaker will be Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, chairman of the legislation department, General Federation of Women's Clubs . . . the Washington Simmons Club will meet at 8 p. m. at the Willard Hotel.

Tip the Scale? Then Tap the Pounds

Tapping the pounds away is a possibility offered by the D. C. Recreation Department. A new class in tap dancing is being offered Wednesday nights at 7 at Thomas Center, 12th and L sts. nw. Mrs. Hazel P. Richards, a normal school graduate of the Dance Masters of America, is the instructor.

Both men and women are welcome to the class which is for beginners. Further information available from Mrs. Mabelle Clark, the Recreation Office, Adams 2050.

Pronia Club Entertains

Members of the Pronia Club of St. Constantine and Helen Church were hostesses at a reception Saturday evening to honor Mrs. John A. Kopsidas, who has recently returned from a 15-month visit in Europe, mainly Greece.

Jobe' Says

Positive Colors Displace Shades

AFTER nearly two years of soft muted shades, I think it's exciting to see clear, bright, colors again. Flame red—brassy gold—vibrant jade green and a vivid shade of peacock blue—these are the new colors for either a dress or a suit to wear under your fur coat on a clear cold day.

I like them best in the new failles and ottomans. The crisp texture of the fabric seems to match the clear brightness of the colors.

Egypt Ambassador Attends Reception

The Egyptian Ambassador and Mme. Abdul Rahim were among those attending the reception yesterday given by Prof. and Mme. Basil Toutorsky in honor of Marius Thor, Danish violinist.

Others attending both the recital and reception included the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina, the Ambassador of Colombia and Senora Zuleta-Angel and their three daughters, the Senoritas Zuleta; the Charge d'Affaires of El Salvador and Senora Siri; the Secretary of the OAS and Senora Lleras; the Counselor of the Colombian Embassy and Senora Mejfa-Palacio; Maurice Thatcher, former Governor General of the Canal Zone, and Mrs. Thatcher; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke; Mme. Vladimir Rybar; Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, and others.

Ask Anne — About Church Christening

Could you please give me some information regarding the christening of a baby girl in a Protestant church? Is it necessary that the baby be dressed in all white? In what order do the participants stand during the ceremony? Is it customary to pay the minister who performs the ceremony? When there are two godmothers, who holds the baby? Should the baby wear a bonnet?
H. B. C.

Usually the baby wears all white for the christening ceremony.

The godmother who holds the baby should stand directly before the font. The other godparents stand next to her with the parents and other relatives or near friends close by.

Because baptism is a sacrament of the church, no fee is ever asked for it. However, it is entirely permissible to present a donation to the church at the time of the ceremony.

There is no set rule as to which godmother holds the baby. If one godmother has been with the baby more than the other, she would probably be the choice, merely because the baby would be more at home with someone familiar to her.

The baby wears a bonnet to the church, but it is removed for the baptism.

I have a tray made of Mexican tin which has become discolored and spotted and slightly rusted in spots. Please tell me how to make it presentable again. Can it be painted, and, if so, with what? A colorless shellac will not cover the spots. If it can't be done at home, can you suggest a place to have it renovated? It is a nice size, durable tray and unusable in its present state. F. H. S.

There is a chance that you can remove all the rust and marks from the tray if you will first soak it in kerosene, then rub with a very fine steel wool. After the metal is clean and bright, wipe with turpentine. If you are successful in removing all the rust and other marks, you can prevent further rusting if you will apply a coating of clear brushing lacquer followed by a coat of liquid wax. Occasional rubbing and rewaxing when necessary should keep it in good condition.

If the scouring does not completely remove all blemishes, you could cover them by applying a good enamel to the tray after wiping with turpentine. Or, if you are feeling especially adventuresome you could apply a coat of flat black to the tray and decorate it with colorful flowers, using artists' paints.

Firms listed under "platers" in the yellow pages of the telephone book are skilled in refinishing metals of all sorts. If you want it done professionally, discuss it with one of these firms.

While we were away on our summer vacation the dampness in our apartment caused the glue in the binding of our record albums to become sticky and flow onto the edges of our records—as much as three inches toward the center in some instances. The glue is now hardened and the records are not usable in their present state. Realizing the delicacy of the wax on standard 12-inch records, we are at a loss as to how to remove the glue. Can you help us? Carbon tetrachloride has no effect. W. G. S.

Since the glue was softened by moisture in the air, there is a very good chance that sponging the records with water will remove it. Most glue is soluble in water. If it doesn't respond to cold water sponging, try using water which is just warm. If neither has any effect, try sponging the record with half and half mixture of vinegar and water. None of these methods will remove the glue instantly, for it will take time to soften.

I have a framed floral picture of which I am very fond. I cut it from a magazine several years ago, perhaps eight or nine. Now, the picture has been damaged beyond use and I would like to get another. The only printing left below the picture after it was framed was the place the flower show was held, Pratt Oval. Can anyone tell me where that is? Or where the "North Country Community" is? The arranger was Mrs. Robert Kearfoot, the photographer was Powers. Can anyone give me any suggestion as to how to go about locating another picture?
D. M.

Any suggestions, readers?

Now, with Christmas just around the corner, could you tell me of a dye which could be used to color white or light-colored wax red in order to make large Christmas candles at home?
V. S.

One way to dye or color a large candle is to use the colored portion of the wax (the outerpart) from old candles. Another very good method is to melt high-grade wax crayons with the wax. Be sure to use the best grade of wax crayon, because the color in the less expensive ones tends to settle to the bottom of the candle as it cools and it doesn't color completely.

Red Letter Day Dawns For Soviet Embassy, Starts Guessing Game

By Marie McNair

WHO will be, who won't be at the Soviet Embassy reception this afternoon is the guessing game to be played today.

Annually, it's a "Red" letter day for the Russians, this celebration of the Great October Revolution, which by reason of a revised calendar now comes on November 7.

This afternoon the Soviet's U. N. leader, Foreign Minister Andre Vishinsky, is expected to be in the receiving line with the Ambassador, Alexander Panyushkin, and Mme. Panyushkin, who rarely appears at any social event.

At the moment of writing, Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Mrs. Acheson will attend. However, if the Secretary's plane leaves for Paris before 5 p. m., the Undersecretary of State and Mrs. James Webb will do the pinch hitting.

Will They, Won't They

WILL the Yugoslav Ambassador, Sava Kosanovic be present? With the two countries at odds, the presence or absence of the Yugoslav envoy will serve as a sounding on the import of the situation. Dr. Kosanovic was to return late last night from New York.

And what about the Chinese Nationalists whose country is being taken over by the Chinese Communists? Joseph Ku, secretary at the Chinese Embassy, can't answer for the Ambassador, Dr. Wellington Koo. But Mme. Koo can and did answer for herself yesterday. She's sick in bed with a severe cold.

With many chiefs of missions in New York for U. N. meetings, it's no indication of trends or feelings if they don't show up. Mme. Pandit, Ambassador of India, is in New York to say good-by to her brother, Pandit Nehru, who is flying home today. The British Ambassador and Lady Franks are due back from California today and will attend the reception if they arrive in time.

Food Will Be Lavish

BUT of 1000 guests who have been invited, those who do go will get the traditional lavish buffet, with glace salmon, dozens of salads, platters of cold meats, turkeys and hams, ice cream and cake, and to wash it all down, vodka, bourbon and Scotch.

SNAPSHOTS AT A WEDDING:

Adelina Copello, who became Mrs. Jerre Boggs on Saturday, tossed her bouquet into the arms of her sister-in-law, Rosalynn Boggs, at the same time Major Boggs heaved his wife's "something blue" garter, into the throng . . . The 4-foot wedding cake, a replica of a Greek temple which the bridegroom had designed himself . . . The departure from the usual custom of filling tiny square white boxes with wedding cake to dream on, and instead, putting vari-colored Jordan almonds in heart-shaped boxes and piling them on tables for the guests . . . Barnee and his orchestra providing peppy music for the shoals of young people to dance.

NEWS NOTES:

Bearing the royal crest of Iran—a lion wielding a saber with the rising sun as a backdrop and a monarch's crown overhead, invitations to a reception on Friday evening, November 18, read: "The Ambassador of Iran has received the commands of His Imperial Majesty Mohammad Reza Shah Pahlavi to request the pleasure of the company of"—etc. The fete at which the Shah of Iran will be host will be "white tie," will be held in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel at 10:30 p. m., and separate cards of admission are enclosed.

She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Max Levin of Washington and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Rudolph of Bridgeton, N. J. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Philip Levin, and attended by her sister.

MRS. RICHARD BERK was Miss Roselyn Sinker before her marriage October 23 in New York City. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sinker of Washington, is known professionally as Bunny Hallow. The newlyweds will spend their honeymoon in New Jersey. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Berk of New York City

MRS. HAROLD G. COBB, whose marriage took place October 20 at the Resurrection Luthern Church in Westover, Va., is the former Miss Elizabeth Lawrence. She is the daughter of Mrs. Herbert J. Lawrence of Vienna, Va., and Mr. Cobb is the son of Elmer Cobb of Brockton, Mass.

Mrs. George Sloane Weds

The marriage of Mrs. George Sloane of Warrenton, Va., and Washington, to Capt. Edwin Darius Graves, jr., USN, took place on Saturday at 12:30 p. m. at the bride's home in Warrenton. The Rev. Dr. William P. Burns of Warrenton officiated at the ceremony which was attended only by members of the immediate family.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George H. Ingalls of New York. She was previously married to the late Carroll Alker of New York from whom she was divorced, and to George Sloane of Whitehall, Warrenton, who died in 1946. She is the granddaughter of the late Melville E. Ingalls. Her son is F. H. Ingalls Sloane, a student at Aiken Preparatory who was here for the wedding.

Captain Graves was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1920 and was captain of a Navy Olympic crew the same year which set a world record in winning the regatta at Antwerp. Since February, 1947, he has been director of Naval Reserve, Potomac River Naval Command.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. McGrath entertained at a wedding breakfast for the couple and a few intimate friends. Catain and Mrs. Graves will reside temporarily at 2101 Connecticut ave.

10 Reasons Why You Should REDUCE
By TARR SYSTEM

1. Results, quickly in each treatment.
2. Safe—improves health.
3. Body mechanics insure immediate and often permanent results.
4. Increase pep and energy.
5. Prevents flabbyness because of muscle toning exercise.
6. You lose where you need to lose.
7. Treatments are pleasant to take.
8. Circulation and complexion improved.
9. You can be sure with the latest proven equipment and methods. No phony claims like "no diet," "no exercise," etc., absolute proof—because thousands of women each week from coast to coast are getting new figures by this system. This is why the Tarr System is the only coast to coast system as well as the largest centrally owned system devoted exclusively to figure improvement.
10. The lowest priced 3-hour treatment ever offered.

Plaque Dedicated To Mrs. Corenfield At Cancer Clinic

A bronze plaque was dedicated yesterday in the memory of Mrs. Sarah Corenfield, a member of the Women's Progressive Club, at the George Washington University Cancer Clinic in Warwick Memorial, 1339 H st. nw.

Mrs. Corenfield died of cancer in April this year. After her death the Women's Progressive Club set up a special fund in her name to be used to aid needy cancer patients.

Rabbi Solomon Metz conducted the memorial services yesterday and unveiled the plaque. Dr. Calvin T. Klopp, director of the University's cancer activities, announced that seven persons had already received free cancer operations from money in the fund.

LEGAL NOTICES 4

CERTIFICATE OF ADOPTION OF RESOLUTION

We, the undersigned, Charles Bauer and George R. Dressler, being the President and the Secretary, respectively, of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, a corporation formed under the provisions of Chapter XVIII and subchapter III of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia, being an Act of Congress approved March 3, 1901; that as such Secretary, the undersigned, George R. Dressler, is the custodian of the books and records of the corporation and its corporate seal.

We further certify that on August 11, 1949, at the annual meeting of the members of said corporation, the following resolution was adopted by more than two-thirds of the members of the Association present at the meeting: Be it resolved that the name of this Association be changed from the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers to the National Association of Retail Meat and Food Dealers.

The undersigned further certify that at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the said corporation held on August 11, 1949, the aforesaid resolution was unanimously adopted by the Board of Directors of said corporation.

The undersigned further certify that the above resolution is a true and correct copy of the resolution as contained in the minute book of said corporation.

We further certify that the said resolution was duly adopted at said meeting; that at the time of the adoption there was full power and authority in the Board of Directors and in the members of the said corporation respectively to adopt the resolution.

We further certify that there was a quorum present at said meetings, and that said meetings were duly held and conducted. (Corporate seal.) CHARLES BAUER, President; GEORGE R. DRESSLER, Secretary.

State of Illinois, County of Cook, ss. I, Marguerite La Civita, a Notary Public in and for the County of Cook and State of Illinois, do hereby certify that Charles Bauer and George R. Dressler, the persons whose names are subscribed to the above and foregoing instrument as President and Secretary, respectively, of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, appeared before me this day in person and acknowledged that they signed and executed the above and foregoing instrument as their own free and voluntary acts. Given under my hand and notarial seal this 12th day of September, A. D. 1949. (Seal.) MARQUERITE LA CIVITA, Notary Public. My commission expires October 27, 1949.

Five Authors to Speak at Washington Post Book Luncheon Tomorrow, 1 p. m.

Washington book lovers will have the opportunity to hear five famous authors at The Washington Post's first Book & Author Luncheon of the 1949-50 series, tomorrow at 1 P.M. in the Hotel Statler's Presidential Room. The authors are: Arthur Schlesinger, jr., Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and biographer of Andrew Jackson, whose current book is "The Vital Center." Merle Miller, whose "The Sure Thing" is about the security purges of Washington's government workers. Alice Tisdale Hobart, famous for her "Oil for the Lamps of China," "The Peacock Spreads His Tail," and her latest, "The Cleft Rock." Hartzell Spence, whose "One Foot In Heaven" became a popular movie and whose "Happily Ever After" concerns Washington and Orange County, Virginia. Frederick Gutheim, whose "The Potomac" is the latest in the Rivers of America series.

Tickets, at $3.00, are available through Monday at the book stores listed. On Tuesday, those tickets which remain will be placed on sale at the door of the Presidential Room of the Statler Hotel at 12 noon.

Poor Health Blamed For Testy Oldsters

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Cantankerousness in old age may be directly proportionate to poor health, an Ohio professor said today.

Prof. Albert R. Chandler of the Ohio State University department of philosophy said his conclusion was the result of 503 reports by college students and young professional people on the personal traits of older persons they knew well.

The subject of the study ranged in age from 50 to over 80.

Results of the survey were presented at the second annual meeting of the Gerontological Society, Inc.

Chandler told the meeting of old age specialists that there doesn't seem to be any confirmation of generally accepted notions that old people are usually cranky and irritable.

"People in their 70s or 80s seemed no more likely to be rigid in their habits and opinions, domineering, talkative or irritable than people in their 50s," he said.

"But when the people were divided in groups in excellent health, fair health and poor health, definite trends appeared.

"People in excellent health were definitely likely to be very sociable and change habits easily in changed conditions. They were less likely to be overanxious about money, to give unasked advice, or to dwell unduly upon the past.

"People in poor health were morely likely to be domineering, to be very irritable, or to be very sensitive to noise and confusion."

Overflow Crowd Hears Pianist Here

By Richard Keith

A piano recital yesterday afternoon at the Phillips Gallery attracted such a large audience that the listeners crowded the adjoining rooms to hear the performer, even though they couldn't see her.

The soloist was the brilliant young local pianist, Margaret Tolson, who has had outstanding success in the past year or so here in her frequent appearances.

Her program yesterday was made up of four sonatas, two old and two new.

Highly Expressive

The Karl Philipp Emanue' Bach sonata, which opened the recital, is one of that large group of such works by the illustrious son of Johann Sebastian which are largely neglected today but which, nevertheless, are highly imaginative and expressive. Belonging half to the late baroque and half to the early romantic, they have a curious beauty that is entirely their own.

Miss Tolson followed this work with the Beethoven Sonata, Opus 109, likewise transitional and experimental. Its strange and powerful harmonies, as well as its unconventional formal a.) cts, were presented clearly and forcefully.

The last half of the program was devoted to two sonatas by living American composers. Green's Short Sonata is spirited, and not unlike some of Hindemith's lighter works in style. Its form seems a little cut and dried, but it is nonetheless pleasant.

Plays With Verve

Finney's Third Sonata is more ambitious. Its moods and textures change frequently, sometimes being sentimental, at others reckless and jazzy. Technically, it is a real modern showpiece.

Margaret Tolson plays modern music with unusual insight and verve. She did full justice to both sonatas. Her technique is clean, and her intelligent approach to this whole program of more or less controversial music was admirable. Would that more pianists had her courage!

Chiropractors to Meet On Plan for Schools

The Montgomery-Prince Georges Chiropractic Association will discuss recommendations to the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers concerning the appointment of a chairman of correct posture in the county schools at a meeting Thursday at 8:30 p. m. in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Floyd J. Carter, 4 Magnolia pkwy., Chevy Chase.

Chorus Meets Tuesday

The newly organized Bethesda Community Chorus will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m. in St. John's Church, 6701 Wisconsin ave., Chevy Chase.

Supreme Court To Hear Dennis' Contempt Charge

By the United Press

Another dispute involving Communist Eugene Dennis comes up in the Supreme Court today when the bench reassembles after a two-week recess.

The court will hear arguments that Federal Government workers should not have been allowed on a jury that convicted Dennis of contempt of Congress in July, 1947. The case has nothing to do with the conspiracy conviction of Dennis and 10 other party officials in New York last month. They were found guilty of conspiring to teach the overthrow of the U. S. Government by force.

The contempt charge was brought after Dennis refused to appear before the House Committee on un-American activities April 9, 1947.

Sawyer to Make Study Of South, Southwest

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer yesterday announced plans for a swing through the South and Southwest to study business conditions. He will leave Tuesday.

It will be the last lap of his countrywide fact-finding tour which began last July in New England when unemployment threatened to become widespread, causing fears of a depression.

In China

Rustic Jive Panicking Natives

By James D. White
Associated Press Staff Writer

It's no ballroom feature, but the hottest dance in the world right now probably is the Yangko.

Literally, it is the dance of the Chinese revolution. Wherever the Communists go in China, the Yangko lines appear. If old Cathay can be called a joint, it's jumping.

Millions of Chinese who never danced before are dancing the Yangko.

Until the Reds came, dancing was immoral in China, frowned upon by classic Confucian thought and Chiang Kai-shek.

The village idiot can learn the Yangko. It is described as three shuffling steps forward, one back, and repeat over and over. That's all. It's done to a straight punk-punk-punk on any old drum, wooden block, or oil tin.

Yangko becomes a kind of samba line. Old and young join its novel throb. Yangko lines are part of every public parade. They spring up before and after public meetings.

This is social revolution.

Before the Reds came, boys and girls were not supposed to see each other in public, much less be seen together.

Now, Yangko danced in public by boys and girls, without reference to their elders, is a symbol of what they think is the personal liberation the Reds have brought them.

They still do not touch each other, for you do not toss overboard all the customs of the ages in one short fling.

The dance is so popular that it may be getting out of hand. Seymour Topping, AP correspondent just back from "liberated" Nanking, says this:

"I never saw anything like it. Kids dance the Yangko anywhere, any time, on any provocation. All that's needed to start a session is for somebody to beat out the rhythm."

Library Branch to Open

The Lincoln Park-Haiti branch of the Rockville Public Library will be opened to residents of the Lincoln Park and Haiti areas tonight at 8 o'clock in the Lincoln High School, Rockville, Md., Principal P. L. Moore announced yesterday. Miss Margaret Young will act as librarian, he said.

School Press to Meet

The Maryland Scholastic Press Association tournament will meet Saturday at the University of Maryland to award prizes for the best school newspaper and best yearbook in competition. Miss Mary Murgay of Allegany High School, Cumberland, is director of the association.

Cosmetic Coaching

Though there are but few women today who don't use some cosmetic; we still carry over the feeling that there is something much more wholesome about a complexion that never has been touched by anything save soap and water. When our growing daughters begin to experiment, we often try to discourage them. Indeed, we may feel so strongly about it that we forbid them to use lipstick or rouge.

There's no question about the fact that some make-ups can look pretty gruesome. Overuse of brilliant color, awkward application and various other kinds of cosmetic mismanagement give an impression of crudity that we hate to see in our own youngsters.

Yet, since cosmetics are so commonly used as to be a mark that one is growing up, we can hardly, with success, forbid their use.

It is better policy to help a growing girl learn to use cosmetics in good taste. Some mothers are able to coach their own youngsters into effective use. In other families, it may be a good idea to use the services of friends who are skilled in make-up. Or one may even go to professional beauty experts for help. If you're wiling to go along with your daughter and help her to use cosmetics well, she will rise up and call you blessed.

What's the Verdict?

Beating the Sheriff

Q. When X died, leaving a widow and three children, he left his property (which was almost entirely land) to his wife "during her life or until she remarries. When she dies or remarries, the property is to go to my children, share and share alike." Mrs. X got heavily into debt, and several judgments were obtained against her. When the sheriff was about to attach the land to satisfy the judgments, Mrs. X married her farmhand. What happens to the sheriff's plans?

A. Although a man can't take his property with him when he dies, he certainly can control its disposition for a long time after death. He can shift it around on the happening of various specified contingencies, and the courts won't interfere with many of them. A perfectly valid condition is that property shall shift on remarriage of the widow. That's what happened here: No matter for what reason Mrs. X remarried, the act of marriage terminated her interest in the property disposed of by her husband's will; it went instantly to the children, and the creditors can't levy on it.

King Leads Britain Honoring War Dead

London, Nov. 6 (AP).—King George VI led the British Commonwealth today in observance of Remembrance Day. He carried a huge wreath of poppies to the cenotaph in Whitehall.

King and people honored the memory of men and women of the services who lost their lives in both World Wars in the English equivalent of the American Armistice Day.

I Talk to Strangers

I like to talk to strangers who . . . Are gentle and polite . . . Because it always helps to pass . . . The time of day or night . . . It broadens my philosophy . . . Of life on every hand . . . And teaches me to analyze . . . And try to understand . . . But many times the one who has . . . An unfamiliar name . . . Is somebody who merely wants . . . To argue or to blame . . . Who does not ever sympathize . . . Or give the slightest smile . . . But who believes that nothing now . . . Is really worth our while . . . And so I study carefully . . . The stranger on the street . . . Before I take another chance . . . On triumph or defeat.

Steak Sandwich Would Make It Complete

Herb Harris of 1121 N. Kensington st., Arlington, Va., has discovered a peachy way to spend his lunch money on other things and still avoid going hungry.

3-BDRM BK, ELEC KITCH PIC WIND, BIG LOT, REAS

We have been shopping for a house for so long that I don't seem to recall anything that happened before. I'm sure I must have had a childhood, and that my younger years were not spent in this vain pursuit.

But it's beginning to seem as if I've spent all my life trying to buy a house. Like one of those dreams in which you run and run and run to try to catch up with something, but never get anyplace because your feet keep getting tangled up in the bedclothes.

There are many reasons for our difficulty. We have champagne tastes and beer pocketbooks. We don't really know what we want. There are so many houses to look at, and the more we look the more confused we get.

Worst of all, we're still waiting for 1939 prices to come back. And it's getting pretty monotonous.

So we keep looking, and walking our feet down to the ankles searching for the one house that's got our name on it.

But what we like we can't afford, and what we can afford doesn't suit us.

And inasmuch as we're beginning to recognize some familiar faces as we make our weekend rounds, I suspect that a great many other folks are in the same boat.

In fact, I think that Mr. Blandings and his dream house should be followed by a sequel pitched on the level of the average Joe, who doesn't dare build his own place, but would like to try on a ready-made if he could find one in his size and price range.

I might even be willing to turn out such a book myself, if some publisher would advance me enough royalties to cover the down payment on a 3-bdrm. bk. rmblr., with bsmt., tile bth. & lav. Reas.

BOYS SHOULD BE SEEN AND NOT OBSCENE

Mrs. Mildred Mitchel of 3986 Pennsylvania ave. se. brings up a subject which is distasteful to all of us—yet needs attention.

Mrs. Mitchel and her husband frequently ride on the W. M. & A. buses bound for Andrews Air Base and find that the talk of some servicemen using that line is "vulgar, loud and most annoying. They use language which has no place on a public conveyance, and one cannot ask them to lower their voices because many of them are under the influence of alcohol on the return trip."

Not a very pretty picture, is it? Yet we've all been embarrassed by just such youthful show-offs, who think that vulgar language marks them as he-men.

My mother used to say that a gentleman steers his lady away from such people as quickly as possible, and avoids making a scene.

But that isn't very practical when one is riding on a bus or streetcar.

We can't walk home from work; and neither can we go around punching the noses of all those who offend our sense of propriety. That would be especially inadvisable when the culprits are tough young servicemen.

The answer, I suppose, is a combination of better self-control plus better enforcement of discipline by those in authority.

A couple of MP's riding those buses might even bring about an overnight reformation.

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—For the first time in his long theatrical career, Louis Calhern, who is under contract for a series of pictures, has rented a home in Hollywood. He hired a maid who was coming from Chicago, but who changed her mind in St. Louis and returned home . . . Calhern was entertaining some old friends from the New York theater, and confessed: "I've taken a house. For the first time I shall be concerned with the bug that bites the rose, and sleep under a California moon with no ready trunk in the room" . . . "Got a maid?" asked one of the actors. "She was to open here Thursday," Calhern replied, "but she closed out-of-town."

Reader's Digest will publish the sermon delivered by Henry J. Kaiser at a New York church . . . In Eleanor Roosevelt's forthcoming book, "This I Remember," she reveals the details of the Sumner Welles-Bill Bullitt story, but identifies them only by strange initials . . . Lin Yutang has resigned from his U. N. post in Paris, and is returning here to enter his daughter in an American college . . . William I. Nichols, editor of This Week, will use an editorial by John Gunther, only one paragraph long. He was told: "Digested from Quick, no doubt."

Will Mahoney, who was an Earl Carroll musical comedy star before he went abroad 16 years ago, is back in N. Y. now. His agent, Jack Davies, brought many lucrative offers which would keep Mahoney busy until the day he returns to Australia. But then Davies warned him that most of his earnings would have to go for income taxes . . . "My goodness," sighed Mahoney, "These days you can't take it with you even when you're only going to Australia."

Larry McManus of the San Francisco Chronicle, introduced a Washington friend to Senator Thelma Akana of the Hawaiian Legislature. "This is your chance to be able to tell your friends that you've kissed a Senator," said McManus . . . "I once kissed Senator Margaret Chase Smith," said the visitor, who then turned to Mrs. Akana, said: "I hope you can play second base," kissed her, and explained: "Because I've never kissed a second baseman."

Why Air Admirals Are Boiling

Editor's Note—This is the third in Drew Pearson's series on Army-Navy unification.)

By Drew Pearson

It's easy to understand why the air admirals are boiling mad at unification.

For years, the Navy's airmen had to fight the battleship admirals, and now they find themselves stymied by unification.

Radford

The admirals who put up this long running fight with the old fashioned battleship admirals include such brilliant officers as Gerald Bogan, Arthur Radford, L. T. Sprague and Jack Towers, now retired. Thirty years ago, just out of Annapolis, they went into the relatively new naval aviation as fliers and worked up to the top. They were convinced that the future of the Navy lay in the air.

During the recent campaign in the Pacific, Admiral Sprague had the experience of commanding Carrier Squadron 22 with several other higher ranking admirals taking orders from him. Because operating carriers in battle formation, with their network of protecting airplanes and destroyers, is such a skilled job, Sprague, a junior, was in command.

With the war over and the battleship being laid up in mothballs, naval aviation appeared about to achieve full recognition. Whereupon Congress passed the Unification Act, and with it the chief air responsibility went to the Air Force.

Naval Carriers' Heroism

The full story of the Navy's airplane carriers was one of the most heroic of the war, and the heroism was even greater because of a serious defect discovered in the carriers.

The defect was due to faulty engineering and bad planning. Designers had failed to take into consideration the possibility that decks were vulnerable and that once the deck of a carrier was torn up, no plane could take off.

The Japs, however, soon discovered this. The result was that suicide Jap fighter planes dived for the deck of carrier after carrier. Entirely aside from the tragic loss of life, many carriers were put out of commission and had to be sent all the way through the Panama Canal to the Atlantic coast for repairs. The West coast yards were too full.

Okinawa Losses

At one time during the battle of Okinawa, virtually all of the Navy's carriers were either en route back to the United States for repairs or en route to battle after being repaired.

One Jap suicide plane could put a carrier out of commission for 4 to 6 months.

The British, foreseeing this, equipped their carriers with armored decks. Toward the end of the war, new American carriers were also built with armored decks.

Experience in the Pacific proved that carriers were at their peak effectiveness in making surprise raids on the enemy. If carriers had to stay in one place, as at Okinawa, they suffered unmercifully.

Battle of Leyte Blunder

It was the battle of Leyte, where carriers also played an important part, that convinced many Navy men that unification was necessary.

The command in the battle of Leyte was divided as follow: General MacArthur commanded not only the Army, but also the western fleet under Adm. Tom Kincaid. It was Kincaid's job to protect the landing of MacArthur's troops. The rest of the fleet was under Admiral Nimitz, who had delegated the immediate command to Admiral Halsey.

Halsey was supposed to keep Kincaid advised at all times of his movements, but not take orders from him. During the course of the battle, Halsey advised Admiral Kincaid that a squadron of Jap vessels was coming toward the Philippines from the north, and at X-time he would break away from the major battle and give chase.

When the time arrived, Admiral Halsey and his part of the fleet sailed off to the north. The battleships went with him.

However, Halsey's fleet telephone did not have the range to reach a part of his fleet. This part, consisting of smaller vessels, remained along the Philippine coast virtually unprotected.

It was suspected a few days later that the Japanese attack from the north was actually a feint in order to draw Halsey away from the major part of the battle of Leyte, and afterward, information captured from Japanese admirals substantiated this suspicion.

Surprise Jap Attack

Furthermore the feint almost succeeded in seriously impeding the course of the war. For, the next night, a Japanese squadron, steaming at top speed, caught the southern part of Halsey's fleet and riddled the smaller ships. The range was so close that shells went through both sides of the vessels.

What the Jap commander did not know was that the heavier American ships had exhausted their ammunition the night before and were powerless to fire back. Had he known this, and stayed to mop up on the practically defenseless fleet, the capture of the Philippines and perhaps the end of the war might have been delayed.

Had all parts of the American Navy been operating under one command at the battle of Leyte, Halsey would not have gone steaming off after a Japanese feinting force.

Undoubtedly it was this incident that caused Halsey to tell the Richardson board in the late summer of 1945 that he favored Army-Navy unification.

The Sad Case of the Striped Ticking.

John and Martha thought they were very clever to hide their savings in their mattress. No doubt about it, they did a good job of concealment.

Martha, an excellent seamstress, cut the ticking along a stripe, inserted the money, then sewed up the mattress so well no one could have guessed it had been ripped. But the fire that gutted their house consumed the mattress and the money, so cleverly sewn inside it.
